New truce in Mideast is failure

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Israeli military command charged that the Egyptians launched a strong air and armored attack on the Suez front today even as U.N. truce observers headed for the battle lines to enforce the second attempt at a Middle East ceasefire.

The Egyptian counteroffensive was mounted to save Cairo's forces on the eastern bank of the Suez Canal from encirclement by Israeli tanks and troops doubling back from their penetration into Egypt west of the waterway, Tel Aviv claimed.

The reported fighting came only a few hours after Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan announced the new cease-fire was in effect and seemed to be "working properly."

There was no immediate word from Cairo. But the Israeli claims of renewed combat appeared to jeopardize the already precarious truce, reiterated by the U.N. Security Council on Tuesday night after its first cease-fire collapsed in furious fighting.

The Israeli reports did not pinpoint the area of combat but indicated it was at the southern end of the canal near Suez city.

An earlier communique from Cairo claimed the Israelis tried to cut the main road to Cairo near Suez city "but our forces are preventing him by force from accomplishing his objective."

The Israelis said 15 Egyptian fighter planes were shot down in dogfights over the battleground.

The Israelis earlier said their invasion force had pushed south from its foothold midway up the canal, moving along the western bank of the canal past Suez city at the waterway's southern end in an attempt to cut off the Egyptian 3rd Army on the eastern bank.

Egypt charged the Israelis made the gains by taking advantage of the first cease-fire attempt Monday and Tuesday nights.

Israeli spokesmen claimed their invasion tanks and artillery now dominate the main Egyptian supply routes from Cairo east to Ismailia and from Cairo southeast to Suez city.

Assembly off to bad start

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A special session of the General Assembly to consider campaign financing reforms got off to a bad start Tuesday night with squabbling among members of a House subcommittee.

Cause of the brief flareup was the same disagreement that defeated a pre-session compromise effort last month by the Legislative Service Commission Committee, namely, how campaign contributions from labor unions should be handled.

But while the House State Government Committee bickered, other lawmakers decided to call it a day—or even a week—and wait until bills are ready before sitting down to serious legislating.

Six bills were submitted Tuesday. After the measures were introduced both chambers recessed while subcommittees began hearings on the proposals.

Some legislators not on committees said they would go home and wait. It appeared unlikely that a bill could be agreed to in either chamber today, or even this week.

The committee squabble concerned Gov. John Gilligan's proposal that would allow labor unions and other organizations to exceed a proposed $3,000 campaign contribution ceiling if the money came from individual donations of $10 or less.

Tape surrender blunts impeachment move

Nixon cancels tonight's talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon cancelled a speech tonight on Watergate, the White House explaining that he was busy today dealing with developments in the Middle East. That change in plans came while the House pressed ahead with its preliminary impeachment inquiry.

Although the President's startling decision to surrender the tapes to the courts appeared to blunt the day-old impeachment move, it didn't silence calls for a new special prosecutor. The head of the American Bar Association today called for a new, independent prosecutor to replace Archibald Cox, who was fired by Nixon.

The President had announced that he would address the nation by radio and television tonight, but he cancelled that speech and scheduled a new conference for 9 p.m. EDT Thursday.

The President spent the night at his mountaintop retreat at Camp David, Md., where he had been expected to work on a speech explaining his decision to capitulate to a federal appeals court ruling on the tapes. But instead he spent the evening on the telephone attempting to arrange a cease-fire in the Middle East War, Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said today.

Nixon returned to the White House this morning and planned to spend the remainder of the day on the Middle East situation, Warren said.

He said Nixon simply didn't have time to prepare the speech he had planned on the Watergate affair.

Meanwhile, today the House of Representatives continued a preliminary impeachment inquiry, begun just before Nixon's lawyers announced the tapes would be given to a federal judge.

House leaders said the probe would continue at least until the effects of Nixon's action become known.

It was clear, however, that initial reaction to the President's reversal was favorable.

"Thank God," said Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz. "I'm glad it came to pass," said Democratic Chairman Robert Strauss.

Wall Street's Dow-Jones industrial average jumped 17 points in less than an hour on news of Nixon's decision.

It was a day of surprising events. Here is where things stood when the dust settled:

—U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica was scheduled soon to begin reviewing the nine tapes of Nixon's private conversations about the Watergate scandal. These are tapes that special prosecutor Archibald Cox had sought before he was fired.

Sirica will listen to them in private and decide what, if any, parts of them should be presented to a grand jury. They likely will become public this way only if presented as evidence at a trial.

—The Senate Watergate committee was back in court fighting its own separate, uphill battle for the tapes. Sirica had ruled that the committee, unlike Cox, had no legal authority to use the courts to get the tapes.

Previously, it appeared the committee had struck a deal with the White House and would settle for an edited transcript of the tapes, authenticated by Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss.

But the panel appealed to the U.S. Circuit Court for full access, denied that it had made any deal not to continue the suit, and told Nixon there appeared to be confusion about the terms of the compromise agreement.

After that, and after Nixon gave in on the tapes Cox had sought, the White House withdrew its offer to the committee.

—Crucial questions remained unanswered about the future of the Justice Department's newly inherited inquiries into the Watergate and related matters. It wasn't known if prosecutors would be allowed to get any presidential tapes or papers besides those Nixon agreed to give Sirica.

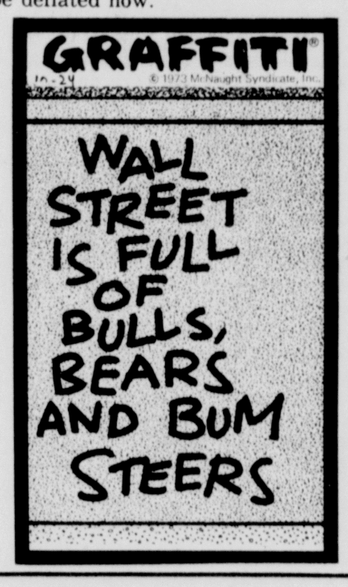

There also were reports that the staff of the special prosecution force was prepared to resign as a group.

—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said the decision to release the White House tapes would deflate congressional impeachment moves. Humphrey said he still favored a new special Watergate prosecutor, to be named either by Sirica or by Congress.

—Cox himself vowed to remain in Washington for the time being. "I know all citizens will be happy, as I am, that the President wisely chose to respect the rule of law," he said.

—Also in doubt was whether Nixon would supply tapes sought in the Vesco case. Former Cabinet members John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans face trial in New York on charges interfering with a government investigation in return for a secret $200,000 campaign contribution from financier Robert L. Vesco.

Relief expressed over tapes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Many political leaders across the nation have expressed happiness and relief over President Nixon's decision to surrender the White House tapes. There were also expressions of bewilderment over its timing.

Several said Nixon had acted in the best interest of the country and they expressed hope his concession would silence his critics and end the controversy over the tapes.

After staunchly refusing for months to give up nine Watergate tape recordings and firing special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox last Saturday over the issue, Nixon agreed Tuesday to abide by a court order to surrender the tapes to U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica.

"Thank God," said Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Cox said, "I know all citizens will be happy, as I am, that the President wisely chose to respect the rule of law."

"I am proud of the President," said Republican state chairman Jack Ranson of Kansas, adding he believed Nixon's release of the tapes would reduce the pressure in Congress for impeachment.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., agreed that impeachment moves would be deflated now.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said Nixon did the "eminently right thing" in releasing the tapes, but Scott said he was certain talk of impeachment did not dictate Nixon's action.

"Impeachment didn't move this tough man," Scott said. "But I do believe that public outcry might have helped convince him that the compromise he had tried wasn't working."

New York State Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson, a Republican, said the President's action "ought to clear the air down there. I don't know what more anyone could want."

Saying he was pleased with Nixon's decision, Rep. Mark Andrews, R-N.D., said, "of course what he's doing now is what he should have done four months ago."

"It's most bewildering," said Democratic State Chairman Joseph Crangle of New York. "One day he fires a man of integrity for asking the courts for the tapes and two days later he releases them. It's very odd."

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said the news from Washington did not alter his view that impeachment proceedings against Nixon should get under way at once.

Impeachment work will continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee was to press ahead today with its inquiry into possible grounds for impeachment, despite President Nixon's sudden decision to release his Watergate tapes to the court.

A committee spokesman said the panel's plans are basically unaffected by Nixon's backdown on the tapes issue.

Nixon acted Tuesday less than three hours after House leaders announced their decision to begin procedures that could lead to impeachment.

Nixon's dramatic decision to obey the order of U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica that he had so long resisted swung the emphasis in the impeachment question to what House Democratic whip John J. McFall of California called "the other half of the problem."

This is Nixon's firing of special prosecutor Archibald Cox and assigning of the Watergate investigation to a Justice Department deprived of the two top officials — former Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson and his deputy, William D. Ruckelshaus — who refused to go along with the dismissal of Cox.

The committee's plans call for proceeding with both the impeachment inquiry and consideration of the vice presidential nomination of Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich.

Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., told newsmen he hopes Ford's confirmation can be handled first.

Several members echoed an opinion that the Democratic-dominated Congress would be accused of partisanship if it institutes impeachment proceedings before a Republican successor to Nixon is installed. Until there is a vice president, Albert remains next in line of succession.

Nixon's turnabout on the tapes was enthusiastically reported to the still-in-session House by Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, chairman of the House Republican Conference.

A number of Democrats insisted that Nixon's action does not quiet accusations that he obstructed justice in the Watergate investigation.

And Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., co-sponsor of a resolution citing a variety of possible grounds for impeachment, said the tape question is only one of many.

"We certainly need a prosecutor," Thompson said. "... I strongly suspect the major effort (by Nixon) was to get rid of Cox."

PRESSURE INCREASED — Charles Dinkler, president of Dinkler Plastics, Inc., tests water pressure after the well at his plant had been spliced into the village's main system. "It's only right to let the town get their water from my well. The plant is closed, and I have kids in school, too."

Industrialist rescues 'dry' Jeffersonville

JEFFERSONVILLE — The water shortage emergency situation in the village of Jeffersonville was temporarily solved Wednesday morning.

Village residents, who unexpectedly found themselves with only a trickle of water coming from faucets Tuesday, had an increased supply Wednesday after Charles E. Dinkler, president of Dinkler Plastics, Inc., spliced his factory well into the village's main system.

"My well can provide the town with 132 gallons a minute," Dinkler states, "and since my plastics plant is temporarily out of production, I don't see any reason why they can't go on using it until conditions improve."

However, before the village could use the private well at the north edge of town, state approval had to be obtained. The well had been approved by the Fayette County Health Department for drinking water for the company's employes, but before the water could be used for distribution through the village mains, approval from the Ohio Department of Health and the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency was needed.

Gordon McCarty, principal at Jeffersonville Elementary School and a member of Village Council, said village officials received temporary approval from the state at 3:15 p.m. Tuesday.

CLASSES at the Jeffersonville school were dismissed at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, but McCarty said they would be open Wednesday after the splicing with the private well had provided drinking water and water for the operation of sanitary facilities.

Lindy Sharett, fire chief and service director in Jeffersonville, was transporting samples of raw water from the private well to Dayton Wednesday morning. Sharrett was to take samples of treated water from the well to Columbus in the afternoon.

Just what the problem is, nobody is certain. The village was receiving "very little, if any," water from the well Wednesday. Village officials were expecting experts from Dayton Wednesday to correct the situation or determine the cause.

Sharrett explained: "Water shortage isn't a new problem to Jeffersonville. The city water is drawn from three wells which have been inadequate for the past five years. If we could get 85-90 gallons a minute, there would be no problem, but the town has been operating on the 60-plus gallons the three wells together put out and now that figure has dropped to almost nothing."

Sharrett admitted that one pump was bad, but it's been a problem getting someone knowledgeable to work on it.

Sharrett said that the preliminary digging for a new well will start Thursday behind the village swimming pool.

A well usually runs $5,000 from the first shovel of dirt to the first squirt of pumped water. Although a geologist was called in, the wells in Jeffersonville were "witched."

The location of Dinkler's well, was "witched" also, while the geologist stood by and firmly stated that there wasn't any water in that area.

"Witching" is an old practice employing a divining rod which usually is made from a willow branch. Someone walks around an area holding the rod, which is shaped in a "Y" and waits for it to dip towards the ground, thus indicating water is beneath.

"The new well may not prove either," Sharrett commented, "but, we have to try to solve our problem before we're faced with a fire or something equally as tragic during one of our shortages."

JUST A TRICKLE — Lindy Sharrett, fire chief and safety service director in Jeffersonville, opens a fire hydrant to show the low water pressure level created when the village well ran dry. Steps were taken for fire protection as soon as the situation developed.

Deaths, Funerals

Harry M. Ging

Harry M. Ging, 73, Rowe Ging Rd., died at 9:35 a.m. Thursday in Memorial Hospital where he had been a patient three days. Death was sudden and unexpected.

Born in Fayette County, he had spent his entire life here. Retired, he was a member of the Church of Christ in Christian Union and of the Eagles Lodge.

Surviving is his wife, Kathryn Ramey Ging; a son, Larry Ging, at home; two stepdaughters, Mrs. Evelyn Hudness of Tye, Tex., and Mrs. Virginia Beavers of Abilene, Tex.; four stepsons, Everett Vance, Oak St., Harlan Vance, Tye, Tex., Bob Vance of Sabina, and Harry Vance, of Abilene, Tex.; and 10 stepgrandchildren.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. J. Herbert (Frances) Perrill, Rt. 3, and Mrs. Margaret Carter of Springfield. Two brothers are deceased.

Arrangements, which will be announced later, are being made under the direction of the Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral home.

Mrs. Beulah Arbaugh

Services were held at 1 p.m. Wednesday in the Schoedinger Funeral Home, NW, Columbus for Mrs. Beulah Arbaugh, widow of Paul Arbaugh, 2675 Kent Rd., Upper Arlington, who died at 4 p.m. Sunday in Riverside Hospital.

Born in Mount Sterling, she had resided in Columbus several years. She was the sister-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wright, 201 Wagner Way. Other survivors are two brothers, John Shannon, San Antonio, Tex., and Allen Shannon, of Detroit, and two sisters, Mrs. Clinton (Celia) Weight of Allentown, Pa., and Mrs. Charles (Edith) Grant of Clearwater, Fla.

Burial was in Pleasant Cemetery at Mount Sterling. Dr. and Mrs. William Lovell, Bowling Green, Ky., son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wright, came here for the funeral.

WORLEY A MELVIN — Services for Worley A. (Red) Melvin, 75, of 639 S. Fayette St., were held at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home here, with the Rev. Charles Richmond officiating. Mr. Melvin, a retired farmer and former grocery store owner, died Saturday.

Pallbearers for the burial in Washington Cemetery were Jay Bender, Karl Kellenberger, Sr., Karl Kellenberger Jr., Mike, Stanley, Norman, Donald and Robert Melvin.

MRS. JESSIE FETTY—Services for Mrs. Jessie Fetty, 88, of Hew Holland, widow of Walter Fetty, were held at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home there. Mrs. Fetty died Saturday.

The Rev. Arthur George officiated. Mrs. Joann Baughn was at the piano and Miss Vicki Sheets sang two hymns. Pallbearers for the burial in the New Holland Cemetery were Paul Hurtt, Jim, Larry and Paul Cottrill, Joe Longberry and Virgil Dinkler.

President misread public on Cox

WASHINGTON (AP) — At midday Monday, surrounded by the sounds of miscalculation, President Nixon slowly climbed the steep steps of the Executive Office Building.

Often in the past he had bounded up the steps two at a time. But now he was burdened with perhaps the worst crisis of his presidency, and he was heading for his hideaway office to search for a solution.

From Pennsylvania Avenue, 50 yards across the lawn, the President could hear the blaring of automobile horns as motorists responded to a demonstrator's "Honk for Impeachment" sign.

It was a raucous reminder that his earlier decision to seek a compromise on the Watergate tapes — a decision he hoped would bring a national sigh of relief — had instead brought what an aide called "some kind of a nightmare ... a fire storm."

"A miscalculation," his White House counsel now bluntly calls the decision to force through a resolution of the month-long tapes dispute.

Twenty-four hours after his walk up the steps of the office building, Nixon reached another decision. He would capitulate and surrender the Watergate tapes and documents to a federal judge — an abrupt turnabout announced in court Tuesday afternoon.

From presidential aides and other official and unofficial sources, the events leading to Nixon's turnabout can be reconstructed. The sources indicated these were the major factors leading to the President's decision:

—A warning by leading Republicans in Congress that he faced a serious impeachment effort and that even some faithful Capitol Hill followers were reluctant to defend him vigorously so long as he refused to release the tapes.

—A recognition that the public outcry resulting from the firing Saturday night of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox was much greater than had been expected, and that it was overshadowing his agreement to allow limited access to the tapes.

—High level concern that the domestic turmoil was damaging efforts to negotiate an end to the Middle East war and was hurting the President's image as a world leader.

Nixon's decision to turn over the tapes for inspection by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica was made at about noon on Tuesday and came as a stunning surprise to even some of his closest aides. "I was thunderstruck — I couldn't believe it," said one aide, who has in the past prided himself on an ability to read the presidential mind.

Alexander M. Haig Jr., Nixon's chief of staff, was among the few aware of the President's movement toward capitulation on the tapes issue. He said the decision was reached "after very painful and anguishing discussion."

On Monday, Oct. 15, Nixon had decided he would attempt to resolve the tapes issue, which, according to Haig, "had progressively begun to polarize our body politic."

"Lines were clearly being drawn both within the Congress and ... within the viewpoint of the American people themselves," Haig said.

So, as time began running out on Nixon to file his notice of appeal to the Supreme Court, he came up with a compromise: He would personally prepare a summary of the nine tapes, have it verified by Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., and turn it over to both Judge Sirica and the Senate Watergate committee.

According to presidential aides, it was clear by Thursday that Cox would not go along with the compromise, and Nixon decided Friday morning that "we should attempt to resolve this dreadfully controversial issue . . . with or without Professor Cox," Haig said. without Professor Cox," Haig said.

Cox announced he would not accept the White House proposal. Cox was fired, Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson resigned, and Deputy Atty. Gen. William D.IRuckelshaus was fired.

First reaction was quick. By the time Nixon awoke Sunday morning, his staff had compiled a 26-page special report tracing reaction in Congress and in the media. The condemnations were harsh, the words of support few.

By Monday morning, Nixon had a 15-page report disclosing that many of the newspapers that had warmly supported his re-election now were vigorously denouncing him editorially.

Some even called for his impeachment or resignation — sentiment expressed later Monday by the AFL-CIO convention in Miami Beach.

By noon on Monday, it was clear to those close to the President that, as Special Counsel Charles Alan Wright later said, "Clearly, we did miscalculate Friday night."

Nixon spent Tuesday morning in his Oval Office and reached his decision about noon. At 2 p.m., Wright stood before a crowded courtroom and startled the nation by announcing the tapes would be turned over to Judge Sirica.

More Watergate problems ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon went to the brink and came back without Archibald Cox.

By yielding to a court order for Watergate-related tape recordings, the President stepped back from a constitutional crisis. He did so after firing Cox as special Watergate prosecutor.

But Nixon has more Watergate troubles ahead, a prospect he is almost certain to address in his speech to the nation tonight.

And, if the White House couldn't get along with Cox as special prosecutor, getting along without him may prove difficult, too.

In Congress there is proposed legislation for a Watergate prosecutor the President cannot fire.

The White House said the President plans to have the case handled within his Department of Justice.

That is where it was six months ago, before Nixon reluctantly agreed to the appointment of a special prosecutor. He resisted that step, then took it to help resolve an earlier administration crisis, a shakeup in the Cabinet and the White House staff.

Now the Justice Department itself is shaken. Elliot L. Richardson resigned as attorney general rather than obey Nixon's order to fire Cox. And, while the Watergate case continues, it is unlikely any Nixon nominee could win the Senate confirmation required to replace Richardson on a permanent basis.

Richardson was confirmed only after promising that the special Watergate prosecutor would be fired only for extraordinary improprieties.

The Senate Judiciary Committee is meeting today to discuss just what was promised, and by whom. Richardson maintains the President has a right to change the terms under which any official was hired, and therefore did not break a promise by directing him to fire Cox.

In the House, preliminary impeachment inquiries continued despite Nixon's decision to relent on the tapes.

WSU class studies pornography

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Homework for 40 students at Wright State University may be skin flicks, a "dirty" book, or a trip to a local gay bar to talk with homosexuals.

The class is called Problems in Human Sexuality, and its instructors say it's a healthy approach to understanding sex differences among people.

About 40 students, most of them married women, are enrolled in the experimental class sponsored by the Continuing Education Department.

The lecturers are prostitutes, pimps, doctors, biologists, ministers and homosexuals.

But first, students are "desensitized" to what for most is shocking material by showing a stag film, said course co-creator Dr. [illegible]ne Wade. An explanation of the film is offered and students are told what to expect.

"If they feel they don't want to watch it they are free to leave," he said. The class is limited to seniors and graduate students and many are school nurses, principals, police officers, psychologists, social workers and guidance counselors, he said.

After viewing the film, the class discusses what prompts people to make such films, what motivates actors to perform in them, and why some people like to watch them.

Students also quiz the speakers, Wade said. Students may ask a prostitute about the hours she works, what she does in her spare time, how much she charges, whether she has a family, how she spends her money, and how she avoids the police.

"They want to know about the prostitute as a human," Wade said.

Speakers such as doctors and ministers, touching on the religious aspect of sex, "attempt to point out the connection between sex as an expression of love which is in turn an expression of Christianity," said Ellen Murray, assistant sociology professor and a partner in the course.

Miss Murray also had an explanation for the absence of men in the class. "Most males are pigheaded and think they know all there is to know about sex," she said.

Biologists talk about genes and chromosomes and the basics of sexual biology, Miss Murray said. "We've found a lot of school teachers who don't know the biology of sex."

Both instructors hoped students would find the course "mind expanding," and would find themselves more tolerant of others.

"The course dispels false notions," Miss Murray said. "We think students become more tolerant of what they have come to call 'queers' and 'perverts.' The course dissipates the stereotype."

Set hearing on Boyle extradition

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. magistrate has scheduled a Nov. 9 extradition hearing for W.A. "Tony" Boyle, the former United Mine Workers president now recuperating from a nearfatal overdose of barbituates.

The hearing is on the government's attempt to have Boyle returned to Pennsylvania to face charges there in the 1969 slaying of UMW insurgent Joseph Yablonski, his wife and a daughter.

The hearing was set Tuesday by U.S. Magistrate Arthur Burnett.

Justice Department lawyer Ronald Malone and Boyle's lawyer, Charles Moses, agreed before Burnett that Boyle was competent to assist in his own defense and understand the charges against him.

The hearing has been rescheduled twice since Sept. 24 when Boyle was admitted to George Washington University Medical Center suffering from an overdose of barbituates in an apparent suicide attempt.

Boyle, 72, remained in satisfactory condition at the Hospital. His $50,000 bail remains suspended, and he is in the protective custody of U.S. Marshals.

Murder indictments were returned against Boyle in the deaths of UMW insurgent Joseph Yablonski, his wife, and a daughter.

Senate panel studies inquiry into firing of prosecutor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee meets today to decide on an inquiry into the firing of Archibald Cox as special Watergate prosecutor.

In advance of the closed-door session, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said he expected the committee to hold public hearings with Cox as the first witness.

He said Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., indicated to him that Cox would be called to testify immediately if that were the will of the committee.

Cox was fired on President Nixon's order after his refusal to drop his efforts to subpoena tapes and other Watergate-related materials in the possession of the White House.

However, Nixon agreed Tuesday to comply with court orders to turn over the tapes and other papers to U.S. District Judge John L. Sirica.

While this seemed to undercut a surge of impeachment moves, it did not lessen the demands of Kennedy and some other Democrats on the Judiciary Committee for investigating the Cox removal.

Some senators said they would continue efforts to pass legislation to provide for a court-appointed special prosecutor, not subject to dismissal by the President.

Such bills were introduced by Sens. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., and Adlai E. Stevenson III, DIll.

Introduction of another bill sponsored by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., Kennedy and some other Judiciary Committee members was delayed until Friday.

Bayh said he hoped for additional sponsors by then, including possibly one or two Republicans.

One GOP committee member, Sen. Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland, said he supported the creation of an independent prosecutor.

Ohio Assembly

Auto Workers' Community Action Council (CAC) in Columbus was on hand to defend the bill, and Republicans questioned him at length.

Rep. Charles E. Fry, R-75 Springfield, wanted to know if it weren't more democratic to allow individual members to earmark donations rather than have them spent by a union's, or other organization's, political action committee.

Hinton said he agreed "in principle, but in the stark realities of politics, it just isn't that way." The labor official added that in the past, "anytime someone in industry wanted to hamstring the labor movement, all they did was take it to a Republican and have it introduced."

Labor unions traditonally have donated funds to Democrats and industry has donated to Republicans. Republicans favor the earmarking method.

John Hall, lobbyist for the Ohio Education Association, told the committee that to have each member designate a party or a candidate "just would't be practical, and wouldn't work."

Gilligan's bill, and another just like it, were introduced in both houses, and a Republican proposal by Sen. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake, also was offered in both chambers.

Separate proposals were offered in the House by Reps. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, and Don S. Maddux, D-90, Lancaster. Election committees of the Senate and House held afternoon and evening hearings, but took no action.

House and Senate leaders said they planned to hold only skeleton sessions until a bill is ready for full floor consideration.

Most of the bills have similar provisions. Generally, they limit individual contributions and those by family units to $3,000 in any one election, require disclosure of all contributions above $10, require reporting of contributions and expenditures before and after an election, and fix amounts that may be spent for the various state, district, and local offices.

James Marsh, assistant secretary of state, was among witnesses who appeared before the Senate committee headed by Sen. Stanley J. Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati.

He reiterated proposals made earlier by Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, including one that would prohibit contributions by contractors engaged in business with a public agency. Such a provision is included in the Norris proposal in the House.

Marsh said the secretary of state's office also advocates a bi-partisan state elections commission made up of two members of each party from each chamber of the legislature, with the secretary of state serving as a fifth member. He also asked that it be an enforcement agency, rather than a quasi-judicial body as proposed by the governor.

The Gilligan proposal calls for five members to be named by the governor, with no more than three from one party, who would have the power to hear complaints and reverse decisions made by the secretary of state, among other things.

Stock list drifts along

NEW YORK (AP)— In sharp contrast to Tuesday's dramatic swings, the stock market drifted along today, with investors cautiously evaluating the domestic and international scene.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up over 2 points early in the day, had slid back to 965.98, down .53, by noon. The New York Stock Exchange index likewise fell to a noon level of 59.11, off .04. Big Board advances equaled declines in moderate trading.

"The market will not be an aggressive animal until the Mideast situation and the domestic political turmoil are cleared up somewhat," said Larry Wachtel of Bache & Co.

On the Amex, the market value index was down .27 at 107.72 as McCulloch Oil lead trading, unchanged at 7¾.

On the Big Board, most-active British Petroleum, up ⅜ at 14⅝, was helped by a 143,000-share block which moved at 14½, up ¼.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A high pressure area east of Ohio, that has controlled the state's weather for several days, has begun to weaken.

The weakening low should allow a cold front to move east over the state by Friday. As the front approaches, southerly winds will increase, breaking up the stagnant air which has caused an air pollution advisory to be issued for Ohio.

Clear skies overnight allowed temperatures to drop into the 30s over parts of northwestern Ohio. At dawn readings ranged from 38 degrees at Toledo to 56 degrees at Mansfield. Most of the state reported readings in the 40s.

Early morning fog was general over the state, and sunny but hazy skies were expected the rest of the day. Readings were forecast to climb to the 70s across most of the state and the 80s in the south.

Clear skies are expected tonight with lows from the upper 40s to low 50s. Thursday will be generally sunny with highs again in the 70s and low 80s, but clouds will begin moving into northern Ohio toward evening.

A chance of showers Friday and Saturday. Mild Friday, cooler Saturday and Sunday. Highs will be in the 70s Friday, then drop to the 60s Saturday and Sunday. Lows will be in the 50s early Friday and in the 40s Saturday and Sunday mornings.

Court upholds voting ban

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —A post office box number cannot be used to fill the residency requirements of Ohio's voter registration law, the Ohio Supreme Court ruled today.

William Kyser, an Ohio Bell Telephone Co. employe in Cleveland who lived in a self-contained motor home—parking it in any area in which he happened to be working at the time—had tried to vote using a box number as an address.

The Cuyahoga County Board of Elections refused to register him as a qualified voter in Ward 31, Precinct E, in Cleveland. The Common Pleas Court upheld the board.

The Court of Appeals for Cuyahoga County reversed the lower court decision, giving Kyser the right to register. The high court reversed that decision.

Crash brings death charge

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Police have charged a 20-year-old Columbus man with vehicular homicide after a head-on crash early Tuesday on a downtown bridge.

Gary Swann was charged in the death of Michael Stone, 17, of Ashland.

Two passengers in Stone's car were hospitalized. A hospital spokesman said one, Christopher Graves, 18, of Kutztown, Pa., was in critical condition.

Police said Swann was driving in the wrong lane.

Columbus school supervisor resigns

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The supervisor of testing and evaluation services for Columbus schools has resigned after paying the school system $3,235 which an audit showed was missing from his office.

William LeSage denied any wrongdoing, and said he repaid the money out of a sense of moral obligation and because of his embarrassment that the shortage occurred in an area under his supervision.

Opinion And Comment

Class action dilemma

It is good news for millions of consumers that the Supreme Court has agreed to review a disturbing lower court ruling on class action suits. Were this ruling by the U.S. District Court of Appeals in New York to stand, individual plaintiffs in class action suits would have to bear the cost of notifying each person in whose behalf the suit was brought.

The practical effect of this would be to all but emasculate a citizen's power to sue corporate defendants in behalf of many others allegedly wronged. The case that gave rise to the appeals court ruling, for example, was filed by an individual for himself and 2.7 million other purchasers of stocks in odd lots. The cost of notifying that many people would be enormous.

The consequences were cogently summed up in a dissenting opinion by Judge James L. Oakes. The decision, he said, would "give the green light to monopolies and conglomerates who deal in quantity items selling at small prices to proceed to violate the antitrust laws unhampered by any realistic threat of private consumer civil proceedings."

Up to now it has been fairly common for federal judges to make corporate defendants responsible for notifying all involved if the judge felt the plaintiffs probably would win the case. This is not a desirable way of handling the matter, either; indeed, the appeals court called it "legalized blackmail" sometimes used to pressure corporate defendants into out-of-court settlements.

Some way must be found, though, to assure that the burden of notifying thousands or millions of class action plaintiffs does not fall on an individual or small group. One can hope that a Supreme Court ruling will point the way to a solution fair to both plaintiffs and defendants.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

The way to get rid of our waste

The trouble with the professional environmentalists, with whom I seem to be embroiled over differences in emphasis, is that they don't keep abreast of what our big companies are doing to enable us to combine progress with clean and happy surroundings.

Great things are stirring in the laboratories and on drawing boards, but the negativists, looking at only one side of the story, miss the total picture.

For examples, I would have waited a dog's age to learn from an environmentalist that RCA has a fail-safe system for monitoring the Alaska pipeline, or that Dr. Armand Hammer's Occidental Oil Co. has what it deems a workable method of turning garbage into oil, a method which it plans to test in the city of San Diego.

THE ENVIRONMENTALISTS attack the whole idea of electric power consumption, which means that they have it in for General Electric, manufacturer for all those appliances that give us the leisure to enjoy the outdoors that the Sierra Club wants to preserve. It happens that if any company can help us combine productivity and leisure with the added boon of clean surroundings, it is big GE.

The solid, sensible governor of Connecticut, Tom Meskill, knowing that people who are accustomed to a modern standard of living aren't going to give up such things as automobiles, newspapers, magazines, cans, bottles and the advantages of sterile packaging, all of which create waste, has turned to General Electric to give him a statewide Solid Waste Management Plan.

Working with the Connecticut Department of Environmental Protection and enlisting the help of various utilities companies, GE put some thousands of man-days into studying the possibility of building 10 reprocessing facilities at strategic points throughout the state.

The first recovery plant, designed ultimately to handle 1,800 tons of refuse a day, will be under construction at Bridegport by next year. This is beginning close to home, for GE is moving its corporate headquarters from New York City to Fairfield, a suburb of Bridgeport.

When the GE system is completed, with plants spotted all around the state at places determined by computer analysis of population density, the state hopes to recover 60 per cent of its refuse either as material or energy. Air pollution from waste disposal will be reduced by 70 per cent, and the land consumption required for garbage dumps will drop by 80 per cent.

If GE can help Connecticut, a heavily populated state, solve its solid waste disposal problems within 10 years, it will set a pattern for the whole nation. But it will not dispose of the more difficult problem of ridding the air of pollutants from cars and factory chimney stacks.

I HAVE OFTEN wondered why GE or United Aircraft, companies that make big jet engines, can't team up with some large engineering firm to provide a way for clearing the Los Angeles area of the smog that results from the millions of automobiles on the freeways. The idea would be to run a tunnel system through the mountains of the Sierra Madre to the north of the city. By using jet propulsion to force a continuous air current through the tunnel system, couldn't the Los Angeles smog be dissipated into empty desert air on the other side of the mountains?

I asked a GE man if my idea were entirely fanciful. He said he was in no position to estimate its possible cost.

But in Europe they tunnel through the Alps, and an ex-GE man, John McCarty, the assistant to the president of Pepperdine University, a small Los Angeles college that believes in teaching the virtues of private enterprise, tells me that he thinks his old company might be up to the job of dealing with smog.

McCarty's alternate idea would be to transport automobiles into Los Angeles on moving conveyor treads. The drivers could sit and read the papers on their last lap to downtown officer.

Well, why not? That would cost money, too, but some way must be found to let Los Angeles keep its cars and at the same time breathe decent air.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Pentagon training aids Egyptians

WASHINGTON — The way the Pentagon has trained the world's army chiefs, and particularly those in right-wing dictatorships, is pointed up by what is happening in the Middle East war. The Egyptians' initial battlefield successes owe a lot to that training.

Lt. Gen. Sadeddin Shazlip chief of staff of the Egyptian forces, recognzed as a brillian strategist, received a key component of his military education at Ft. Benning, Ga., and Ft. Lee, Va.

The paratroop, air drop and air transport courses he took in 1953 were the initial impetus for the airborne tactics he employed in getting his troops across the Suez Canal and into the mountain passes threatening the Israeli stronghold of Sharm el Sheik.

Widely recognized not only for his generalship but for his zeal in endowing the Egyptian armies with the will to fight, Shazli enbodies in his person the superpower confrontation in the Middle East. Following his training in the United States he commanded a paratroop unit in the Suez Crisis of 1956 when Britain, France and Israeli attacked Egypt while the United States joined the Soviet Union and Arab elements in opposing the invasion which was halted by United Nations action. The following year, after promotion to lieutenant colonel Shazli went to Moscow for further training.

TOP MILITARY MEN from South Vietnam, Greece, Thailand, Yugoslavia, Saudi Arabia and many other countries, including Israel, have had the rigorous, highly effective course at Benning. Following their workout in all aspects of airborne warfare they are given VIP tours around the country. Hardly a day goes by that colonels and majors, often in the gaudy uniforms of Latin American, are not being trotted around to see the sights of Washington.

The Chilean generals received extensive American help on the scene in Santiago prior to the coup that overthrew the Marxist government of Salvador Allende. This was done through the Military Assistance Program (MAP). As washington cut down on economic aid to the Allende regime, military aid rose rapidly.

That the United States trains forces that are often the agents of repression is hardly a secret to public opinion in those countries where the tough military hold the line. In Thailand, as a recent example, the military shot down hundreds of student protesters before the government then in power with military backing surrendered to overwhelming opposition.

THE AMERICAN ROLE in providing technical skills for the military supporting law and order for the regimes in power has contributed to the alienation not only of the left but often of those in the middle believing that hope of democratic change is denied by the men with the guns.

This feeling is reinforced in some instances by the training given through Agency for International Development (AID) programs to public safety and police forces.

AID provides 14 to 17 weeks of training at the International Police Academy in Washington. A recent graduating course included Thais, Filipinos, South Koreans, South Vietnamese and Chileans. Courses are conducted for senior police officers and for those at the middle management level.

In some cases (Saudi Arabia is one) the country pays all the costs. Latin-American trainees have come from Uruguay, Bolivia, Colombia and Ecuador.

Altogether AID has sent 4,661 police from 75 countries through the course. The $7.4 million in the fiscal 1974 budget is the lowest figure in the history of the program as are all other AID allocations in a record-low request.

AS A STAR Benning graduate, Shazli made many friends among his American classmates. They sent him congratulations when in 1971 he became chief of staff of the Egyptian forces, when in 1971 he became chief of staff of the Egyptian forces, the youngest ever to hold that post. In President Anwar Sadat's purge of the military he replaced Lt. Gen. Mohammed Sadek.

One of the few to distinguish himself in the Egyptian rout during the six-day war in 1967 Shazli was among the last to leave the Sinai Peninsula, swimming across the canal to escape capture. As an official of the Arab League he has passionately preached the cause of Arabism.

The thousands of officers passing through the Benning course learn a lot about American military technique. What they may learn about American attitudes and belief is another matter.

Love found to be better on second time around

LONDON (AP) — Albert and Violet Pamment, 73 and 72 respectively, have wed again after being divorced for 32 years.

A chance meeting between Albert and daughter Patricia brought them together, and their younger son Clifford, 44, was best man at the wedding.

"We are wiser and more sensible now," said Violet.

Hal Boyle . . . Making life worth living

NEW YORK (AP) — Things that make life worth living:

An unexpected smile, a pleased palate, a philosophic mind, an answering love.

The excitement of spending your first night outdoors in a sleeping bag.

As a child, calling up the zoo and asking if Mr. Bear or Mr. Wolf can come to the telephone.

Winning the daily double at a racetrack with the only $2 you brought along to bet.

Drinking a triple-dip malted milk with a plump lady on a day when you both feel like saying to hell with all diets.

The conversation of lawyers, when they are at their ease and therefore not under oath to tell either the whole truth or nothing but the truth.

Putting your ear to a train rail and hearing a train singing its way around a curve in the distance.

Reeling in a big one in a fished-out lake from which the wise guys said all the big ones had been taken long ago.

Sitting on the front porch at a family reunion and listening to a tipsy elderly uncle cackle with laughter as he recalls how he defeated the Kaiser almost singlehanded in the first World War.

Having the pretty red-haired girl in your kindergarten class tell you, with a deep and tremulous sigh, how much she wished she could draw a white lamb in a green field as pretty as the one you drew.

The sight of a picnic table in the park, loaded with tempting and colorful edibles and potables, just before a dozen whooping children reach for the sandwiches en masse.

The overwhelming feeling of protectiveness you get when your best girl rests her head on your shoulders as you both are gazing into firelight. Why is there never a dragon handy when you need one to slay?

Sneaking down in your bathrobe and pajamas to see the brightly decorated yule tree on Christmas morning before anyone else in the house is awake.

Scoring the winning run in a sandlot baseball game by beating the throw to home plate by a foot in the last of the ninth inning. Doesn't it happen to every kid at least once in his life?

Finally realizing, much later than you should, just what a sheltering grace the love of your father and mother has always been. And, when you try with stumbling words to tell them this, simply getting a nod and quiet smile from each.

For these and other benefits of being, our thanks, Amen.

Family taught not to fear snakes

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations for standing up for the snake. I had a pet boa constrictor for many years and kept him until he became too big to feed, after which I gave him to the zoo.

I have taught our children to differentiate between poisonous and nonpoisonous snakes and encouraged them to hold snakes in their hands so that this irrational fear of snakes did not occur in my family.

Snakes eat rodents and insects, and are an important part of the balance of nature. If we had more snakes, we would need less dangerous pesticides. Sign me . . .

DEAR LAWYER: But we might lose a Roman Catholic priest. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Your defense of the much-maligned serpent was very thought-provoking, but there is another side to that story.

I am a Roman Catholic priest, and I have found that many otherwise quiet "normal" people suffer from herpetophobiathe fear of snakes. It is no mere prejudice, biblical or otherwise, but actually a fear as deeply rooted and as difficult to treat as claustrophobia (fear of enclosure), acrophobia (fear of heights), or any other phobia.

Most herpetophobes will readily agree that their fear is entirely irrational, but that makes it no less real.

Some herpetophobes nearly have heart failure just coming upon a picture of a snake in a magazine. I know, I am one of them, and have been since before I even knew there was a Bible. I have no idea why I am this way, but I do know that if anyone tries to bring a snake into this rectory, I'm leaving!

A HERPETOPHOBIC PRIEST

P.S. One fear I do not have is signing my name to Letters-to-the Editor and the like, but this is one instance where prudence may dictate an exception. I will sign it, but please don't use my name in your column. There are too many clowns around here for comfort.

DEAR ABBY: I am a fairly attractive widow, living on what is laughingly called "widow's row."

I have been completely captivated by a retired Marine officer who lives next door to me. He is a widower and everything a woman could want in a man, but no woman seems able to attract his attention.

Many evenings I go to sleep listening to him play the piano. It's the most beautiful music I've ever heard, but it sounds so sad.

Those who have known him say that his wife died when they were both very young, and since then he has built a shell around himself that no woman has been able to penetrate.

Obviously, my problem is, how can I let him know that I am interested in him?

NEAR AND YET SO FAR

DEAR NEAR: Invite him to join you in some special dinner. If he reciprocates, you may see the start of a good friendship, at least. After that - who knows?

CONFIDENTIAL TO "KENTUCKY GIRL WHO NEEDS HELP IN INDIANA": Don't "hang around" hoping he might change. Have nothing more to do with him, resume the relationship.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Today

Today is Wednesday, October 24th, the 297th day of the year. There are 68 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, the Soviet Union became the 29th nation to ratify the United Nations charter, putting the charter into force.

On this date in 1603, James I was proclaimed king of England, Scotland, France and Ireland.

In 1795, Poland was partitioned by Prussia, Austria and Russia.

In 1861, the first telegrams were sent across the United States.

In 1929, prices collapsed on the New York Stock Exchange.

In 1962, the United States declared a blockade of Cuba, following reports of a Soviet missile buildup on the island.

In 1963, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Adlai Stevenson, was roughed up by right-wing demonstrators after making a speech in Dallas, Tex.

Ten years ago ... the United States completed a two-day airlift, moving the 2nd Armored Division of the Army from Fort Hood, Tex., to bases near Frankfort, Germany.

Five years ago ... President Johnson's eldest daughter, Lynda Bird Robb, gave birth to a baby girl.

One year ago ... the U.S. Supreme Court rejected a legal move to force the U.S. Archives to release some of the autopsy materials and other items relating to the assassination of President Kennedy.

Today's birthday: Former National Football League quarterback Y.A. Tittle is 47.

Thought for today: I have often been struck by the fact that the symptoms of laziness and fatigue are practically identical — Frederick Lewis Allen, American writer 1890-1954.

'Open Court' reading program explained to DKG

"New programs in our elementary schools have developed because the classroom teachers are willing to give their own time for special instruction, especially in reading and mathematics," Mrs. June Slaughter told 41 members of Delta Kappa Gamma at their October meeting Monday night in the Terrace Lounge.

Mrs. Slaughter, elementary coordinator for the Miami Trace schools, described the 'Open Court' reading program which is being used in the first and second grades this year.

'Open Court' utilizes a phonics approach to develop skill in reading, composition, and spelling primarily. Certain material is presented to the entire class each day, but the ingenuity of the teacher provides specialized instruction for the individual student in a workshop situation.

She showed samples of writing from second graders, and also mentioned the new mathematics program and the kindergarten.

Hugh Rea, elementary supervisor for the Washington City schools, described several special programs which are furthering education in both City and Miami Trace districts.

The speech and hearing therapists, the E.M.R. teachers, the Learning Disabilities specialists, and the psychologists are financed partly through funds mandated from the state income tax. Since one child out of 20 has a serious learning problem, Mr. Rea stated that these special services help the one child and also free the classroom teacher to do a better job with the other 19.

Mrs. Carrie Stephenson gave the invocation which preceded the meal, and the president, Miss Helen Hutson, presided at the business meeting.

In addition to the usual reports and correspondence, Mrs. Edith Parsley mentioned the highlights of the 1972-73 club year and told the group they are now filling the seventh Delta Kappa Gamma scrapbook.

The next meeting will be Nov. 26 at the Terrace Lounge with Kaye Barlett, who will explain the community education project.

The hostess committee included Mrs. Lucille Davis, Mrs. John E. Rhoads, Mrs. F. J. Mayo, Mrs. Grace Iden, and Mrs. Harry Craig.

Marriage is announced

Miss Vicki Lynn Sturgill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Olen Sturgill, 707 Maple St., became the bride of John Thomas George, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Jones, 536 Comfort Lane, Saturday. The Rev. Arthur George performed the wedding ceremony in the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Iona Nichols, 1103 Rawlings St.

The new Mrs. George is a senior at Washington Senior High School. Her husband, a 1973 graduate of WSHS, is employed at Landmark.

A reception for the newly married couple followed the wedding ceremony. The couple is residing at 226 S. Fayette St.

Young hijacker regrets her past

BY JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With her expressive brown eyes dominating a tiny face framed in long dark hair, her slight figure and her soft, Tamsin Fitzgerald conveys an impression of fragility.

In fact, she looks a good deal more like the flute player and poetry-writer she now is than the plane hijacker and two-year resident of a federal penitentiary that she once was.

At age 23 she looks back with disbelief at "my lack of judgment, maturity or whatever" that involved her at age 18 in an abortive attempt with her boyfriend to hijack a plane to Cuba so that he could avoid the draft.

"Michael was under a lot of pressure about the Army, and at that time there were a lot of zany hijackings," she relates. "It was a thought that originated in his mind. That never would have occurred to me in my lifetime. It's just not my style."

He told her she didn't have to go along, his 5-foot-3, 100-pound partner admits. "He was right, but I didn't listen to him," she says. "I didn't like the thought of him disappearing into the skies. I was really hung up on him, so I tagged along."

Michael, who was 21, "didn't display the necessary force" and authorities were waiting for the two when the plane landed in Miami, and both were sent to prison.

It was at Alderson Federal Penitentiary in West Virginia that Tamsin wrote a series of letters and fragments of poetry to Richard A. Condon, the author of a book on flute-playing. He was so struck with the sensitive insights his correspondent showed that he had edited the letters into a narrative as a book recently published under the title, "Tamsin."

The author of the letters has been out of prison now for two years and is working at a publishing house and pursuing a musical degree at the Manhattan School of Music.

"How could I defend what we did?" she asks in retrospect. "It was a terribly stupid thing to do and I can't believe I could have done it. Michael should have considered going to jail 'cause that's what he ended up doing.

"We were so lucky not to be hurt or to hurt anybody or to have gotten a life sentence or gone to Cuba. I can't believe how lucky we were," adds Tamsin, who because of her youth will not be saddled with a criminal record. "But in my case it's silly to say I haven't been busted because everyone knows I have."

Michael was freed at the same time she was and they remained together for a while but have gradually drifted apart, and she doesn't know where he is right now.

"I have a lot of feeling for Michael," she says. "When you have been friends, playmates and lovers something remains, but I think the intenseness is over, though I don't really know. If Michael showed up on my doorstep in 25 years I would be very happy to see him.

"We were both immature and messed up and we were lucky to meet each other because we were the same size," she goes on. "But as we grow stronger and different we are growing apart and don't fit so well any more."

But, she says, if it had not been for Michael, his letters and emotional support, she could never have survived prison. "Of course," she adds with a smile, "If it had not been for him I wouldn't have been in prison."

She feels strongly that prisons, which she says are the only institutions that thrive on failure, do not work because of their dehumanizing effect.

"Because a person couldn't cope in the real world they provide an unreal world where he doesn't have to make decisions," she points out. "Then he goes back into the world where he couldn't make it before, after years of being treated like an animal. Returning people is what keeps prisons functioning.

"Prison is too removed from reality," she continues. "A halfway house or any kind of a way to keep the person in touch with the community would be a better approach."

Tamsin, who explains that her name is of Welsh origin, was born and grew up in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., where her parents still live. "My mother is my best friend," she says. "I only recently realized the excruciating pain involved in seeing someone you love hurt themselves."

As for the future, she hopes to earn a living by playing the flute. She has had some second thoughts about the renewal, through publication of her letters, of something she would like to put in the past.

ESA chapters win awards at Convention

Epsilon Sigma Alpha International held the 26th annual Ohio State Convention at Ramada Inn, North Columbus, last weekend.

Special guest speaker for the event was Mrs. Jo Isquierdo of California, second vice president of International ESA Council.

The Convention opened with a "school days" mixer Friday evening. Entertainment was by Michael O'Mally, disc jockey for WRFD Radio in Columbus. Beta Omega entered and won third place in the skit talent contest, which was written by Mrs. Charles Moore.

Saturday, members of Beta Omega and Alpha Theta attended the Convention assemblies and luncheon. Both chapters were participants in the song contest. Mrs. More of Beta Omega chapter wrote the words of the song which placed third in the contest.

Alpha Theta was among one of the 18 chapters in the state of Ohio presented the gold link award for their educational programs. The chapter was also presented the state philanthropic trophy for the money donated by the annual "bike ride for life."

On Sunday a church service and brunch were attended by the group. Those present were Mrs. John Bernard, Mrs. Paul Cox, Mrs. Don Gibbs, Mrs. Jerry Hoppes, Mrs. Jack Merriman, Mrs. Ron Ratliff, Mrs. Roger Thompson, Mrs. Loretta George, Mrs. Wayne Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Everhart, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hagler, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Haines, Mr. and Mrs. Gary McMurray and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moore.

LCW elects new officers

The October General Meeting of the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church Women was held recently in the lower church with fifteen persons in attendance.

It was announced that World Community Day will be held November 2nd at the Methodist Church. It was the consensus of the group to make a cash donation towards the purchase of new children's clothing for the Clothing Center. Tickets are also available for anyone interested in attending the luncheon.

Election of officers was held with the following slate elected: President, Mrs. Hilbert Meyer; vice-president, Mrs. Ora Burdge; secretary, Mrs. Darrell DeBolt; treasurer, Mrs. Carl Garrett; committee chairmen: outreach and fellowship, Mrs. Roger Miller; Christian action, Mr . James Puckett; worship, Mrs. Ned Wolfe and faith and life, (to be announced later).

Following the meeting, Mrs. Ralph Gebhart showed very interesting movies, pictures, and articles, from their trip to Peru.

The next circle meetings will be the Mary-Martha Circle at Mrs. Roger Miller's on November 12, and the Naomi Circle at Mrs. Ralph Gebhart's on November 14.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Colyer of Cleveland were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Dowler, 729 E. Market St.

Mrs. Charles (Tim) Botkin and daughter Jennifer of Triangle, Va., were visitors in the home of her mother and sister, Mrs. Ediwn Bramblett and Donna, 732 Yeoman St. the past week. They also visited with Mr. and Mrs. Terry Enochs. Dr. and Mrs. Tom Botkin of Muncie, Ind., visited at the Bramblett home also, having brought Mrs. Botkin and Jennifer from Muncie.

Jon Creamer, master of ceremonies for the program following the Western Roundup banquet at the South Side Church of Christ on Saturday, was assisted by Jim Creamer, minister of the Allensburg Church of Christ, who led the "Pickin' and Grinin" and a camp fire sing-along. Randy Creamer, a student at Kentucky Christian College, also sang and accompanied himself on the guitar.

Miss Begin completes wedding plans for Nov. 4

Miss Rebecca Jo Begin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Begin, 1332 Dayton Ave., has completed plans for her marriage to Mark Howard Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Russell of New Holland.

The open church wedding will be at 2:30 p.m. Nov. 4 in Grace United Methodist Church. The Rev. Allen Puffenberger and Rev. Prentis Spear will perform the wedding ceremony. Miss Elaine Stookey, organist, and Randy Woods, vocalist, will present nuptial music.

Miss Julie Begin, sister of the bride-elect, will be maid of honor. Mrs. Jack Michael will be matron of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Susie Forward of Worthington and Miss Polly Toomire of Urbana, will be the junior bridesmaid. Amy Toomire of Urbana will be the flower girl.

Tim Williams will serve as best man. Seating the wedding guests will be Steve Begin and Jerry Smith, both of Washington C.H. and Keith Bochard of New Holland. Master Mattew Williams will serve as ring bearer.

Hostesses for the reception in Fellowship Hall following the wedding ceremony will be Mrs. Roger Lewis of Findlay, Mrs. Roger Ingram, Mrs. Pat Denen and Mrs. Dale Jennings. Miss Janenen Begin will preside at the guest book, and Miss Cindy Hollingshead of Urbana will be in charge of the rice bags.

Paint Valley CF Board announces annual candy sale

The Paint Valley Camp Fire Council Board met in the CF office recently, when Frank Sanderson, president, announced the annual CF candy sale will begin Nov. 5. Mrs. Kathy Deakyne is chairman of the project this year. He also announced that a new film strip entitled, "A Way of Growing" will be ordered, to promote the CF program, and that 56 were present for the annual "Pow Wow" held at Camp Murdock recently.

Jean Gray of Dayton will be present for a special leader's training session to be held in First Presbyterian Church Nov. 7 from 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m.

The annual dinner-awards meeting is planned for Nov. 26 in Mahan Hall.

Those present for the meeting besides Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson, were Mr. and Mrs. David Sullivan of Chillicothe, Mrs. Don Wood, Mrs. Fred James, Mrs. Allen O. McClung, Mrs. David Moore and Paul Edgington.

Layette shower given for Mrs. Hughes

Mrs. Brenda Hughes was honored at a layette shower Sunday by hostesses Mrs. Beryl Kelley and Miss Carolyn Nungesser, in the home of Mrs. Glenn McCoy of Bloomingburg.

A pastel color scheme was carried out in the home decorations. A miniature bassinet containing a tiny doll was centered on the refreshment table, in front of which blocks spelled out "Baby Hughes."

Contest winners were Mrs. Elaine Cockerill, Mrs. Sue Evans, Mrs. Cleo Hoppes, who presented their prizes to the honored guest.

Later Mrs. Hughes opened her many gifts which had been placed in a bassinet.

Refreshments of cake, punch, mints, and nuts were served.

Invited guests included with the honored guest were Mrs. Cleo Hoppes, Mrs. Brenda Berner, Mrs. Sue Evans, Miss Cathy Newbrey, Mrs. Patty Kelley, Miss Susie Black, Mrs. Elaine Cockerill, Mrs. Ann Spahr, Mrs. Lloyd Fennig, Mrs. Kathy Lower, Mrs. Jenny Hoppes, Mrs. Jane Henry, Miss Gail Braden, Mrs. McCoy, Miss Nungesser, Mrs. Kelley and daughter Jodi.

Frost an angel food cake with slightly sweetened whipped cream; sprinkle the frosting with crushed butter toffee. The cake may be make from a mix or store-bought. Easy dessert and lovely for company.

When you package foods for the freezer, make sure thet the seal is very tight—an important precaution that insures keeping moisture in and air out.

Colman Council entertains

Member of Colman Council No. 5386 Knights of Columbus recently held a steak dinner in their council room for their wives and guest. Joe Peters was the chef doing the barbequeing.

Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bihl, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Boylan, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Boylan, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brocke, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Davis, Mr . and Mrs. Donald Del Ponte, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gettelfinger, Mr. and Mrs. William Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pero, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Pohlman, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Penwell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. William Stahl and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wehner. Guests were: Rt. Rev. Msgr. Leonard J. Fick of the Josephinum Pontifical College of Worthington, and Mrs. John Murphy. Chairman for the event was William Stahl.

Harvest theme prevails at meet

The Good Fellowship Class of First Christian Church met in the church for the recent class meeting. Kenneth Blair, president, conducted the meeting and Paul Thornhill gave the opening prayer. Devotions of a harvest theme were presented by Marvin Smith, who also read several appropriate poems which were inspirational and entertaining.

During the social hour the 25 present assembled at tables decorated with a fall and Halloween theme. Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Blair and Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

MW Committee to aid Indians

Thirteen members of the Martha Washington Committee on Indian Affairs, Daughters of the American Revolution, assembled in the home of Mrs. Willard Bitzer Monday evening, for an interesting 'chalk talk' presented by Miss Helen Slavens, who used the fall season and a patriotic theme for her drawings.

The group voted to give $10.00 to the St. Mary's Indian School in South Dakota, and $5.00 to the Helen Pouch Memorial. Members are to bring clothing to Mrs. Ronald Cornwell to be mailed to the Kate Duncan and Tamassee Indian Schools. Members will also bring Christmas gifts for teenagers at the Chilocco Indian School to the November 26 meeting to be held in the home of Mrs. Robert P. Harris.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Bitzer, Mrs. Zoe Garinger, Mrs. Byron Hinton, Mrs. Dean Powell, Mrs. Thomas J. Hancock and Mrs. James Kiger.

Delta CCL meets with Mrs. Gerber

Mrs. David Gerber welcomed the members of Delta Child Conservation League to her home. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Glenn Armintrout and Mrs. Wilbur Fleming.

Guest speaker for the evening was Ronald Lott, child psychologist in the Miami Trace School district, whose subject was "Learning of the Disabled Child." Mr. Lott told the group that a disabled child could be identified before arriving at school age, and that five per cent of all children having learning disabilities. Ohio sponsors such a chapter to aid these children.

Mrs. Charles Cunningham reported on the CCL Convention held in Toledo, when the theme was "Through the Eyes of a Child."

Members were reminded to bring a white elephant gift to the open November meeting.

Willing Workers meet in Hanawalt home

The members of the Willing Workers Class of the Madison Mills United Methodist Church met in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Hanwalt.

Mrs. John Melvin presented the devotions, and John Stamer conducted the meeting. Mrs. Gary Hidy reported the community calendars have been delivered to members who in turn are in the process of delivering them. All money and tally sheets must be in by Nov. 30.

A discussion was held concerning the possibility of the class giving a basket at Thanksgiving time to a needy family, of which Mrs. Melvin is chairman.

It was announced that the Columbus South District dinner will be Nov. 29 at 6:30 p.m. in the Glenwood United Methodist Church in Columbus.

The Bloomingburg-Madison Mills charge conference will be held in the Bloomingburg Methodist church at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 3.

Mr. Stamer appointed John Melvin, Alvin Johnson and Jon Delay to serve on the nominating committee. Mr. and Mrs. Hidy will be hosts for the November meeting, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Stamer.

Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Hanawalt and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Reid to Mr. and Mrs. Roger Dorn, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin and family, Mr. and Mrs. Stamer and children, Mr. and Mrs. Hidy and daughter, Mrs. Johnson, Rev. Frank Allen White and Jodi and Kathy Hanawalt.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

THURSDAY, OCT. 25

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Experiences of the past may give you the clues as to proper handling of this day's action. With correct procedure, you should do well.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Co-workers may oppose your tactics on the job, but that shouldn't discourage you. Your plans ARE good, so go ahead with them.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

If you aim straight and do not permit emotions or a one-sided viewpoint to throw you off course, you will know how to cope with ALL, not just some situations.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Use care in handling both job and family affairs. Don't take success for granted now. It must be earned — all the way.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

By investigating background information you receive, you may find a good way to improve your financial set-ups. But DO investigate. Don't act impulsively.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

You may not be in the best position to take action on a cherished project just now, but that needn't prevent you from planning.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Matters of minor importance could blow up out of proportion. Don't let them. Your quicksilver intuition and foresight should be a big help.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Take a second look before accepting new ideas or unusual propositions. Don't waste time and energy pursuing a will o' the wisp. Be especially careful about financial involvements.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

The risk of being taken in by your emotions or by fast-talkers is potent now. Safeguard your principles and your assets.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Stellar aspects indicate a new chance for advancement. Keep going in familiar areas and keep extracurricular activities in their proper place.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Uranus fairly generous. Dovetail activities with those of associates. Joint performances more resultful than solo ventures now.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Do not let a personal disappointment mar your overall perspective. Continue to aim for high goals. Your adeptness, know-how and intuition should be potent now.

YOU BORN TODAY are so vigorous in both work and play that, even though endowed with a robust constitution, you tend to run it down by overtaxing yourself. DON'T! You have fine executive ability, originality and enthusiasm. With your variety of talents and will power, and your very real desire for attainment, you should mold a happy, useful life. The Scorpio-born can pull themselves up from nowhere to a top position. You automatically know what pleases, usually cut red tape, getting at essentials quickly.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There've been a lotof cops 'n' robbers shows on the tube this season and most are pretty bad. Butsooner or later someone was bound to come up with something good.

It's finally happened with "Kojak," which premieres tonight on CBS-TV. Save time for it if you can, because it hasclass written all over it.

The proceedings star Telly Savalas as Theo Kojak, a New York police lieuenant who's so sardonic and hard-boild you get the feeling he warms up before work by sneering at babies.

Tnight's saga appears to have been lifted from a real-life drama of last yea, when some gunsels held up a Broklyn sporting goods store, then mae the patrons hostages when the polce showed up and surrounded the plae.

The TV version starts things off with an armored car toldup that goes awry when a passing citizen sees it in progress and notifies the law.

The law arrives, there's a gunfight andthe baddies flee, three of them in a panl truck and four others — one of them mortally wounded — in a car.

The gang in the car is chased through the treets of New York, finally getting traped by a roadblock. They dump the wounded accomplice on the street and dash inside a war surplus store, shoting a cop who also had run in the store to warn the clerks and customers there to get out.

Then, as the police surround the place and bring in an armored half-track, the three stickup men demand a jetliner and freedom, threatening to kill their five hostages if their demands aren't met in two hours.

The rest of the show has Savalas, brisk and efficient, trying to end the impasse without bloodshed. You know he will, but it's an exciting, gripping hour nonetheless.

The show has the ring of authenticity to it, particularly in its depiction of the theater-ofthe-absurd atmosphere that usually attends these particular situations in New York.

A large crowd gathers to watch the show, the ubiquitous TV crew is there to bring it all live to the folks at home and even delegates from the Hare Krishna sect show up to dance, chant and ring their finger cymbals.

The madness is nicely summed up when the crowd cheers and applauds because the gunsels have surrendered and are walking out, preceded by Kojak carrying the body of a policeman.

Blonds had more fun in ancient Rome too, research indicates

NEW YORK (AP) — Apparently, ancent Romans thought blonds had moe fun. Blond wigs imported from Gemany or made from the hair of Geman captives were common, says theWorld Book Encyclopedia.

Roman women also dyed their hair as part of their routine, and some went so ar as to sprinkle their locks with gold dust in their efforts to disarm a Cerurion or two.

Women are still sprinkling "gold dus" in their hair, World Book notes. Tody, an estimated $3.5 billion a year is pent in more than 180,000 beauty shos in the United States alone.

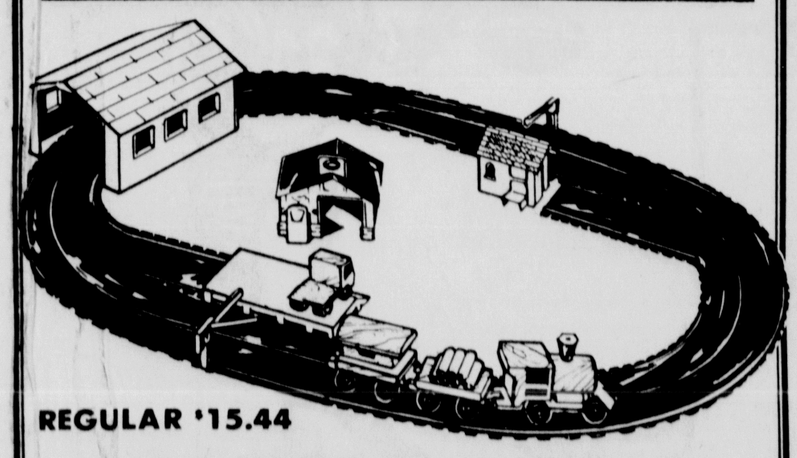

Sme 2.3 million barrels of crude oil moe daily on Canadian pipelines.

Grain prices hurt poor nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — A United Nations food authority has touched on a tender nerve — food shortages in poor countries — which has rarely been exposed by Nixon administration officials who have cited repeatedly the economic advantages to farmers of high grain prices caused by record grain exports.

Dr. Addeke H. Boerma, director-general of the U.N.'s Food and Agriculture Organization, put it this way:

"The rise in prices has two sides to it. Looked at in one way, it benefits exporting countries, not only in the developed, but in the developing world.

"But when it comes to the harmful effects — the increasingly heavier costs of food for ordinary people, the developing countries are much worse off than the developed."

In other words, according to Boerma, the world prices of wheat and other food grains have risen so much that many poor nations cannot afford enough to feed their people.

Boerma, whose comments were in a speech Tuesday night at an International Development conference here, called upon the United States and Russia to support his plan for setting up what he called a "minimum level of world food security," through a buildup of grain reserves to handle future food crisis situations.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has spoken consistently against government-owned "strategic reserves" of grain held back to help act as a buffer against rising food prices.

The U.S. grain supply, Butz has said, would be better left to the private trade and in farmers' hands on a supply and demand basis. Butz says farmers can boost incomes only if a thriving export market is maintained.

Boerma has warned for many months about real and impending hunger in many parts of the world. Record harvests have helped this year, but the relief is only temporary, he says.

"With world stocks down to a precariously low level and with the developing countries in an especially vulnerable position, the world will depend once again on a good crop year in the 1974-75 season in order to scramble home to safety," Boerma said.

High school official shot

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A Barberton High School official was reported in serious condition after being shot three times by a pupil in the school office.

Frederick T. Crewse Jr., 25, an administrative assistant at the school, was in the intensive care unit of Barberton Citizens Hospital being treated for wounds on the right and left side of his chest.

A hospital spokesman said the third shot was deflected by a ring on Crewse's right hand, but the hand was bruised.

Barberton police said they were searching for a 17-year-old youth.

Police said Crewse, who is dean of boys, had called the youth to the office during the noon lunch hour Tuesday to reprimand him for excessive absences.

Classes were called off for the afternoon following the shooting.

Sohio chief sees shortages of oil

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Charles E. Spahr, chairman of the Standard Oil Co. (Ohio), says "recent developments in the Middle East and North Africa" have cut into Sohio's crude oil sources and that more oil shortages are in prospect.

Spahr made the statement as he announced a big jump in nine-month earnings from $40.4 million in 1972 to $77.8 million this year.

Without extraordinary items totaling $15.3 million from sale of oil properties and uranium interests, the nine-month total was $62.5 million, or $3.40 a share, a 55 per cent increase.

Sales for the nine months ended Sept. 30 totaled $1,095,400,000, compared to $1,005,800,000 for the first nene months of 1972.

For the third quarter, net income totaled $18 million, or 97 cents a share, compared to $15.8 million, or 87 cents a share, for the third quarter of 1972.

Spahr warned of the possibility that Sohio may not be able to maintain refinery operations at scheduled rates because of the "growing shortage of crude oil."

He said unless Sohio can buy more supplies "it is likely that our company will fall substantially short of crude oil it needs to fulfill its operating plan for the coming year.

"Recent developments in the Middle East and North Africa have caused Sohio to lose crude oil from that area, and prospects for replacing it are conjectural."

A company spokesman said Spahr was referring to announced plans of some Arab states to curtail oil shipments to the United States.

Spahr said the oil shortage is compounded by the federal government's failure to implement a mandatory allocation program applying to all oil companies.

"If we are unable to obtain an adequate supply of crude oil and the coming winter should be unusually severe," he said, "the company will be forced to make even stricter allocations to industrial, commercial, transportation and construction industry customers to maintain supplies to our farm, residential heat and vital service customers."

Man indicted for threats against Nixon

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A federal grand jury has returned indictments charging income tax evasion, threatening to kill President Nixon, bank robbery and possession of stolen bonds, U.S. Atty. Frederick M. Coleman says.

Coleman said Tuesday the grand jury charged Henry J. Taylor Jr., 37, of Cleveland with making verbal threats to kill President Nixon. The threats were made on three late August occasions, the attorney said.

Taylor's indictment said witnesses heard him say he wanted to kill Nixon because he felt the President had stolen money from the people and that he would use sniper tactics in shooting Nixon.

Theodis Bankhead, 23, of Cleveland, was indicted on charges of possessing 149 U.S. savings bonds stolen from Akron area homes and valued at $5,100.

Raymond G. Harrison, 38, of Youngstown was indicted for the July 30 armed robbery of Home Savings and Loan Co., Youngstown, in which $2,242 was taken.

The income tax evasion indictments were returned against:

—Carl F. Torch, Chesterland, owner of Torch Nurseries and Landscape Design, for the years 1968-1970;

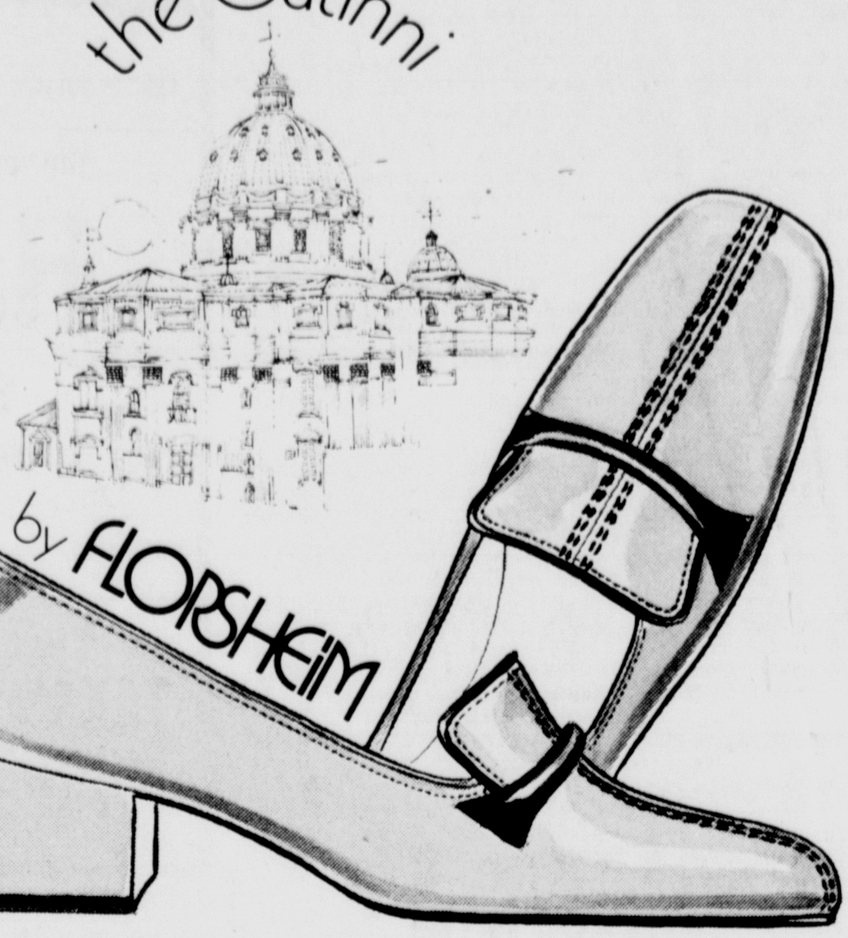

—Mr. and Mrs. Delmar R. Shaner, Magnolia, operators of a trucking and hauling business, for 1967-1970; and

—Henry J. Jackson, Shaker Heights, a cement contractor, for 1970-1971.

SGT. ROBERT J. GOODSON

Take it from First Sgt. Robert J. Goodson, a military career is both challenging and rewarding.

Sgt. Goodson, who has been the keystone of National Army Guard units based at the Armory in Washington C.H. for 23 years, has been promoted to operations, training and readiness specialist for the 73rd Infantry Brigade headquarters at the Sullivant Avenue Armory in Columbus.

He has said many times that he turned down opportunities to attend Army officer training schools and a commission because he enjoyed his work as first sergeant and administrative supply technician with Company A, First Battalion, 166th Infantry since Sept. 1, 1950.

Surprising as it may seem, Sgt. Goodson is a career Civil Service employe, although the last 23 years have been in military positions. He has had the designation of Army National Guard technician.

In that capacity, he has processed and helped train approximately 2,000 young men for Army National Guard service. He has served under nine different company commanders of Company M, Company C and Company A, all based at the Armory. Some of his previous company commanders are now colonels, lieutenant colonels, majors, captains and lieutenants.

PRIOR to his service with Company A, and its previous designations, Sgt. Goodson served with the Army in the Pacific Theater, Japan and the Philippines, during World War II, bringing his total military service to 26 years.

The Army Guard has achieved a long and enviable record through his long and dedicated service. The company has always received superior ratings at inspections, credited with outstanding and well trained personnel, and a statewide reputation as a strong and effective operational unit.

In his new assignment to the Buckeye Brigade, Sgt. Goodson will be working fulltime as an operations, training and readiness specialist. The Buckeye Brigade is comprised of units from many Ohio cities and is one of three in the three-state 38th Infantry Division, which includes Ohio, Michigan and Indiana. He commutes daily from his farm here on Mt. Olive Road, west of Washington C. H.

Selection of his successor with Company A here has not been made yet but is expected to be soon.

Air pollution alert is posted in Northeast Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The weatherman forecast some relief, but the state Environmental Protection Agency has ordered an air-pollution alert for Cleveland, Steubenville and nearby areas.

The National Weather Service, has issued an air stagnation advisory for the entire state.

The air-pollution index was 252 Tuesday morning for Monroe, Jefferson, Belmont, Columbiana and Cuyahoga counties the EPA said.

An alert is ordered when the index exceeds 200. Under an alert, industries are notified they may be required to cut back some operations.

The weather service forecast winds today that might break up the stagnant air.

BARN RAISERS — Some of the 600 Amish who gathered to replace a burned barn at Berlin, Ohio, are silhouetted as they worked on the rafters of the roof.

Saxbe thinks tapes release red herring

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — President Nixon's surprise surrender of the Watergate tapes may have been a ruse to draw Congress off a more serious path, Sen. William Saxbe, R-Ohio, said Tuesday.

Saxbe theorized for reporters that had the tapes contained evidence dangerous to the President, "They would have been destroyed before the investigation ever started."

"We're being drawn off on a false scent, perhaps," said Saxbe, a maverick Republican critic of the Nixon Administration.

The Committee to Re-elect the President, not the Republican Party, should shoulder the blame for the Watergate affair, Saxbe said.

"If the Republican party and state party organizations had been in charge, this would have never happened," he said.

"I saw something coming down there in Washington that was wrong, but I couldn't do anything about it," Saxbe said of his record of criticizing Nixon. Saxbe recently announced he will not be a candidate for re-election in 1975, stating primarily reasons of disillusionment with the Senate.

On other matters, Saxbe said the Senate should confirm at once Nixon's appointment of U.S. Rep. Gerald Ford, R-Mich., as a successor to former Vice President Spiro Agnew.

Should Nixon leave office without a vice president, Saxbe said, U.S. Rep. Carl Albert, D-Okla., the House Speaker, would be President.

"Albert isn't qualified and doesn't want it," Saxbe said.

Prosecutor still needed, Goodell says

GAMBIER, Ohio (AP)—Congress should reconstitute the office of special Watergate prosecutor with Archibald Cox at the head, former U.S. Sen. Charles Goodell of New York said here Tuesday night.

The liberal Republican commented freely on Nixon's latest actions in the Watergate investigation during a speech at Kenyon College on civil liberties in the United States.

"We had an ongoing investigation of the Watergate affair by an independent prosecutor, then information was leaked out that Cox was investigating other issues involving the President. Nixon fired Cox and replaced him with one of his minions.

"Under these circumstances, and considering Nixon's track record, we cannot have any confidence in the Justice Department. To me these are grounds for impeachment unless Nixon is willing to see that there is a vigorous and open investigation," Goodell said.

Goodell, who served nine years in the House before filling the Senate vacancy left by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's assassination also said Nixon's decision to release personal tapes would "probably slow down the move in Congress for impeachment."

Goodell lost his bid for reelection after former Vice President Spiro Agnew campaigned against him in the state.

Hamilton County wins federal funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Small Business Administration has declared Hamilton County a major disaster area because of flooding from June to early October.

Frank D. Ray, Columbus district director of the SBA, said on Tuesday the designation for the county and adjacent areas means home and business owners will be able to apply for loans at five per cent interest.

JOHNNY PAYCHECK

Greenfield books Johnny Paycheck

GREENFIELD—Country music star Johnny Paycheck will appear here Thursday for a benefit performance in the McClain High School auditorium.

All proceeds from the 8 p.m. and 10 p.m. shows will go toward making Christmas happier for needy youngsters in the Greenfield area.

A native of Greenfield, Paycheck has risen steadily in the country music field since his No. 1 hit of "Don't Take Her, She's All I Got" in 1971. Since then he has had two other hits and his latest recording, Mr. Lovemaker," also is headed to the top of the country charts.

Tickets will be available at the doors for both performances.

2 men captured in bank robbery

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— East Cleveland police engaged in a manhunt in Forest Hills Park before capturing two men and recovering about $11,000 allegedly taken in a bank robbery in the suburb Tuesday.

Police said Patrolman Robert Bayerl, 31, was wounded in an exchange of gunfire with three holdup men outside the Continental Bank branch. Bayerl was reported in satisfactory condition at Huron Road Hospital with an ear wound.

Police said one of the holdup men fled on foot and the other two jumped into Bayerl's cruiser and sped off.

The wettest spot on earth is said to be Mt. Waialeale, Hawaii, with an average annual rainfall of 460 inches.

More milk fund evidence bared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shortly after he was promised $2 million in campaign contributions from the dairy industry, President Nixon imposed import quotas on ice cream, cheese and other dairy products.

The promise was made in a letter to Nixon Dec. 16, 1970, which also requested action on the quotas. "We write you both as advocates and supporters," wrote Patrick J. Hillings, lawyer for the Associated Milk Producers, Inc.

"The time is ripe politically and economically to impose the recommended quotas," he said. "All that is necessary is a simple proclamation ..."

Nixon issued that proclamation Dec. 31, 1970, just 15 days after the letter was sent. The Associated Press disclosed the existence of the letter Monday and later obtained a copy of it.

The White House and Hillings were asked for comment on the matter. Neither responded.

"This letter discusses a matter of some delicacy and of significant political impact," Hillings wrote Nixon.

Hillings, a former Republican congressman from Nixon's old district in California, said milk producers had "followed our advice explicitly and will do so in the future. AMPI contributed $135,000 to Republican candidates in the 1970 election."

He then said the dairy group was working to set up channels "for AMPI to contribute $2 million for your re-election."

In the next paragraph, Hillings brought up the matter of quotas. He noted that the U.S. Tariff Commission had urged imposition of the quotas on Sept. 21, 1970, nearly three months earlier. "No presidential proclamation has been issued," he noted.

"The problem is this," he continued. "The dairy industry cannot understand why these recommendations were not implemented very quickly. The longest the Democrats ever took to implement a Tariff Commission dairy recommendation was 16 days."

He complained of low federal price supports for farm goods, and said, "Farmers generally are unhappy with the economy. You know our farm belt losses in the election."

The quotas Nixon imposed limit imports of ice cream, lowfat cheese, certain chocolate products and certain animal feeds containing milk or milk products. The President's action on quotas came less than three months before a controversial administration decision to increase the level of federal price supports on milk.

Public interest groups are suing the administration over that price boost, contending that it was a payoff to the dairy industry for more than $400,000 in campaign contributions that began to flow into the Nixon campaign three days before the increase was announced.

The first city in the United States to turn to the ocean for its regular supply of fresh water is Key West, Fla., which desalts the sea water.

A most unique educational facility?

Great Oaks progress outlined for Rotarians

Members of the Washington C. H. Rotary Club heard a glowing progress report about the Great Oaks Joint Vocational School District at their noon luncheon Tuesday in the Country Club.

Eugene Kavanagh, superintendent of the Great Oaks Joint Vocational School, highlighted the three-man program which included brief talks by Fred L. Domenico and Kenneth A. Payton, both members of the Great Oaks Board of Education.

Kavanagh, who spoke to Rotarians three years ago concerning the plans for the former Clinton County Air Force Base at Wilmington to be used as a vocational school, said the Laurel Oaks campus has the opportunity of becoming the most unique educational facility in the nation considering the tremendous support received and the fact that the site was donated by the federal government.

He said nearly $3 million has been spent renovating the former air base. A total of 35 buildings, formerly used by U.S. Air Force Reserve and Ohio Air National Guard units, have been remodeled and several new buildings have been constructed.

IN SPEAKING about the potential of the four school campuses in the Great Oaks District, Kavanagh said the district has a tax duplicate of $2,400,000,000 and by the end of next year the district will be operating on an annual budget of about $8 million. Funds for the school district are equally divided between local taxes and state support.

Kavanagh predicted that within two years 7,500 students will be enrolled in the schools on the four campuses. The adult participation, such as night classes, will exceed 7,500 in enrollment, he said.

Domenico pointed out that there are nearly 3,000 students enrolled in the Great Oaks District this year and more than 800 of those are students at Laurel Oaks. He said the Laurel Oaks campus operates basically on a six-hour day and the afternoon sessions are set aside for actual work experience with classroom instruction in the mornings.

Domenico said the vocational school is actually an extension of the high school curriculum. For example, he said, there are 55 course offerings at Washington Senior High School and the vocational school makes 64 more available to the high school student. Domenico pointed out that the vocational school gives the student a "marketable skill" and trains him or her to become a productive employe.

PAYTON said the vocational school is "part of your school district and you should be interested." He urged Rotarians to take a tour of the facilities and to support a proposed technical college which is now being delayed at the state level. Payton said the board has applied for a charter for the two-year technical college.

President Phil Grover conducted the business meeting and the program was arranged by Marshall D. Boggs, former superintendent of Washington C. H. city schools.

Student guests were Garth Cox, of WSHS, and Jeff Hux, of MTHS. Other guests were Superintendents Edwin Nestor and Guy Foster and Payton with Boggs, Roy South with Robert Lisk and Dick Karnes with Don Pierce. Visiting Rotarians were Gene Garrison and Lynn Rainsberger, both of Mount Sterling, and Walter Garman, of Wilmington.

SUPER GIRL — Juliet Forester, 24-year-old artist, has been selected as Cosmopolitan magazine's 1973 super girl.

Sohio closes two stations

Two Sohio service stations here have been closed and at least one of them will be abandoned, John Glenn of the company's real estate department in Columbus said Wednesday.

The property at Court and Hinde streets, owned by Sohio, will be sold. The pumps have been taken out, but the company hopes to include the underground tanks with the real estate when it is sold, Glenn said.

The station at the Parks Coal Yard, U.S. 35 just beyond the city corporation line, is on ground leased from Oscar Parks. It has been closed and Glenn said the company wants to sell the buildings, tanks, pumps and the lease.

In response to rumors that Sohio is planning to put up a station on the U.S. 35 bypass in the vicinity of the Jamison Road, west of Washington C. H., Glenn said the company may purchase or lease some land for a station in that area, but he emphasized nothing definite has been done. He did not say where the station would be located, if at all, or when it might be constructed.

Some Ohio classrooms may be cold

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some Ohio classrooms may be cold this winter unless school districts start planning now to conserve dwindling fuel supplies, state School Superintendent Martin Essex warned Tuesday.

Essex spent the day talking with school officials, refiners and fuel marketers about the current energy shortage and what schools could do to conserve fuel.

The nationwide shortage hit home this fall when 11 of Ohio's school districts were unable to contract for long-term fuel allocations because they were new customers, Essex said.

Suppliers have indicated there may even be a more serious problem this winter if weather is severe.

Essex said he hoped new federal fuel allocation regulations, to go into effect Nov. 1, would ease the shortage.

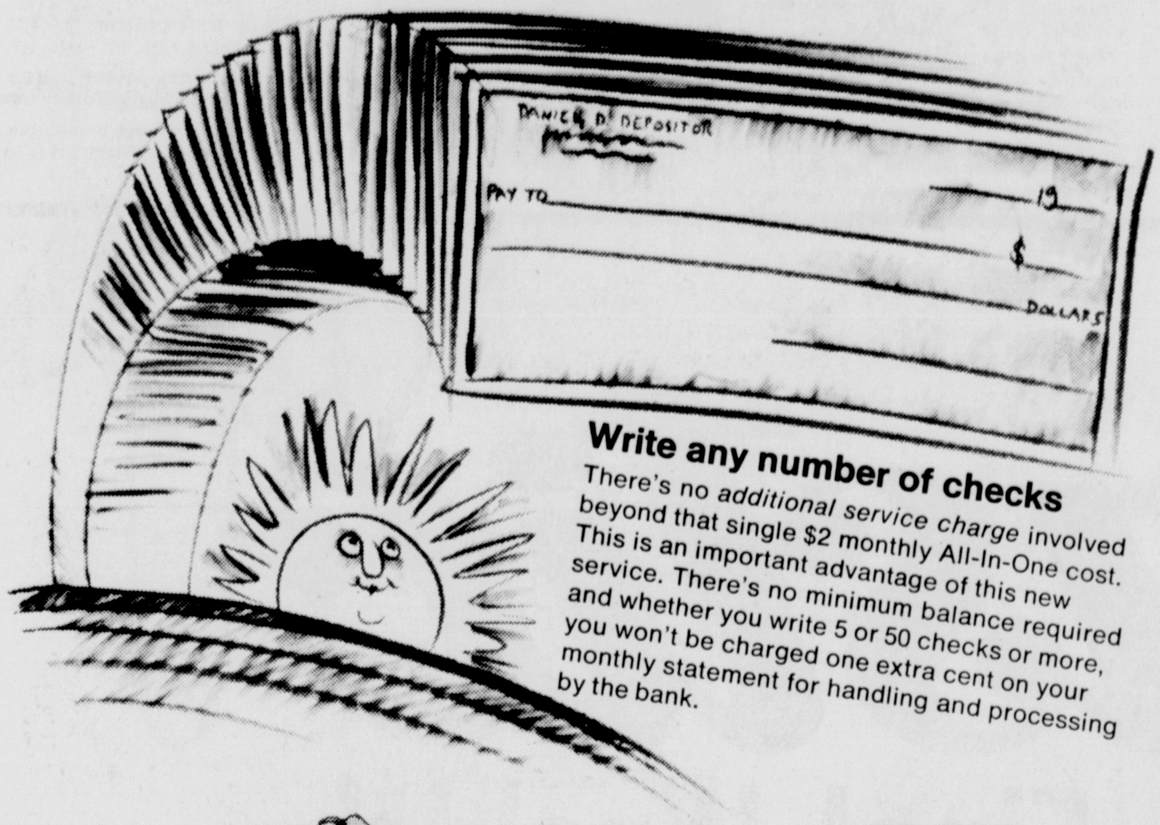

Meanwhile, he said, the state Department of Education would develop guidelines for schools to follow to conserve energy.

Among the recommendations, he said, are extended Christmas vacations, fewer gas-consuming bus stops and reduced lighting for custodians.

Gary Bays named to head DECA

By ANN CAMPBELL

The Distributive Education Club of American recently elected officers for the 1973-1974 year.

Gary Bays is the new DECA president, with Jay Carter serving as vice-president. Jeanne Campbell is the secretary, Sally Noble and Libby Raypole treasurers, Debbie Hildreth sergeant-at-arms, DeDe Southward reporter, and Jerry Tuttle parliamentarian. These officers, along with Mr. Tom Yates, the advisor, are planning a number of activities for the coming year.

DeDe Southward, Sally Noble, Robin Leasure, Debbie Hildreth, and Diane Brown are nominees for the Miss Ohio D.E.C.A. contest to be held Oct. 30.

The Fall Delegates Conference is Nov. 9 and 10, and District Competition is on January 21, 1974. Miami Trace will send representatives to the National Leadership Conference in Chicago April 28 through May 1.

Junior and senior D.E.C.A. members are planning to enter a float in the Christmas parade December 1. On the Friday before the parade, senior members will be giving a breakfast for their employers.

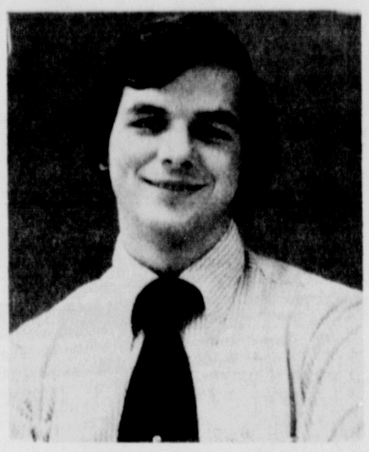

Introducing . . .

By DAWN SCHLICHTER

Now teaching geometry and general math at Miami Trace is Mr. Roger France. Mr. France, a native of Lighthouse Point, Fla., is also an assistant advisor of the Hi-Y club.

Mr. France attended the College of Wooster and majored in physics. He holds a bachelor of arts degree. In college, he was the chief programmer for a radio station, participated in all intramural sports, and was the vice-president of his fraternity.

Music and camping are among Mr. France's hobbies. When asked his impressions of Miami Trace, he said that he feels lucky to get a job at MT and thinks it is a nice place to teach. Mr. France is currently residing in Wilmington.

Officers named for FBL group

By PHIL GARRINGER

Election of officers, discussion of field trips and money making projects were the topics of discussion at the Future Business Leaders meeting recently.

Mr. George Domby presided at the meeting until the president was elected. Shirley Tolle was elected president. Other officers elected were Susan Liston, vice-president; Sue Green, secretary; Kathy Dennewitz, treasurer; and Cookie Tolan, reporter.

The club discussed a possible field trip to Lazarus and decided to collect dues of $1 per person.

Fire Chief speaks to FFA group

By SANDI KELLENBERGER

"To prevent fire losses, you have to start at the bottom of the ladder." Joe Denen, Washington C. H. Fire Chief, began his talk on Fire Prevention with this statement at the FFA meeting held during an activity period recently.

Along with telling the members about Fire Prevention week, which was Oct. 7-13, he spoke about the use of fire extinguishers, causes of fires and the requirements you must meet to become a fireman.

Mr. Denen listed many causes of fires, such as inadequate wiring, careless smoking, heaters or furnaces, children playing with matches, stopped-up chimneys and arson.

Mr. Denen closed by encouraging everyone to help prevent and control fires.

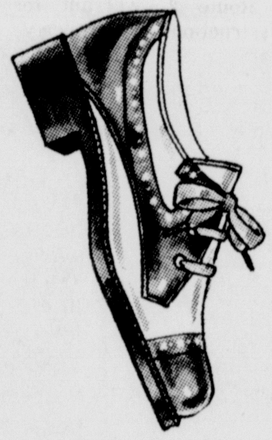

President Gary Taylor conducted the meeting.

Check fraud, theft, drug charges heard

Four of nine persons scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Tuesday were charged with victimizing local business establishments. Three of them were charged with check fraud, a fourth with shoplifting.

Sharon A. Knisley, 25, Rt. 3, Washington C. H., was found guilty on two counts of fraud in connection with checks she had cashed at the Super Shoe Mart, N. Fayette St. The checks were for $1.04 and $24.96. She was fined $50 and costs on each count by acting Municipal Judge John P. Case.

Linda Kelley, Hillsboro, was fined $100 and costs for passing a $15 bogus check at Sea-way, and Lorraine Clark, 23, Columbus, was fined $100 and costs for a $15.67 check fraud at Buckeye Mart.

Shirley J. Blackburn, Blanchester was found guilty of petty larceny after she had taken $15 in merchandise from Sea-way. She was fined $100 and costs.

David Hotl, 21, Columbus, was given a $250 fine and a suspended 30-day jail term for possession of marijuana.

Charges of disturbing the peace filed against Jean A. Tucker, 33, of 932 Millwood Ave., were dismissed at the request of the prosecuting witness. She had been arrested on a private warrant.

M. Jay Putney, 21, of U.S. 62-SE, was fined $25 and costs for malicious destruction of property.

Two men, Floyd A. Lyons, 43, of 107 Water St., and Harry J. Gaughan, 64, Brooklyn, Ohio, each forfeited $50 bond when they failed to appear on charges of public intoxication.

Property damage crashes reported

Sheriff and Police departments report three accidents Tuesday. There were no injuries.

Striking a stopped car at a traffic light brought a Portsmouth man a charge of failure to maintain assured clear distance at 4:20 p.m. Tuesday.

The accident occurred at Elm and Fayette streets. Jean Bowman, 40, of 9 Brookside Center, reported moderate damage to her car when it was struck in the rear by another driver Roy F. Bost, 35.

A collision in the K & K bait store parking lot at 12:11 p.m. Tuesday involved Lucinda K. Self, 24, of Route 6 and Nick A. Vrettos, 72, of 401 E. Temple St. There was moderate damage.

Florence M. Turny, 63, of Springfield, oversteered while cutting back to traffic on US 35 and went off the right side of the road, into a fence and came to rest in a soybean field. Moderate damage was done to the auto but there were no injuries.

Arrests

SHERIFF — Tuesday, Shelby R. Martin, 30, of 225 Olive St., speeding; George F. Dixon, 47, of 516 Columbus Ave., speeding; Coral I. Merritt, 52, of Route 5, warrant for passing stopped school bus; Merle Jones Jr., 18, and Terry Lynn Jones, 22, of New Holland, disturbing the peace by fighting.

POLICE — Tuesday, Lorraine Clark, 23, Columbus, bad checks; Michael J. Putney, 21, Route 2, warrant for malicious destruction of property; Deanna Anderson, 20, Waverly, running a red light; Tony Cottrill, 18, Leesburg, assault warrant.

Coast Guard searches for man on lake

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Coast Guard rescue vessels were searching Lake Erie today for Myron Watson, 66, of Euclid, reported overdue on a trip from Cleveland to Pelee Island, the Coast Guard said.

Watson was the only person aboard a 38-foot white and turquoise cabin cruiser, the Ken W. IV, the Coast Guard said.

Furniture buyers return

Bill Rowe and Roland Holthouse have returned after a week's buying trip to the Southern Furniture Market in High Point, N. C. In addition they shopped many other furniture manufacturers in North Carolina.

Crowd tops 500 at WSHS open house

More than 300 adults and between 200 and 250 students attended an open house held Tuesday night at Washington Senior High School.

Principal Fred Jones said, "It was the most successful open house I've seen during my teaching career."

The emphasis of the open house was a tour of the high school building where a number of students were involved in everyday activities. The drill team and cheerleaders were practicing and the ROTC cadets were marching in the gymnasium, while students manned mock classes and were conducting chemistry experiments and working math problems on the blackboards. Office helpers were also on duty.

The guests were greeted by the Future Teachers of America group. Mothers received blue or white carnations and the fathers received car decals denoting the top-ranked Washington C.H. football team.

The tour of the building was conducted by ROTC cadets with 10 parents in a group. Keith Stimpert, Student Council president, welcomed the visitors and introduced faculty members. The invocation was given by Bruce Gilmore, of the Hi-Y Club. Entertainment was provided by the WSHS choir, under the direction of Charles Shaffer.

Parents were allowed time to become acquainted with instructors, and refreshments were served by the Future Homemakers of America group in the cafeteria. Door Prizes, sponsored by the two DECA classes, were awarded and the benediction was delivered by Michelle Davis, of the Y-Teen Club.

Commissioners accept bid on fleet coverage

The Fayette County Board of Commissioners Tuesday afternoon accepted one of three bids submitted at an earlier meeting for fleet insurance coverage of all county-owned vehicles.

Commissioners accepted a bid of $4,936.75 per year submitted by the Charles Sheridan Co., Washington C. H., for fleet insurance. Sheridan's bid was $1,460.31 lower than the next lowest bidder.

The bids for fleet insurance were opened by commissioners at the Oct. 1 meeting, but no action was taken at that time. Other bids submitted were Richard R. Willis Insurance Co., $6,832, and Pennington Insurance Co., $6,397.06.

The board also agreed to advertise for bids for office equipment for the Fayette County Sheriff's Department. The bids will be opened at 10 a.m. Nov. 27. Commissioners entered into a maintenance agreement with Boyland and Cannon Electronics Co., 135 N. Fayette St., for service on communications equipment.

Report vandalism at Madison Mills

Vandals struck Madison Mills School between 7:30 p.m. Monday and 6 a.m. Tuesday.

Principal Michael Yambor reported that profanities had been written in soap on the blacktop and the windows.

Three men from Circleville, whose original intentions were to trim trees in Jeffersonville, wound up on open container charges for drinking publicly, instead.

The men, Thomas Lee Hoffman, 24, Charles B. Robinson, 24, and Roger Howard, 22, were told Tuesday that Jeffersonville didn't need any trees trimmed. They changed their plans.

City school grading period may be changed

The nine-week grading period in the city schools may be changed back to the previous six-week period if the majority of parents prefer the shorter one, Hugh Rea, elementary school coordinator, and Fred L. Domenico, a member of the school board, told the Sunnyside Parent-Teacher Organization Tuesday night.

The question was brought up during the business session by Don Belles. He said the parents he has talked with would rather get their children's grade cards every six week as in the past.

The meeting, the first of the new school year, followed a potluck supper. It was conducted by Mrs. Ed Warning, the president, who appointed two standing committees: social, Mrs. James Richard, Mrs. Charles Harris and Mrs. Marlene McCri, and program, Mr. and Mrs. Belles and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bonecutter.

THE FOUR candidates for the school board, Domenico, seeking re-election, and Mrs. Robert J. Lee, Philip Morrow and John Wedgewood, spoke briefly on behalf of their candidacies. Two will be elected Nov. 6.

Richard Maddux explained the need for the .02 mill levy for the Health Department, and Mrs. Warning urged support of the 2-mill additional levy and 1-mill levy renewal for the schools which will come to a vote at the November election.

Principal Henry Best introduced the six teachers and reported that the PTO now has a membership of 171. The PTO voted to have a party for the third grade pupils, who led the signup with 63 new members. The sixth grade won the banner for having the most parents at the meeting.

After adjournment most of the group went to the open house at the Senior High School.

Shock probation analysis eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A better way must be found to determine what happens to prisoners released on "shock" probation in Ohio, the chairman of a legislative study commitee said Tuesday.

Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, told his Legislative Service Commission Study Committee on Program Evaluation that the present system enables the Adult Parole Authority to keep track of prisoners for only a year.

George F. Denton, chief of the parole authority, conceded this was the case, but said part of the problem lies in the fact that the 40 county common pleas courts which operate their own probation systems do not share information completely or regularly with the state agency.

Henry Grinnes, superintendent of probation development for the APA, suggested the legislature might pass a law mandating a uniform statewide information system. The APA handles probation and parole work in 48 counties.

Maloney asked the APA officials to come before his interim study committee after he was "startled," he said, by reading in an LSC staff report that a third of those on shock probation went back to prison over a four year period.

Denton explained that the figures show the number of returnees for all reasons, including parole violations, and are not valid as a measurement of the success or failure of the seven-year-old shock probation system.

The legislature authorized the state's judges in 1966 to place prisoners on probation after they had experienced the shock of having been incarcerated for a minimum of 130 days.

In 1966, a total of 85 convicts received shock probation, and five were returned after new convictions—or 5.8 per cent.

In 1971, there were 150 who came back among 1,688 placed on probation, or 8.9 per cent. The highest was in 1968 when 10 per cent of 480 placed on probation were convicted of new offenses.

SCOL road trip confronts Panthers

MT hopes for third loop victory Friday

BY DENNIS STAPLETON

Record-Herald Sports Editor

Head coach Fred Zechman must maintain a high spirit of enthusiasm among his players for this week's contest with winless Greenfield. After a disappointing loss last week to Wilmington, the once aggressive Panthers must pull together the pieces and become aggressive again.

The Panthers' loss to Wilmington gave the South Central Ohio League a clear leader with two teams tied in the second slot.

Undefeated and unscored upon Washington C.H. remains atop the league ladder with Miami Trace and Wilmington nesting on the second step with one loss apiece. Wilmington has lost to Washington C.H. and Miami Trace has lost to Wilmington to account for the single fault for each team.

BUT THIS Friday brings added pressure on Miami Trace.

After a good showing against Hillsboro and a very good outing against defending league champion Circleville, the bottom fell out of the Panthers bread and butter basket against a talented Wilmington team.

Against Hillsboro, Jeff Sagar provided the offensive punch with 114 yards and one touchdown. In the battle with Circleville Doug Ford furnished the offensive entertainment with 153 yards and two touchdowns. But against Wilmington the talented duo was held to 72 yards between them. Although Sagar did provide the only Panthers score.

Also in the Wilmington game, the gifted running and passing quarterback for the Panthers, Tom Riley, fell short of his usual performance. Against Hillsboro, Riley tossed for one score and ran for two others plus threw for two sets of extra points. In the Circleville game, Riley passed for one touchdown and ran three extra points. But while fighting a twisted ankle and a strong Wilmington defense, Riley collected no points and was held to a minus 29 yards rushing.

So as one might imagine a team can be expected to be down after suffering a loss to a team that the Panthers ordinarily could have defeated.

Coach Zechman stated before Tuesday's practice that the Panthers, "had lost all the aggressiveness from the Circleville game and the defensive consistency that the Panthers had maintained through several games eluded them in the Wilmington contest. We held Wilmington for several plays but always allowed them to break away for a long gainer or a score", Zechman pointed out. He went on to say that, "a team must have consistency in both offensive and defensive line charges to become a winning ball club. What we did against Circleville, Wilmington did against us," Zechman explained.

Well, what Miami Trace has to do to Greenfield is what the Panthers did against both Hillsboro and Circleville and that's win.

Greenfield, under the guidance of rookie head coach Fred Brisker, will be hoping to snap a seven-game losing streak in the SCOL encounter Friday night at Greenfield. The Tiger offense has been unproductive while the defense has allowed over 100 points.

The Highland Countians are 0-4 inside the SCOL race after losing to Circleville 21-6, Madison Plains 12-8, Washington C.H. 34-0 and Hillsboro20-12. The Tigers have also dropped three non-league games. Springfield Shawnee 19-0, Chillicothe 14-0 and London 24-6.

That makes a total of only 32 points scored for the Tigers and 144 points tallied against Greenfield.

Brisker, a 22-year-old Miami of Ohio University product, has a huge offensive line which averages 208 pounds.

ANCHORING the Greenfield offensive line is John Free, a 6-foot-3, 220-pound senior who won All-SCOL honorable mention honors a year ago, and Doug Morehead, a 6-foot-4, 280-pound senior. Free will man the left guard spot and Morehead is the left tackle. On the right side of the line, Dave Addington, 230-pounder, and 220-pound junior Jack Kinzer will be at the guard and tackle posts, respectively. Jay Harmount, a 150-pounder, is the center.

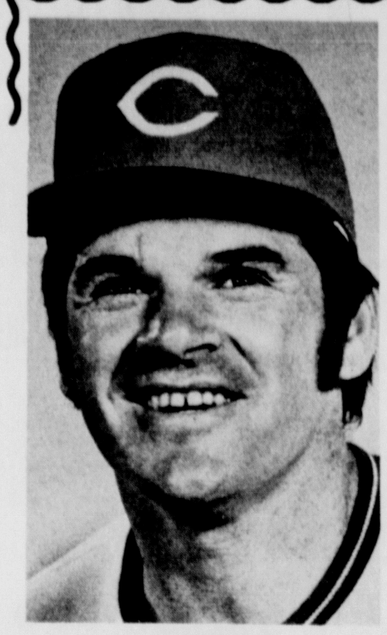

The ground-oriented Tigers have Marion Blake, 198-pound fullback, and Gary Barr, a 180-pound tailback, to get their rushing attack going, along with the team's leading receiver Alan Roark and halfback Brad Adams.

Sophomore Kevin Kensinger, a 6-foot-0, 150-pounder, has filled in for Dan Strain, who has been injured, but returned last week against Hillsboro, at the quarterback spot. Sophomore Tim Gossett and Butch Miller are the ends in Greenfield's power I-formation.

Defensively, where the Tigers use a 5-2 monster formation, Max Fultz, a 165-pound senior, is the middle guard, although Strain did play that position last week in the Hillsboro contest. Free and Addington are the tackles with Jim Ganger and Barr at the ends. Harmount and Blake are the linebackers with John Everhart serving as the monster. Steve Scarberry, Charles Eselgroth and Adams form the defensive secondary.

Coach Zechman reported that Greg Wieland, Jeff Long and Riley are nursing injuries and may not see action in the fourth SCOL contest in a row for the Panthers. The game will be Greenfield's Homecoming and will get under way at 8 p.m.

Rose tops AP stars

PETE ROSE

NEW YORK (AP) — Batting champions Pete Rose and Rod Carew, primarily singles hitters, and sluggers Willie Stargell and Reggie Jackson, leaders in home runs and runs batted in, were named today to the 1973 Major League All-Star team announced by The Associated Press.

National Leaguers dominated the voting, winning seven of 10 places on the squad selected by sports writers and broadcasters, but the NL champion New York Mets failed to land a player.

In the balloting based on regular-season performances only, Rose, the National League batting champion for the third time with a .338 average, was the top vote collector.

The hustling Cincinnati Reds' outfielder received 251 votes, 20 more than runner-up Stargell.

Stargell, the husky Pittsburgh Pirates' outfielder-first baseman who led the NL in home runs with 44 and in RBI with 119, accumulated 231 votes.

Jackson, the pacesetter of the American League and World Series champion Oakland A's, won the other outfield berth on the All-Star team with 200 votes. He won the AL home run title with 32 and the RBI championship with 117.

Carew, the Minnesota Twins' slick second baseman, led the infielders with 136 votes. Joining him in the infield were first baseman Tony Perez of the Cincinnati Reds, shortstop Chris Speier of the San Francisco Giants and third baseman Darrell Evans of the Atlanta Braves.

Johnny Bench, Cincinnati's irrepressible catcher, was the only repeater from the 1972 team.

Ron Bryant of the San Francisco Giants, the only National League pitcher with at least 20 victories—he had 24—was chosen as the All-Star left-handed hurler, and fireballing Nolan Ryan of the California Angels, who set a major league strikeout record with 383, was picked as the top right-handed pitcher.

Hank Aaron, Atlanta's 39-year-old slugger who hit 40 homers for a career total of 713, only one short of Babe Ruth's all-time record, wound up fifth among the outfielders with 124 votes. San Francisco's Bobby Bonds was fourth with 157 votes.

The 31-year-old Rose, NL batting champion in 1968 and 1969 with averages of .335 and .348, respectively, won the title this year by rapping out a major league-leading total of 230 hits, including 181 singles.

Carew, also winner of AL batting crowns in 1969 with a .332 mark and 1972 at .318, captured his third title with a .350 average, highest in the majors. He was the only American League player to collect at least 200 hits, finishing with 203, including 156 singles.

He beat out Atlanta's Dave Johnson for the second base spot by 29 votes. Johnson, after setting a major league record for second basemen with 43 homers, received 107 votes.

The closest vote was for right-handed pitcher. Ryan, with a 21-16 record in addition to bettering Sandy Koufax' seasonal strikeout record of 382, polled 105 votes in besting National League strikeout leader Tom Seaver of the Mets.

Seaver garnered 86 votes, highest among the NL champions. Jim Palmer, Baltimore's 22-game winner, finished third with 71 votes, and Jim "Catfish" Hunter, a 21-game winner with Oakland, was fourth with 63.

Bryant received 88 votes in outpolling three other 20-game winners—Vida Blue and Ken Holtzman of Oakland and Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox—to win top honors for lefthanded pitchers.

Bench, a .253 hitter with 25 homers and 104 RBI for Cincinnati's NL West Division champions, was a landslide winner as catcher. He got 184 votes, easily outdistancing Thurman Munson of the New York Yankees, runner-up with 57 votes.

Perez, fourth in batting in the National League with a .314 average in addition to hitting 27 homers and driving in 101 runs, received 90 votes for first base. John Mayberry of the Kansas City Royals finished second with 64 votes.

Evans, a surprising third in the National League with a career high of 41 homers plus a .280 batting average and 104 runs batted in, was tabbed the best third baseman on 119 ballots. Oakland's Sal Bando was next with 87 votes.

The slick-fielding Speier, a .249 batter with 11 homers and 71 runs batted in, collected 103 votes in winning easily at shortstop. Bill Russell of the Los Angeles Dodgers was a distant second with 53.

MacPhail new AL president

CHICAGO (AP) — Lee MacPhail, a baseball man who prefers interleague play and a shorter season, has been named president of the American League, succeeding Joe Cronin.

Cronin, who has been the league president since 1959, will step down Jan. 1, 1974, and become chairman of the board. Cronin, 67, will preside over the league meetings in Houston in December.

MacPhail, 55, said Tuesday after being named to the post that he would spend the next two months winding up his duties as general manager of the New York Yankees.

MacPhail is the son of Larry MacPhail who introduced the major leagues to night baseball and owned the Cincinnati Reds, New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers.

MacPhail said he didn't contemplate any immediate changes. However, he said he is opposed to three leagues but favors interleague play and a shorter season to be cut at the end in order to move up the playoffs and the World Series.

MacPhail said "I hate to change from being active or leaving the New York Yankees. I spent one year in the commissioner's office and I don't like being neutral.

"But neither did I want to miss this opportunity," said MacPhail, who added that one of his objectives when he takes over is to improve the relationship with the National League.

MacPhail said, "The new ownership of the Yankees had nothing to do with my leaving the club. I found my relationship with the new owners excellent. I only feel I left my real quest unaccomplished without getting the Yankees back on top."

Meanwhile, American League owners said they would make every effort to make the designated hitter rule permanent. Currently it is on a three-year experimental basis.

Bob Short, owner of the Texas Rangers, was one of the stronger designated hitter backers.

"We want to be able to put the rule to use when we play in our home parks in exhibition games, the All-Star and World Series. We've used it for a year ... we like it ... and the fans like it."

Cronin read a statement from the Yankees that it was with great "trepidation" that they gave MacPhail permission to accept the appointment.

They said they regretted their loss which they called the American League's gain.

"I echo those sentiments," said Cronin, the Most Valuable Player in the American League in 1930 and named to the game's Hall of Fame in 1956.

Boobie, Essex eye double 1000 year

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals think rookie running sensation Charles "Boobie" Clark—who spent most of his college career as a tight end—may be the "catch" of the year in the National Football League.

"Call it one lucky stab," said Bengals Coach Paul Brown Tuesday.

Clark, a 6-foot-2, 235-pound 12th round draft choice out of Bethune-Cookman (Fla.) College, has teamed up with veteran Essex Johnson to give the giant-killing Bengals their best backfield combination in the club's six-year history.

And they're threatening to duplicate the unprecedented feat of 1972 when Miami's Larry Csonka and Mercury Morris become the first players from the same NFL team to gain 1,000 yards each in the same season.

Johnson, with 529 yards , and Clark's 457 put the Bengal backs 179 yards ahead of the pace set by Csonka and Morris after six games a year ago.

Johnson is ranked No. 2 in the American Football Conference and Clark fifth. Clark is the second leading rookie rusher in the 26-team NLF, trailing Minnesota's Chuck Foreman by 27 yards.

"Boobie has emerged as a tremendous competitor," said Brown, who feels he's found the big back he's been searching for.

"He's no Fancy Dan...just one of those chips-down runners," said Brown.

Clark has been instrumental in Cincinnati's back-to-back victories over AFC powerhouses Pittsburgh and Kansas City. He gained 118 yards in a stunning 19-7 triumph over the Steelers and had 106 in Sunday's 14-6 victory over the Chiefs.

"It's kind of a surprise," said Clark, "but I know I'm made of the same stuff as other ballplayers. A lot of people think only the big schools turn out the best athletes. That's not true. There's a lot of good athletes in the small schools."

Yogi Berra gets 3-year Mets pact

HAWORTH, N.J. (AP) — Yogi Berra, dressed like Jack Nicklaus but hitting the golf ball very much unlike the pro golfer, reflected for a moment on his new contract to manage the New York Mets.

"They were very good to me," said Berra, who agreed Tuesday to spend his next three summers at Shea Stadium. "I asked if I could have it and they said, fine."

Then Yogi went out for 18 holes of golf. He did better at the negotiation table than he did on the White Beeches Golf and Country Club course. "I am playing lousy golf," the manager confessed.

Berra rounded the course in a snazzy outfit that included two-tone red and white golf shoes. He looked happy, with his contract, if not his golf.

Security was an important part of the new agreement which included a substantial raise, probably to $75,000. More than once, Berra heard the wolves at his door when the Mets were dragging along in last place during what seemed to be an endless summer.

The announcement was made two days after the Mets lost the seventh game of the World Series to the Oakland A's. That was seven games farther than anybody, Berra included, expected them to go this season.

Lion seventh graders post 38-8 victory

The Washington C.H. seventh graders traveled to Greenfield Tuesday evening to meet the Greenfield seventh grade football team and came home with a 38-8 win.

The Lion seventh graders put together a crunching offense and a jarring defense to win the contest by the 30-point margin.

Larry Brickles, a talented halfback, scored four touchdowns to lead the Cubs in point production. Quarterback Tod Terrell passed to Mike Cox for a 45-yard touchdown for the other score.

Gary Fisher also played the quarterback role and performed well.

The offensive line and the defensive line were the keys to the success of the Lion Cubs. Steve Pritchett, Tracy Wilson, Bobby Runnells and Steve Qualls all played good games on the line. The line opened holes for Brickles and Max Lyons to pick up the needed yardage either for the score or the first downs.

Greenfield's only score came in the late moments of the second quarter.

The regular Washington C. H. junior high football team will play its last game of the season against Hillsboro at 4:30 p.m. Thursday at Hillsboro.

Prim Bloom winner of Lebanon feature

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Prim Bloom took the eighth feature pace mile at Lebanon Raceway in 2:08 Tuesday night to pay $11, $5.40 and $3.20.

Wye Tag placed, paying $5.60 and $3.60 and the show horse was Mr. Nixon, paying $2.80.

Little John B and Twinite Scot, 1-5 in the daily double, returned $23.80.

The crowd of 1,360 bet $103,241.

Bradshaw book gives Sunday Bengals clash new ingredient

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw's new book, "No Easy Game," is providing an added ingredient to the return match Sunday with the Cincinnati Bengals at Pittsburgh.

The Bengals knocked off the high-powered Steelers here two weeks ago 19-7, the only loss suffered by Pittsburgh this year, now 5-1. Cincinnati and Cleveland are 4-2 and are tied for second place in the central division of the American Conference of the National Football League.

Several Bengals commented Tuesday on references to them made by the blond passer in the book.

"The Pittsburgh Steelers don't need any special motivation to get ready for the Bengals," Bradshaw wrote.

"There are some teams you just like to beat more than others, and I believe I'd rather beat Cincinnati than anybody.

"I don't know why," Bradshaw continued, "but lots of guys on our team feel the same way.

"They are obvious rivals— young like us, in the same division, located just over the state line in Ohio. One of the few cheap shots that I've ever taken in the NFL came from Bill Bergey of the Bengals, and I've enjoyed beating them even more since then."

Said Bergey: "He's writing about something that happened three years ago. If he wants to write those kind of things to sell his book, that's fine. I hope it sells a million copies."

Then, a few minutes later, the center linebacker grunted: "Some day I'm going to write a book."

Receiver Chip Myers jumped to Bergey's defense. "That wasn't a cheap shot," he said. "He was running the ball and he's fair game." Linebacker Ken Avery agreed.

All Pro defensive tackle Mike Reid also was noted in the book.

Bradshaw was talking about Pittsburgh's 40-17 massacre of Cincinnati last year avenging an earlier loss.

Tennessee State grabs top spot in small college poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Taking advantage of Delaware's first loss in 21 games, Tennessee State moved in to first place today in The Associated Press' small college football poll.

Delaware's 20-game winning streak was stopped by Rutgers 24-7 last weekend, and the Blue Hens dropped to second place behind all-winning Tennessee State.

Tennessee State won its sixth game of the year, battering Florida A&M 45-0 over the weekend and received 27 votes for first place and a point total of 778.

The points gave Tennessee State, last week's second-place team, a comfortable margin over Delaware. The Blue Hens cornered only five first-place ballots this time and finished with 598 points.

Hawaii, fourth last week, moved to No. 3 with two first place ballots and 567 points. The Rainbows whipped Puget Sound 30-7 for their fifth straight victory.

Cal-Poly, also 5-0, slipped from third to fourth despite beating Fullerton State 21-7. A nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters gave Cal-Poly six first-place ballots and 471 points.

Western Kentucky, 6-0, moved up a notch from sixth to fifth after a 35-0 thrashing of Eastern Kentucky. Western Kentucky, which replaced Grambling as No. 5, collected two first-place votes and 377 points.

The rest of the Top Ten included, No. 6 South Dakota, No. 7 Wittenberg, No. 8 Louisiana Tech, No. 9 Grambling and No. 10 North Dakota State.

Wittenberg, Elon and Langston, Okla. were the other teams receiving first-place votes. Each got one apiece.

PGA tournament slots are sought

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)— Seventy-five survivors of qualifying tests to determine who will win the privilege of joining the Professional Golfers Association tour began their final 72-hole tournament today over the demanding Dunes Golf and Beach Club layout.

The final run for the touring privilege, which winds up Saturday, will round our 144 holes for the 75 survivors of a field of 373 who began the elimination process in three regional tournaments in September.

MT's Players of Week

Two juniors have been selected as Miami Trace's Players of the Week for their individual performances in the Panthers' 19-6 loss to Wilmington last Friday night before a packed Parents Night crowd at Miami Trace Field.

Halfback Jeff Sagar and defensive safety Jim Glass were singled out by the Miami Trace coaching staff after viewing game films. Both received top honors in the Record-Herald's seventh weekly poll.

Sagar, a 165-pound halfback, carried the ball 10 times for 35 yards and one touchdown. Although that yardage wouldn't break any records, Sagar, had tremendous second effort on most of his carries. On several occassions Sagar was left with no blocking and had to fend for himself. On those times, even when he scored the touchdown, Sagar moved with poise and agility to gain extra yardage.

COMING close to Sagar for top offensive honors was end Jeff Smithson. The talented receiver pulled in two passes for 36 yards. That yardage total was well over half of the Panthers' aerial total.

On defense, Glass was chosen as the top player. From his defensive safety position, Glass made five unassisted tackles and had help on 10 others. Head coach Fred Zechman reported that Glass played his finest game to date. The hard-hitting safety collected 25 defensive points for his efforts. Glass also knocked down two passes and caused a Wilmington fumble.

The Panthers' "big lick" award also went to Glass for a jarring tackle on Wilmington speedster Jackie Watson in the second quarter.

JIM GLASS

Miami Trace slipped a knotch in the South Central Ohio League ranks with the loss to Wilmington. The Panthers' record now stands at 2-1 in the league, tied with Wilmington, and 4-3 overall.

Friday night the Panthers travel to Greenfield to meet a big and strong, but winless, Greenfield McClain team. The Tigers show a poor record but should prove to be a good team in the 8 p.m. Homecoming game.

Chinook Salmon to be plentiful

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Once the glamor fish among Midwestern salmon anglers, the coho may take a back seat to chinook salmon in Ohio this year.

The switch involves both quantity and quality but stems primarily from the fact that fishermen don't really have much of a choice in the matter.

There simply will be more chinooks available this year than at any time in the past.

In recent years the state has stocked as many as 175,000 coho fingerlings in three Ohio streams, the Huron and Chagrin Rivers and Conneaut Creek, all tributaries of Lake Erie.

Last year, however, coho eggs were in short supply so few young of that species were released. The Huron River in Erie County, for example, received only 28,500 coho smolts and the Chagrin in Lake County got a mere 9,000.

The emphasis on chinook should please most fishermen.

Farmer urges cautious planting

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the federal government and most consumers urge farmers to increase production, Rep. William J. Scherle, an I wa grain and livestock farmer, bucks the trend by telling his constituents: "Don't Overplant!" or "Plant with Cuation!"

If farmers overplant, Scherle says, market prices might fall, as they have in the past, and "our farmers will be getting a lesser amount for their crop."

The conservative Republican issues his caution notes regularly at the end of his newsletter because the American farmer is "going to get himself caught in a declining market, rather than making a living wage out of his efforts," an aide explained.

"We don't want them back at $1-a-bushel corn," the aide said.

At times this year, corn has sold over $4 a bushel.

The Agriculture Department has called for "full production," saying it will increase the supply of food, stabilize consumer prices and maintain farm income at its present high level.

Scherle does not trust the supply-and-demand forecasts of the Agriculture Department, the aide said. "Those are the same ones who sold wheat to Russia," he commented.

The 440-million-bushel sale to the Soviet Union last year has been cited by agricultural economists as one of several major factors contributing to this year's record retail food prices.

Farm spokesmen say farmers are not getting their fair share of the higher consumer prices because costs of grain to feed stock have risen just as rapidly.

Farm income, however, is at its highest level in two decades.

Nonetheless, Scherle's aide said, "the farmer just can't go up and plow to the fence rows" as Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has advised since early summer.

What's the reaction been to Scherle's stand? "Well, some people have said, 'Yeah, doggone right;' but we won't really know until they start planting next spring," the aide said.

MT SYMPHONIC CHOIR — The Miami Trace Symphonic Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Rick Stinson, will present selections from "Fiddler on the Roof" at the school's annual open house Monday evening, Oct. 29. The pgoram, first of the season for the choir, will begin at 7:30 p.m. Members will be in traditional dress, as pictured above, and will be accompanied by Elise Hill at the piano. The public is invited to attend.

Your Income Tax

EDITOR'S NOTE: — This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. When I retire, will I have to pay income tax on the pension I'll receive?

A. It depends upon the kind of pension you will be receiving. Social Security benefits are not taxable. However, if yours is a company pension and you did not contribute to the fund, the pension benefits are fully taxable. If you did contribute to the fund and will recover your contribution within three years, the pension is not taxed until you have recovered the total of your contribution; the remainder is fully taxable.

For more details, see IRS Publication 575, "Tax Information on Pensions and Annuities." Contact your Internal Revenue office for a free copy.

Q. I loaned my brother-in-law some money for a business venture that flopped. I know I'll never collect from him. How can I tell if the loan qualifies as a deductible bad debt expense?

A. When you claim a bad debt deduction you must have good evidence that the debt is worthless and will remain so in the future. You must take reasonable steps to collect the debt. It is not necessary to go to court if it can be shown that a judgment, if obtained, would be uncollectible.

If, in the exercise of sound business judgment, it is determined that there is no likelihood of recovery at any time in the future, the debt has become worthless.

Secondly, gifts cannot form the basis of a bad debt. Thus, if an advance is made with the understanding that it is to be repaid and is later forgiven, the advance is considered a gift and not a loan.

Loans to children and other relatives are presumed to be gifts. This presumption, however, may be overcome by convincing evidence.

Facts, and not the form of the transaction, will determine whether an actual loan was made.

For more information, see IRS Publication 548, "Tax Information on Deduction for Bad Debts," available free from your nearest IRS office.

Q. I pay a nurse to come in and take care of my disabled husband while I'm out working. Are these payments subject to the three percent-of-adjusted-gross-income limitation on medical expenses?

A. Yes, if you decide to claim the payments as a medical expense. However, in the alternative, you may claim the expenses as a deduction for disabled dependent care.

This deduction has more liberal limitations than those for medical expense: (1) You must be gainfully employed, (2) have an adjusted gross income of $18,000 or less (for every $1 your income exceeds $18,000 your deduction is reduced $2, disappearing completely at $27,600), and (3) maintain a household for you and your husband.

In addition, the deduction is limited to $400 a month for dependent care services performed in the home.

More details may be found in IRS Publication 503, "Child Care and Disabled Dependent Care," available free from your local Internal Revenue office.

Ohio Perspective

Leo D'Arcy in mayoralty race

By JAMES STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Democrat Leo D'Arcy decided to run for mayor after taking a long look at the 7-foot hole in his yard where the sewer system was being repaired.

He had waited eight days for city sewer crews to come and repair the damage. And he was still waiting.

"If the problems were big problems, then I think I might feel like I was unqualified," he said. "But what we're talking about are little problems, people problems. Apparently that's what the city needs is somebody to solve the little problems."

The day he was looking at his yard was the day after James Carney stunned the Democratic party by resigning from the mayor's race. D'Arcy jumped in.

He phoned The Associated Press to announce his decision, and he said people began calling the same night, "asking what they could do to help."

D'Arcy's write-in candidacy actually is the third of the nonpartisan mayoral race. Two minor party candidates, representing the Socialist Workers and Socialist Labor parties, had filed earlier to run as write-in candidates.

The heavyweight in the race is incumbent Mayor Ralph J. Perk, a Republican generally favored to win the election easily as the only name on the ballot. Perk had been given the edge by political observers even before Carney resigned.

"I don't know that it (winning) would be possible," D'Arcy said. His only other political race was a losing run for the state legislature in 1962 in Lake County.

Two years ago he moved from Cleveland's plush eastern suburbs back into the city, bringing his wife and seven children to a bigger, three-story house in the northeastern Collinwood section.

He still works as news director of WELW, a radio station in nearby Willoughby, and he said he has no plans to resign that job during the campaign. If there are equal-time complaints, he said, he will know how to handle them.

"I have the news broadcasts and I run a two-hour 'Swap Shop' program," he said. "And if Mayor Perk wants to come in and do it, fine."

Ohioana group prepares for award ceremony

Mrs. Frank J. Mayo, 4 Royal Court, Fayette County chairman of the Ohioana Library Association, and Mrs. J. Earl Gidding, 421 W. Court St., a trustee, are planning to attend the 44th annual meeting and luncheon of the association Saturday at Capital University, Bexley.

Highlight of the meeting will be the presentation of book awards, citations and the Career Medal.

Dr. Merrill Patterson, president of Ohioana Library and consultant to the president of Parkersburg College, Parkersburg, W. Va., has announced the following authors as the recipients of the 1973 Ohioana Book Awards:

Kenneth E. Davison for his history, "The Presidency of Rutherford B. Hayes," Dr. Davison, professor of History and American Studies and chairman of the Department of American Studies at Heidelberg College, Tiffin, portrays Hayes as a middle-class, moderate statesman who effected a recovery of the economy.

Hannah Green for her novel, "The Dead of the House." Miss Green (Mrs. John Wesley), formerly of Cincinnati, now resides in New York where, as assistant professor, she teaches in the School of Arts, Columbia University.

J. Allen Hynek for his scientific volume, "The U F O Experience: A Scientific Inquiry." Dr. Hynek now holds the chair of astronomy at Northwestern University.

Mary Oliver for her volume of poetry, "The River Styx, Ohio and Other Poems." Born in Maple Heights, not far from Cleveland, Miss Oliver is coming from her home in Provincetown, Mass. to accept her Ohioana book award.

James T. Patterson for his biography, "Mr. Republican; a Biography of Robert A. Taft." Dr. Patterson, both a historian and biographer, is professor of American history at Brown University.

The Florence Roberts Head Memorial Award of 1973 goes to Charles S. Homes for his portrait-study entitled "The Clocks of Columbus, The Literary Career of James Thurber." Dr. Holmes is professor of English at Pomona College in Claremont, Calif.

The Career Medal will be presented to John H. Glenn "First Man in Orbit," who was born in Cambridge.

John Alexander, Metropolitan Opera tenor of world-wide renown, is receiving Ohioana's 1973 Citation in Music. He studied at the Conservatory of Music, Cincinnati.

Ohioana Citations will be presented to Dana Adams Schmidt, Pentagon correspondent for The Christian Science Monitor; to Boyd C. Shafer, professor of history at the University of Arizona, for his leadership as educator and historian and to Francis Lee Utley, professor of English, Ohio State University, for his contributions to Ohio folklore.

2 appear on charges of shooting

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Two Wilson Junior High School boys were scheduled to appear Monday in Butler County Juvenile Court in connection with the shootings of two other boys Monday, killing one.

"At this point," said Police Chief George V. McNally Tuesday night, "we don't even know who shot whom."

He said he was waiting for a ballistics test result on the bullet taken from the chest of the dead youth, Carl Ray Taylor, 16, a student at Hamilton Taft High School.

Charles Nelpinsteine, 14, a Wilson student, remained in critical condition at a local hospital with a bullet wound in the chest. The bullet passed through his body and was not recovered.

Police recovered two .22 caliber rifles from the Cliffview Outdoor Environmental Center. The shootings occurred in the 28-acre nature study park owned by the school system.

Two other youths, who originally reported the shootings, later were charged with delinquency in connection with the case. They were released Tuesday of their parents.

McNally said the shootings resulted from "horseplay" among the four youths. Half a dozen shots had been fired, he said.

Opening lead - ten of spades.

It is estimated that even the best players reach the ideal contract only about 90 per cent of the time.

Probably most bridge enthusiasts think the top players do better than that, but actually that is about the highest point of efficiency a pair can be expected to reach.

When you stop to consider that you and partner can be dealt 5,157,850,293,780,050,462,400 different combinations of cards to bid, you begin to realize that even the most practiced partnerships will miss the best contract in at least a few billion of them.

This hand occurred in a match between Switzerland and Lebanon. It is remarkable that the Swiss North-South pair (Besse and Durouvenoz) were able to reach a sound contract of six diamonds despite East's preemptive three spade bid.

Three notrump by Durouvenoz had its natural meaning and showed willingness to play the hand right there if North was of the same mind.

Besse was faced with a difficult decision — whether or not to pass — but finally elected to try for a slam in one of his suits. Accordingly he cuebid spades to force partner to choose the right suit.

Durouvenoz was of course happy to cooperate with this forward-going move, but he was not unnaturally reluctant to leap to six diamonds with a jack-high suit. He therefore responded with a further cuebid in spades to force North to select the suit.

But Besse, still in doubt as to which suit would serve best as trumps, again forced the choice on his partner by bidding five notrump. Durouvenoz there-upon bid six diamonds, which he easily made by taking two trump finesses.

Aussie wheelbarrow race is popular annual event

PORT HEDLAND, Australia (AP) — The Black Rock Stakes, Australia's most noteworthy wheelbarrow race, was won this year in record time in the Pilbara region of northwest Australia.

It's an annual event, carried out over dirt roads between the mining towns of Goldsworthy and Port Hedland.

Men competitors operate 10 to a team; women are allowed 12 pushers.

The idea is to push a wheelbarrow loaded with 25 pounds of iron ore as quickly as possible from town to town, an advertised distance of 74 miles.

The timekeepers clocked in the winners, "The Tigers" of Goldsworthy, of 5:51:0 which is about 13 miles per hour, not all that much a slower average than that of the fabulous for-minute-milers among the athletes.

IF YOU DON'T believe the time and distance you are not the only one. The clockers are though to be correct, but there are a few who say the distance is more like 68 miles. Still, the distance was the same last year when the time of 7:20:0 was thought to be good.

The race was first run in 1970 to settle a bet between two miners of the Goldsworthy Mining Co. Now the winners are presented with bronze medallions depicting a wheelbarrow runner on one side and the emblems of two mining companies on the other.

This year there were 15 teams in the race, now highly organized and run at night because it is too hot during the day.

Wheelbarrow racers have absolute priority on the road, and long "road trains" hauled by great trucks pull into the side when they meet the barrow runners.

THE WHEELBARROWS are modified somewhat. Race rules say they must have head and tail lights. Competitors extend the handles several feet to make the barrows easier to maneuver.

The competitors not immediately engaged in pushing ride on a vehicle usually slightly in front of their barrow. When the time comes for a change of pushers one hops off and the ex-pusher sprints to get aboard the vehicle.

And to what do this year's winners attribute their success? They raced with their barrow in only 30 second high speed bursts before handing over to the next happy fellow.

COMPANIES and local organizations sponsor the race on a mileage basis and this year the companies included some with headquarters in the United States, Britain and Japan.

Profits, which go to the Royal Flying Doctor Service and the St. John Ambulance Association, are expected to top $5,600 this year.

It's all good, clean fun with race stewards and marshals, official time keepers, medical officers and police escorts, and, of course, spectators even though it starts around mid-night.

New truce in Mideast is failure

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Israeli military command charged that the Egyptians launched a strong air and armored attack on the Suez front today even as U.N. truce observers headed for the battle lines to enforce the second attempt at a Middle East ceasefire.

The Egyptian counteroffensive was mounted to save Cairo's forces on the eastern bank of the Suez Canal from encirclement by Israeli tanks and troops doubling back from their penetration into Egypt west of the waterway, Tel Aviv claimed.

The reported fighting came only a few hours after Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan announced the new cease-fire was in effect and seemed to be "working properly."

There was no immediate word from Cairo. But the Israeli claims of renewed combat appeared to jeopardize the already precarious truce, reiterated by the U.N. Security Council on Tuesday night after its first cease-fire collapsed in furious fighting.

The Israeli reports did not pinpoint the area of combat but indicated it was at the southern end of the canal near Suez city.

An earlier communique from Cairo claimed the Israelis tried to cut the main road to Cairo near Suez city "but our forces are preventing him by force from accomplishing his objective."

The Israelis said 15 Egyptian fighter planes were shot down in dogfights over the battleground.

The Israelis earlier said their invasion force had pushed south from its foothold midway up the canal, moving along the western bank of the canal past Suez city at the waterway's southern end in an attempt to cut off the Egyptian 3rd Army on the eastern bank.

Egypt charged the Israelis made the gains by taking advantage of the first cease-fire attempt Monday and Tuesday nights.

Israeli spokesmen claimed their invasion tanks and artillery now dominate the main Egyptian supply routes from Cairo east to Ismailia and from Cairo southeast to Suez city.

Assembly off to bad start

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A special session of the General Assembly to consider campaign financing reforms got off to a bad start Tuesday night with squabbling among members of a House subcommittee.

Cause of the brief flareup was the same disagreement that defeated a pre-session compromise effort last month by the Legislative Service Commission Committee, namely, how campaign contributions from labor unions should be handled.

But while the House State Government Committee bickered, other lawmakers decided to call it a day—or even a week—and wait until bills are ready before sitting down to serious legislating.

Six bills were submitted Tuesday. After the measures were introduced both chambers recessed while subcommittees began hearings on the proposals.

Some legislators not on committees said they would go home and wait. It appeared unlikely that a bill could be agreed to in either chamber today, or even this week.

The committee squabble concerned Gov. John Gilligan's proposal that would allow labor unions and other organizations to exceed a proposed $3,000 campaign contribution ceiling if the money came from individual donations of $10 or less.

Tape surrender blunts impeachment move

Nixon cancels tonight's talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon cancelled a speech tonight on Watergate, the White House explaining that he was busy today dealing with developments in the Middle East. That change in plans came while the House pressed ahead with its preliminary impeachment inquiry.

Although the President's startling decision to surrender the tapes to the courts appeared to blunt the day-old impeachment move, it didn't silence calls for a new special prosecutor. The head of the American Bar Association today called for a new, independent prosecutor to replace Archibald Cox, who was fired by Nixon.

The President had announced that he would address the nation by radio and television tonight, but he cancelled that speech and scheduled a new conference for 9 p.m. EDT Thursday.

The President spent the night at his mountaintop retreat at Camp David, Md., where he had been expected to work on a speech explaining his decision to capitulate to a federal appeals court ruling on the tapes. But instead he spent the evening on the telephone attempting to arrange a cease-fire in the Middle East War, Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said today.

Nixon returned to the White House this morning and planned to spend the remainder of the day on the Middle East situation, Warren said.

He said Nixon simply didn't have time to prepare the speech he had planned on the Watergate affair.

Meanwhile, today the House of Representatives continued a preliminary impeachment inquiry, begun just before Nixon's lawyers announced the tapes would be given to a federal judge.

House leaders said the probe would continue at least until the effects of Nixon's action become known.

It was clear, however, that initial reaction to the President's reversal was favorable.

"Thank God," said Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz. "I'm glad it came to pass," said Democratic Chairman Robert Strauss.

Wall Street's Dow-Jones industrial average jumped 17 points in less than an hour on news of Nixon's decision.

It was a day of surprising events. Here is where things stood when the dust settled:

—U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica was scheduled soon to begin reviewing the nine tapes of Nixon's private conversations about the Watergate scandal. These are tapes that special prosecutor Archibald Cox had sought before he was fired.

Sirica will listen to them in private and decide what, if any, parts of them should be presented to a grand jury. They likely will become public this way only if presented as evidence at a trial.

—The Senate Watergate committee was back in court fighting its own separate, uphill battle for the tapes. Sirica had ruled that the committee, unlike Cox, had no legal authority to use the courts to get the tapes.

Previously, it appeared the committee had struck a deal with the White House and would settle for an edited transcript of the tapes, authenticated by Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss.

But the panel appealed to the U.S. Circuit Court for full access, denied that it had made any deal not to continue the suit, and told Nixon there appeared to be confusion about the terms of the compromise agreement.

After that, and after Nixon gave in on the tapes Cox had sought, the White House withdrew its offer to the committee.

—Crucial questions remained unanswered about the future of the Justice Department's newly inherited inquiries into the Watergate and related matters. It wasn't known if prosecutors would be allowed to get any presidential tapes or papers besides those Nixon agreed to give Sirica.

There also were reports that the staff of the special prosecution force was prepared to resign as a group.

—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said the decision to release the White House tapes would deflate congressional impeachment moves. Humphrey said he still favored a new special Watergate prosecutor, to be named either by Sirica or by Congress.

—Cox himself vowed to remain in Washington for the time being. "I know all citizens will be happy, as I am, that the President wisely chose to respect the rule of law," he said.

—Also in doubt was whether Nixon would supply tapes sought in the Vesco case. Former Cabinet members John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans face trial in New York on charges interfering with a government investigation in return for a secret $200,000 campaign contribution from financier Robert L. Vesco.

Relief expressed over tapes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Many political leaders across the nation have expressed happiness and relief over President Nixon's decision to surrender the White House tapes. There were also expressions of bewilderment over its timing.

Several said Nixon had acted in the best interest of the country and they expressed hope his concession would silence his critics and end the controversy over the tapes.

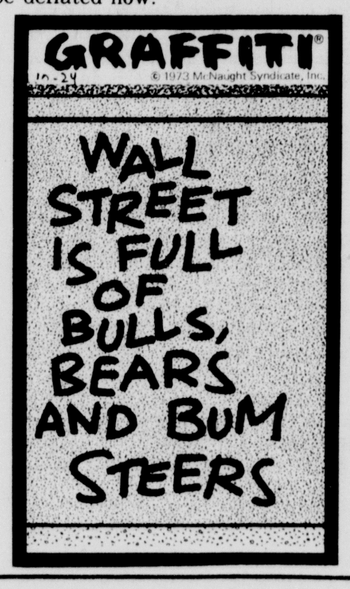

After staunchly refusing for months to give up nine Watergate tape recordings and firing special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox last Saturday over the issue, Nixon agreed Tuesday to abide by a court order to surrender the tapes to U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica.

"Thank God," said Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Cox said, "I know all citizens will be happy, as I am, that the President wisely chose to respect the rule of law."

"I am proud of the President," said Republican state chairman Jack Ranson of Kansas, adding he believed Nixon's release of the tapes would reduce the pressure in Congress for impeachment.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., agreed that impeachment moves would be deflated now.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said Nixon did the "eminently right thing" in releasing the tapes, but Scott said he was certain talk of impeachment did not dictate Nixon's action.

"Impeachment didn't move this tough man," Scott said. "But I do believe that public outcry might have helped convince him that the compromise he had tried wasn't working."

New York State Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson, a Republican, said the President's action "ought to clear the air down there. I don't know what more anyone could want."

Saying he was pleased with Nixon's decision, Rep. Mark Andrews, R-N.D., said, "of course what he's doing now is what he should have done four months ago."

"It's most bewildering," said Democratic State Chairman Joseph Crangle of New York. "One day he fires a man of integrity for asking the courts for the tapes and two days later he releases them. It's very odd."

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said the news from Washington did not alter his view that impeachment proceedings against Nixon should get under way at once.

Impeachment work will continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee was to press ahead today with its inquiry into possible grounds for impeachment, despite President Nixon's sudden decision to release his Watergate tapes to the court.

A committee spokesman said the panel's plans are basically unaffected by Nixon's backdown on the tapes issue.

Nixon acted Tuesday less than three hours after House leaders announced their decision to begin procedures that could lead to impeachment.

Nixon's dramatic decision to obey the order of U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica that he had so long resisted swung the emphasis in the impeachment question to what House Democratic whip John J. McFall of California called "the other half of the problem."

This is Nixon's firing of special prosecutor Archibald Cox and assigning of the Watergate investigation to a Justice Department deprived of the two top officials — former Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson and his deputy, William D. Ruckelshaus — who refused to go along with the dismissal of Cox.

The committee's plans call for proceeding with both the impeachment inquiry and consideration of the vice presidential nomination of Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich.

Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., told newsmen he hopes Ford's confirmation can be handled first.

Several members echoed an opinion that the Democratic-dominated Congress would be accused of partisanship if it institutes impeachment proceedings before a Republican successor to Nixon is installed. Until there is a vice president, Albert remains next in line of succession.

Nixon's turnabout on the tapes was enthusiastically reported to the still-in-session House by Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, chairman of the House Republican Conference.

A number of Democrats insisted that Nixon's action does not quiet accusations that he obstructed justice in the Watergate investigation.

And Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., co-sponsor of a resolution citing a variety of possible grounds for impeachment, said the tape question is only one of many.

"We certainly need a prosecutor," Thompson said. "... I strongly suspect the major effort (by Nixon) was to get rid of Cox."

PRESSURE INCREASED — Charles Dinkler, president of Dinkler Plastics, Inc., tests water pressure after the well at his plant had been spliced into the village's main system. "It's only right to let the town get their water from my well. The plant is closed, and I have kids in school, too."

Industrialist rescues 'dry' Jeffersonville

JEFFERSONVILLE — The water shortage emergency situation in the village of Jeffersonville was temporarily solved Wednesday morning.

Village residents, who unexpectedly found themselves with only a trickle of water coming from faucets Tuesday, had an increased supply Wednesday after Charles E. Dinkler, president of Dinkler Plastics, Inc., spliced his factory well into the village's main system.

"My well can provide the town with 132 gallons a minute," Dinkler states, "and since my plastics plant is temporarily out of production, I don't see any reason why they can't go on using it until conditions improve."

However, before the village could use the private well at the north edge of town, state approval had to be obtained. The well had been approved by the Fayette County Health Department for drinking water for the company's employes, but before the water could be used for distribution through the village mains, approval from the Ohio Department of Health and the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency was needed.

Gordon McCarty, principal at Jeffersonville Elementary School and a member of Village Council, said village officials received temporary approval from the state at 3:15 p.m. Tuesday.

CLASSES at the Jeffersonville school were dismissed at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, but McCarty said they would be open Wednesday after the splicing with the private well had provided drinking water and water for the operation of sanitary facilities.

Lindy Sharett, fire chief and service director in Jeffersonville, was transporting samples of raw water from the private well to Dayton Wednesday morning. Sharrett was to take samples of treated water from the well to Columbus in the afternoon.

Just what the problem is, nobody is certain. The village was receiving "very little, if any," water from the well Wednesday. Village officials were expecting experts from Dayton Wednesday to correct the situation or determine the cause.

Sharrett explained: "Water shortage isn't a new problem to Jeffersonville. The city water is drawn from three wells which have been inadequate for the past five years. If we could get 85-90 gallons a minute, there would be no problem, but the town has been operating on the 60-plus gallons the three wells together put out and now that figure has dropped to almost nothing."

Sharrett admitted that one pump was bad, but it's been a problem getting someone knowledgeable to work on it.

Sharrett said that the preliminary digging for a new well will start Thursday behind the village swimming pool.

A well usually runs $5,000 from the first shovel of dirt to the first squirt of pumped water. Although a geologist was called in, the wells in Jeffersonville were "witched."

The location of Dinkler's well, was "witched" also, while the geologist stood by and firmly stated that there wasn't any water in that area.

"Witching" is an old practice employing a divining rod which usually is made from a willow branch. Someone walks around an area holding the rod, which is shaped in a "Y" and waits for it to dip towards the ground, thus indicating water is beneath.

"The new well may not prove either," Sharrett commented, "but, we have to try to solve our problem before we're faced with a fire or something equally as tragic during one of our shortages."

JUST A TRICKLE — Lindy Sharrett, fire chief and safety service director in Jeffersonville, opens a fire hydrant to show the low water pressure level created when the village well ran dry. Steps were taken for fire protection as soon as the situation developed.

Deaths, Funerals

Harry M. Ging

Harry M. Ging, 73, Rowe Ging Rd., died at 9:35 a.m. Thursday in Memorial Hospital where he had been a patient three days. Death was sudden and unexpected.

Born in Fayette County, he had spent his entire life here. Retired, he was a member of the Church of Christ in Christian Union and of the Eagles Lodge.

Surviving is his wife, Kathryn Ramey Ging; a son, Larry Ging, at home; two stepdaughters, Mrs. Evelyn Hudness of Tye, Tex., and Mrs. Virginia Beavers of Abilene, Tex.; four stepsons, Everett Vance, Oak St., Harlan Vance, Tye, Tex., Bob Vance of Sabina, and Harry Vance, of Abilene, Tex.; and 10 stepgrandchildren.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. J. Herbert (Frances) Perrill, Rt. 3, and Mrs. Margaret Carter of Springfield. Two brothers are deceased.

Arrangements, which will be announced later, are being made under the direction of the Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral home.

Mrs. Beulah Arbaugh

Services were held at 1 p.m. Wednesday in the Schoedinger Funeral Home, NW, Columbus for Mrs. Beulah Arbaugh, widow of Paul Arbaugh, 2675 Kent Rd., Upper Arlington, who died at 4 p.m. Sunday in Riverside Hospital.

Born in Mount Sterling, she had resided in Columbus several years. She was the sister-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wright, 201 Wagner Way. Other survivors are two brothers, John Shannon, San Antonio, Tex., and Allen Shannon, of Detroit, and two sisters, Mrs. Clinton (Celia) Weight of Allentown, Pa., and Mrs. Charles (Edith) Grant of Clearwater, Fla.

Burial was in Pleasant Cemetery at Mount Sterling. Dr. and Mrs. William Lovell, Bowling Green, Ky., son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wright, came here for the funeral.

WORLEY A MELVIN — Services for Worley A. (Red) Melvin, 75, of 639 S. Fayette St., were held at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home here, with the Rev. Charles Richmond officiating. Mr. Melvin, a retired farmer and former grocery store owner, died Saturday.

Pallbearers for the burial in Washington Cemetery were Jay Bender, Karl Kellenberger, Sr., Karl Kellenberger Jr., Mike, Stanley, Norman, Donald and Robert Melvin.

MRS. JESSIE FETTY—Services for Mrs. Jessie Fetty, 88, of Hew Holland, widow of Walter Fetty, were held at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home there. Mrs. Fetty died Saturday.

The Rev. Arthur George officiated. Mrs. Joann Baughn was at the piano and Miss Vicki Sheets sang two hymns. Pallbearers for the burial in the New Holland Cemetery were Paul Hurtt, Jim, Larry and Paul Cottrill, Joe Longberry and Virgil Dinkler.

President misread public on Cox

WASHINGTON (AP) — At midday Monday, surrounded by the sounds of miscalculation, President Nixon slowly climbed the steep steps of the Executive Office Building.

Often in the past he had bounded up the steps two at a time. But now he was burdened with perhaps the worst crisis of his presidency, and he was heading for his hideaway office to search for a solution.

From Pennsylvania Avenue, 50 yards across the lawn, the President could hear the blaring of automobile horns as motorists responded to a demonstrator's "Honk for Impeachment" sign.

It was a raucous reminder that his earlier decision to seek a compromise on the Watergate tapes — a decision he hoped would bring a national sigh of relief — had instead brought what an aide called "some kind of a nightmare ... a fire storm."

"A miscalculation," his White House counsel now bluntly calls the decision to force through a resolution of the month-long tapes dispute.

Twenty-four hours after his walk up the steps of the office building, Nixon reached another decision. He would capitulate and surrender the Watergate tapes and documents to a federal judge — an abrupt turnabout announced in court Tuesday afternoon.

From presidential aides and other official and unofficial sources, the events leading to Nixon's turnabout can be reconstructed. The sources indicated these were the major factors leading to the President's decision:

—A warning by leading Republicans in Congress that he faced a serious impeachment effort and that even some faithful Capitol Hill followers were reluctant to defend him vigorously so long as he refused to release the tapes.

—A recognition that the public outcry resulting from the firing Saturday night of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox was much greater than had been expected, and that it was overshadowing his agreement to allow limited access to the tapes.

—High level concern that the domestic turmoil was damaging efforts to negotiate an end to the Middle East war and was hurting the President's image as a world leader.

Nixon's decision to turn over the tapes for inspection by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica was made at about noon on Tuesday and came as a stunning surprise to even some of his closest aides. "I was thunderstruck — I couldn't believe it," said one aide, who has in the past prided himself on an ability to read the presidential mind.

Alexander M. Haig Jr., Nixon's chief of staff, was among the few aware of the President's movement toward capitulation on the tapes issue. He said the decision was reached "after very painful and anguishing discussion."

On Monday, Oct. 15, Nixon had decided he would attempt to resolve the tapes issue, which, according to Haig, "had progressively begun to polarize our body politic."

"Lines were clearly being drawn both within the Congress and ... within the viewpoint of the American people themselves," Haig said.

So, as time began running out on Nixon to file his notice of appeal to the Supreme Court, he came up with a compromise: He would personally prepare a summary of the nine tapes, have it verified by Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., and turn it over to both Judge Sirica and the Senate Watergate committee.

According to presidential aides, it was clear by Thursday that Cox would not go along with the compromise, and Nixon decided Friday morning that "we should attempt to resolve this dreadfully controversial issue . . . with or without Professor Cox," Haig said. without Professor Cox," Haig said.

Cox announced he would not accept the White House proposal. Cox was fired, Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson resigned, and Deputy Atty. Gen. William D.IRuckelshaus was fired.

First reaction was quick. By the time Nixon awoke Sunday morning, his staff had compiled a 26-page special report tracing reaction in Congress and in the media. The condemnations were harsh, the words of support few.

By Monday morning, Nixon had a 15-page report disclosing that many of the newspapers that had warmly supported his re-election now were vigorously denouncing him editorially.

Some even called for his impeachment or resignation — sentiment expressed later Monday by the AFL-CIO convention in Miami Beach.

By noon on Monday, it was clear to those close to the President that, as Special Counsel Charles Alan Wright later said, "Clearly, we did miscalculate Friday night."

Nixon spent Tuesday morning in his Oval Office and reached his decision about noon. At 2 p.m., Wright stood before a crowded courtroom and startled the nation by announcing the tapes would be turned over to Judge Sirica.

More Watergate problems ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon went to the brink and came back without Archibald Cox.

By yielding to a court order for Watergate-related tape recordings, the President stepped back from a constitutional crisis. He did so after firing Cox as special Watergate prosecutor.

But Nixon has more Watergate troubles ahead, a prospect he is almost certain to address in his speech to the nation tonight.

And, if the White House couldn't get along with Cox as special prosecutor, getting along without him may prove difficult, too.

In Congress there is proposed legislation for a Watergate prosecutor the President cannot fire.

The White House said the President plans to have the case handled within his Department of Justice.

That is where it was six months ago, before Nixon reluctantly agreed to the appointment of a special prosecutor. He resisted that step, then took it to help resolve an earlier administration crisis, a shakeup in the Cabinet and the White House staff.

Now the Justice Department itself is shaken. Elliot L. Richardson resigned as attorney general rather than obey Nixon's order to fire Cox. And, while the Watergate case continues, it is unlikely any Nixon nominee could win the Senate confirmation required to replace Richardson on a permanent basis.

Richardson was confirmed only after promising that the special Watergate prosecutor would be fired only for extraordinary improprieties.

The Senate Judiciary Committee is meeting today to discuss just what was promised, and by whom. Richardson maintains the President has a right to change the terms under which any official was hired, and therefore did not break a promise by directing him to fire Cox.

In the House, preliminary impeachment inquiries continued despite Nixon's decision to relent on the tapes.

WSU class studies pornography

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Homework for 40 students at Wright State University may be skin flicks, a "dirty" book, or a trip to a local gay bar to talk with homosexuals.

The class is called Problems in Human Sexuality, and its instructors say it's a healthy approach to understanding sex differences among people.

About 40 students, most of them married women, are enrolled in the experimental class sponsored by the Continuing Education Department.

The lecturers are prostitutes, pimps, doctors, biologists, ministers and homosexuals.

But first, students are "desensitized" to what for most is shocking material by showing a stag film, said course co-creator Dr. [illegible]ne Wade. An explanation of the film is offered and students are told what to expect.

"If they feel they don't want to watch it they are free to leave," he said. The class is limited to seniors and graduate students and many are school nurses, principals, police officers, psychologists, social workers and guidance counselors, he said.

After viewing the film, the class discusses what prompts people to make such films, what motivates actors to perform in them, and why some people like to watch them.

Students also quiz the speakers, Wade said. Students may ask a prostitute about the hours she works, what she does in her spare time, how much she charges, whether she has a family, how she spends her money, and how she avoids the police.

"They want to know about the prostitute as a human," Wade said.

Speakers such as doctors and ministers, touching on the religious aspect of sex, "attempt to point out the connection between sex as an expression of love which is in turn an expression of Christianity," said Ellen Murray, assistant sociology professor and a partner in the course.

Miss Murray also had an explanation for the absence of men in the class. "Most males are pigheaded and think they know all there is to know about sex," she said.

Biologists ta.k about genes and chromosomes and the basics of sexual biology, Miss Murray said. "We've found a lot of school teachers who don't know the biology of sex."

Both instructors hoped students would find the course "mind expanding," and would find themselves more tolerant of others.

"The course dispels false notions," Miss Murray said. "We think students become more tolerant of what they have come to call 'queers' and 'perverts.' The course dissipates the stereotype."

Senate panel studies inquiry into firing of prosecutor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee meets today to decide on an inquiry into the firing of Archibald Cox as special Watergate prosecutor.

In advance of the closed-door session, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said he expected the committee to hold public hearings with Cox as the first witness.

He said Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., indicated to him that Cox would be called to testify immediately if that were the will of the committee.

Cox was fired on President Nixon's order after his refusal to drop his efforts to subpoena tapes and other Watergate-related materials in the possession of the White House.

However, Nixon agreed Tuesday to comply with court orders to turn over the tapes and other papers to U.S. District Judge John L. Sirica.

While this seemed to undercut a surge of impeachment moves, it did not lessen the demands of Kennedy and some other Democrats on the Judiciary Committee for investigating the Cox removal.

Some senators said they would continue efforts to pass legislation to provide for a court-appointed special prosecutor, not subject to dismissal by the President.

Such bills were introduced by Sens. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., and Adlai E. Stevenson III, DIll.

Introduction of another bill sponsored by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., Kennedy and some other Judiciary Committee members was delayed until Friday.

Bayh said he hoped for additional sponsors by then, including possibly one or two Republicans.

One GOP committee member, Sen. Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland, said he supported the creation of an independent prosecutor.

Ohio Assembly

Auto Workers' Community Action Council (CAC) in Columbus was on hand to defend the bill, and Republicans questioned him at length.

Rep. Charles E. Fry, R-75 Springfield, wanted to know if it weren't more democratic to allow individual members to earmark donations rather than have them spent by a union's, or other organization's, political action committee.

Hinton said he agreed "in principle, but in the stark realities of politics, it just isn't that way." The labor official added that in the past, "anytime someone in industry wanted to hamstring the labor movement, all they did was take it to a Republican and have it introduced."

Labor unions traditonally have donated funds to Democrats and industry has donated to Republicans. Republicans favor the earmarking method.

John Hall, lobbyist for the Ohio Education Association, told the committee that to have each member designate a party or a candidate "just would't be practical, and wouldn't work."

Gilligan's bill, and another just like it, were introduced in both houses, and a Republican proposal by Sen. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake, also was offered in both chambers.

Separate proposals were offered in the House by Reps. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, and Don S. Maddux, D-90, Lancaster. Election committees of the Senate and House held afternoon and evening hearings, but took no action.

House and Senate leaders said they planned to hold only skeleton sessions until a bill is ready for full floor consideration.

Most of the bills have similar provisions. Generally, they limit individual contributions and those by family units to $3,000 in any one election, require disclosure of all contributions above $10, require reporting of contributions and expenditures before and after an election, and fix amounts that may be spent for the various state, district, and local offices.

James Marsh, assistant secretary of state, was among witnesses who appeared before the Senate committee headed by Sen. Stanley J. Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati.

He reiterated proposals made earlier by Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, including one that would prohibit contributions by contractors engaged in business with a public agency. Such a provision is included in the Norris proposal in the House.

Marsh said the secretary of state's office also advocates a bi-partisan state elections commission made up of two members of each party from each chamber of the legislature, with the secretary of state serving as a fifth member. He also asked that it be an enforcement agency, rather than a quasi-judicial body as proposed by the governor.

The Gilligan proposal calls for five members to be named by the governor, with no more than three from one party, who would have the power to hear complaints and reverse decisions made by the secretary of state, among other things.

Set hearing on Boyle extradition

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. magistrate has scheduled a Nov. 9 extradition hearing for W.A. "Tony" Boyle, the former United Mine Workers president now recuperating from a nearfatal overdose of barbituates.

The hearing is on the government's attempt to have Boyle returned to Pennsylvania to face charges there in the 1969 slaying of UMW insurgent Joseph Yablonski, his wife and a daughter.

The hearing was set Tuesday by U.S. Magistrate Arthur Burnett.

Justice Department lawyer Ronald Malone and Boyle's lawyer, Charles Moses, agreed before Burnett that Boyle was competent to assist in his own defense and understand the charges against him.

The hearing has been rescheduled twice since Sept. 24 when Boyle was admitted to George Washington University Medical Center suffering from an overdose of barbituates in an apparent suicide attempt.

Boyle, 72, remained in satisfactory condition at the Hospital. His $50,000 bail remains suspended, and he is in the protective custody of U.S. Marshals.

Murder indictments were returned against Boyle in the deaths of UMW insurgent Joseph Yablonski, his wife, and a daughter.

Stock list drifts along

NEW YORK (AP)— In sharp contrast to Tuesday's dramatic swings, the stock market drifted along today, with investors cautiously evaluating the domestic and international scene.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up over 2 points early in the day, had slid back to 965.98, down .53, by noon. The New York Stock Exchange index likewise fell to a noon level of 59.11, off .04. Big Board advances equaled declines in moderate trading.

"The market will not be an aggressive animal until the Mideast situation and the domestic political turmoil are cleared up somewhat," said Larry Wachtel of Bache & Co.

On the Amex, the market value index was down .27 at 107.72 as McCulloch Oil lead trading, unchanged at 7¾.

On the Big Board, most-active British Petroleum, up ⅜ at 14⅝, was helped by a 143,000-share block which moved at 14½, up ¼.

A high pressure area east of Ohio, that has controlled the state's weather for several days, has begun to weaken.

The weakening low should allow a cold front to move east over the state by Friday. As the front approaches, southerly winds will increase, breaking up the stagnant air which has caused an air pollution advisory to be issued for Ohio.

Clear skies overnight allowed temperatures to drop into the 30s over parts of northwestern Ohio. At dawn readings ranged from 38 degrees at Toledo to 56 degrees at Mansfield. Most of the state reported readings in the 40s.

Early morning fog was general over the state, and sunny but hazy skies were expected the rest of the day. Readings were forecast to climb to the 70s across most of the state and the 80s in the south.

Clear skies are expected tonight with lows from the upper 40s to low 50s. Thursday will be generally sunny with highs again in the 70s and low 80s, but clouds will begin moving into northern Ohio toward evening.

A chance of showers Friday and Saturday. Mild Friday, cooler Saturday and Sunday. Highs will be in the 70s Friday, then drop to the 60s Saturday and Sunday. Lows will be in the 50s early Friday and in the 40s Saturday and Sunday mornings.

Court upholds voting ban

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A post office box number cannot be used to fill the residency requirements of Ohio's voter registration law, the Ohio Supreme Court ruled today.

William Kyser, an Ohio Bell Telephone Co. employe in Cleveland who lived in a self-contained motor home—parking it in any area in which he happened to be working at the time—had tried to vote using a box number as an address.

The Cuyahoga County Board of Elections refused to register him as a qualified voter in Ward 31, Precinct E, in Cleveland. The Common Pleas Court upheld the board.

The Court of Appeals for Cuyahoga County reversed the lower court decision, giving Kyser the right to register. The high court reversed that decision.

Crash brings death charge

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Police have charged a 20-year-old Columbus man with vehicular homicide after a head-on crash early Tuesday on a downtown bridge.

Gary Swann was charged in the death of Michael Stone, 17, of Ashland.

Two passengers in Stone's car were hospitalized. A hospital spokesman said one, Christopher Graves, 18, of Kutztown, Pa., was in critical condition.

Police said Swann was driving in the wrong lane.

Columbus school supervisor resigns

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The supervisor of testing and evaluation services for Columbus schools has resigned after paying the school system $3,235 which an audit showed was missing from his office.

William LeSage denied any wrongdoing, and said he repaid the money out of a sense of moral obligation and because of his embarrassment that the shortage occurred in an area under his supervision.

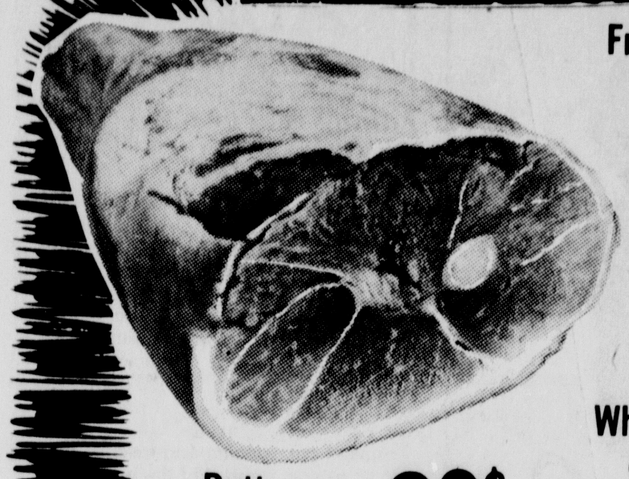

Thanks to friends for their flowers, cards and visits while I was a patient in Memorial Hospital. Special thanks to Dr. Binzel, Rev. Emerick and Anderson Ambulance Service.

Opinion And Comment

Class action dilemma

It is good news for millions of consumers that the Supreme Court has agreed to review a disturbing lower court ruling on class action suits. Were this ruling by the U.S. District Court of Appeals in New York to stand, individual plaintiffs in class action suits would have to bear the cost of notifying each person in whose behalf the suit was brought.

The practical effect of this would be to all but emasculate a citizen's power to sue corporate defendants in behalf of many others allegedly wronged. The case that gave rise to the appeals court ruling, for example, was filed by an individual for himself and 2.7 million other purchasers of stocks in odd lots. The cost of notifying that many people would be enormous.

The consequences were cogently summed up in a dissenting opinion by Judge James L. Oakes. The decision, he said, would "give the green light to monopolies and conglomerates who deal in quantity items selling at small prices to proceed to violate the antitrust laws unhampered by any realistic threat of private consumer civil proceedings."

Up to now it has been fairly common for federal judges to make corporate defendants responsible for notifying all involved if the judge felt the plaintiffs probably would win the case. This is not a desirable way of handling the matter, either; indeed, the appeals court called it "legalized blackmail" sometimes used to pressure corporate defendants into out-of-court settlements.

Some way must be found, though, to assure that the burden of notifying thousands or millions of class action plaintiffs does not fall on an individual or small group. One can hope that a Supreme Court ruling will point the way to a solution fair to both plaintiffs and defendants.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

The way to get rid of our waste

The trouble with the professional environmentalists, with whom I seem to be embroiled over differences in emphasis, is that they don't keep abreast of what our big companies are doing to enable us to combine progress with clean and happy surroundings.

Great things are stirring in the laboratories and on drawing boards, but the negativists, looking at only one side of the story, miss the total picture.

For examples, I would have waited a dog's age to learn from an environmentalist that RCA has a fail-safe system for monitoring the Alaska pipeline, or that Dr. Armand Hammer's Occidental Oil Co. has what it deems a workable method of turning garbage into oil, a method which it plans to test in the city of San Diego.

THE ENVIRONMENTALISTS attack the whole idea of electric power consumption, which means that they have it in for General Electric, manufacturer for all those appliances that give us the leisure to enjoy the outdoors that the Sierra Club wants to preserve. It happens that if any company can help us combine productivity and leisure with the added boon of clean surroundings, it is big GE.

The solid, sensible governor of Connecticut, Tom Meskill, knowing that people who are accustomed to a modern standard of living aren't going to give up such things as automobiles, newspapers, magazines, cans, bottles and the advantages of sterile packaging, all of which create waste, has turned to General Electric to give him a statewide Solid Waste Management Plan.

Working with the Connecticut Department of Environmental Protection and enlisting the help of various utilities companies, GE put some thousands of man-days into studying the possibility of building 10 reprocessing facilities at strategic points throughout the state.

The first recovery plant, designed ultimately to handle 1,800 tons of refuse a day, will be under construction at Bridegport by next year. This is beginning close to home, for GE is moving its corporate headquarters from New York City to Fairfield, a suburb of Bridgeport.

When the GE system is completed, with plants spotted all around the state at places determined by computer analysis of population density, the state hopes to recover 60 per cent of its refuse either as material or energy. Air pollution from waste disposal will be reduced by 70 per cent, and the land consumption required for garbage dumps will drop by 80 per cent.

If GE can help Connecticut, a heavily populated state, solve its solid waste disposal problems within 10 years, it will set a pattern for the whole nation. But it will not dispose of the more difficult problem of ridding the air of pollutants from cars and factory chimney stacks.

I HAVE OFTEN wondered why GE or United Aircraft, companies that make big jet engines, can't team up with some large engineering firm to provide a way for clearing the Los Angeles area of the smog that results from the millions of automobiles on the freeways. The idea would be to run a tunnel system through the mountains of the Sierra Madre to the north of the city. By using jet propulsion to force a continuous air current through the tunnel system, couldn't the Los Angeles smog be dissipated into empty desert air on the other side of the mountains?

I asked a GE man if my idea were entirely fanciful. He said he was in no position to estimate its possible cost.

But in Europe they tunnel through the Alps, and an ex-GE man, John McCarty, the assistant to the president of Pepperdine University, a small Los Angeles college that believes in teaching the virtues of private enterprise, tells me that he thinks his old company might be up to the job of dealing with smog.

McCarty's alternate idea would be to transport automobiles into Los Angeles on moving conveyor treads. The drivers could sit and read the papers on their last lap to downtown officer.

Well, why not? That would cost money, too, but some way must be found to let Los Angeles keep its cars and at the same time breathe decent air.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Pentagon training aids Egyptians

WASHINGTON — The way the Pentagon has trained the world's army chiefs, and particularly those in right-wing dictatorships, is pointed up by what is happening in the Middle East war. The Egyptians' initial battlefield successes owe a lot to that training.

Lt. Gen. Sadeddin Shazlip chief of staff of the Egyptian forces, recognzed as a brillian strategist, received a key component of his military education at Ft. Benning, Ga., and Ft. Lee, Va.

The paratroop, air drop and air transport courses he took in 1953 were the initial impetus for the airborne tactics he employed in getting his troops across the Suez Canal and into the mountain passes threatening the Israeli stronghold of Sharm el Sheik.

Widely recognized not only for his generalship but for his zeal in endowing the Egyptian armies with the will to fight, Shazli enbodies in his person the superpower confrontation in the Middle East. Following his training in the United States he commanded a paratroop unit in the Suez Crisis of 1956 when Britain, France and Israeli attacked Egypt while the United States joined the Soviet Union and Arab elements in opposing the invasion which was halted by United Nations action. The following year, after promotion to lieutenant colonel Shazli went to Moscow for further training.

TOP MILITARY MEN from South Vietnam, Greece, Thailand, Yugoslavia, Saudi Arabia and many other countries, including Israel, have had the rigorous, highly effective course at Benning. Following their workout in all aspects of airborne warfare they are given VIP tours around the country. Hardly a day goes by that colonels and majors, often in the gaudy uniforms of Latin American, are not being trotted around to see the sights of Washington.

The Chilean generals received extensive American help on the scene in Santiago prior to the coup that overthrew the Marxist government of Salvador Allende. This was done through the Military Assistance Program (MAP). As washington cut down on economic aid to the Allende regime, military aid rose rapidly.

That the United States trains forces that are often the agents of repression is hardly a secret to public opinion in those countries where the tough military hold the line. In Thailand, as a recent example, the military shot down hundreds of student protesters before the government then in power with military backing surrendered to overwhelming opposition.

THE AMERICAN ROLE in providing technical skills for the military supporting law and order for the regimes in power has contributed to the alienation not only of the left but often of those in the middle believing that hope of democratic change is denied by the men with the guns.

This feeling is reinforced in some instances by the training given through Agency for International Development (AID) programs to public safety and police forces.

AID provides 14 to 17 weeks of training at the International Police Academy in Washington. A recent graduating course included Thais, Filipinos, South Koreans, South Vietnamese and Chileans. Courses are conducted for senior police officers and for those at the middle management level.

In some cases (Saudi Arabia is one) the country pays all the costs. Latin-American trainees have come from Uruguay, Bolivia, Colombia and Ecuador.

Altogether AID has sent 4,661 police from 75 countries through the course. The $7.4 million in the fiscal 1974 budget is the lowest figure in the history of the program as are all other AID allocations in a record-low request.

AS A STAR Benning graduate, Shazli made many friends among his American classmates. They sent him congratulations when in 1971 he became chief of staff of the Egyptian forces, when in 1971 he became chief of staff of the Egyptian forces, the youngest ever to hold that post. In President Anwar Sadat's purge of the military he replaced Lt. Gen. Mohammed Sadek.

One of the few to distinguish himself in the Egyptian rout during the six-day war in 1967 Shazli was among the last to leave the Sinai Peninsula, swimming across the canal to escape capture. As an official of the Arab League he has passionately preached the cause of Arabism.

The thousands of officers passing through the Benning course learn a lot about American military technique. What they may learn about American attitudes and belief is another matter.

Love found to be better on second time around

LONDON (AP) — Albert and Violet Pamment, 73 and 72 respectively, have wed again after being divorced for 32 years.

A chance meeting between Albert and daughter Patricia brought them together, and their younger son Clifford, 44, was best man at the wedding.

"We are wiser and more sensible now," said Violet.

Hal Boyle . . . Making life worth living

NEW YORK (AP) — Things that make life worth living:

An unexpected smile, a pleased palate, a philosophic mind, an answering love.

The excitement of spending your first night outdoors in a sleeping bag.

As a child, calling up the zoo and asking if Mr. Bear or Mr. Wolf can come to the telephone.

Winning the daily double at a racetrack with the only $2 you brought along to bet.

Drinking a triple-dip malted milk with a plump lady on a day when you both feel like saying to hell with all diets.

The conversation of lawyers, when they are at their ease and therefore not under oath to tell either the whole truth or nothing but the truth.

Putting your ear to a train rail and hearing a train singing its way around a curve in the distance.

Reeling in a big one in a fished-out lake from which the wise guys said all the big ones had been taken long ago.

Sitting on the front porch at a family reunion and listening to a tipsy elderly uncle cackle with laughter as he recalls how he defeated the Kaiser almost singlehanded in the first World War.

Having the pretty red-haired girl in your kindergarten class tell you, with a deep and tremulous sigh, how much she wished she could draw a white lamb in a green field as pretty as the one you drew.

The sight of a picnic table in the park, loaded with tempting and colorful edibles and potables, just before a dozen whooping children reach for the sandwiches en masse.

The overwhelming feeling of protectiveness you get when your best girl rests her head on your shoulders as you both are gazing into firelight. Why is there never a dragon handy when you need one to slay?

Sneaking down in your bathrobe and pajamas to see the brightly decorated yule tree on Christmas morning before anyone else in the house is awake.

Scoring the winning run in a sandlot baseball game by beating the throw to home plate by a foot in the last of the ninth inning. Doesn't it happen to every kid at least once in his life?

Finally realizing, much later than you should, just what a sheltering grace the love of your father and mother has always been. And, when you try with stumbling words to tell them this, simply getting a nod and quiet smile from each.

For these and other benefits of being, our thanks, Amen.

Dear Abby:
By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Family taught not to fear snakes

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations for standing up for the snake. I had a pet boa constrictor for many years and kept him until he became too big to feed, after which I gave him to the zoo.

I have taught our children to differentiate between poisonous and nonpoisonous snakes and encouraged them to hold snakes in their hands so that this irrational fear of snakes did not occur in my family.

Snakes eat rodents and insects, and are an important part of the balance of nature. If we had more snakes, we would need less dangerous pesticides. Sign me . . .

HOUSTON LAWYER

DEAR LAWYER: But we might lose a Roman Catholic priest. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Your defense of the much-maligned serpent was very thought-provoking, but there is another side to that story.

I am a Roman Catholic priest, and I have found that many otherwise quiet "normal" people suffer from herpetophobiathe fear of snakes. It is no mere prejudice, biblical or otherwise, but actually a fear as deeply rooted and as difficult to treat as claustrophobia (fear of enclosure), acrophobia (fear of heights), or any other phobia.

Most herpetophobes will readily agree that their fear is entirely irrational, but that makes it no less real.

Some herpetophobes nearly have heart failure just coming upon a picture of a snake in a magazine. I know, I am one of them, and have been since before I even knew there was a Bible. I have no idea why I am this way, but I do know that if anyone tries to bring a snake into this rectory, I'm leaving!

A HERPETOPHOBIC PRIEST

P.S. One fear I do not have is signing my name to Letters-to-the Editor and the like, but this is one instance where prudence may dictate an exception. I will sign it, but please don't use my name in your column. There are too many clowns around here for comfort.

DEAR ABBY: I am a fairly attractive widow, living on what is laughingly called "widow's row."

I have been completely captivated by a retired Marine officer who lives next door to me. He is a widower and everything a woman could want in a man, but no woman seems able to attract his attention.

Many evenings I go to sleep listening to him play the piano. It's the most beautiful music I've ever heard, but it sounds so sad.

Those who have known him say that his wife died when they were both very young, and since then he has built a shell around himself that no woman has been able to penetrate.

Obviously, my problem is, how can I let him know that I am interested in him?

NEAR AND YET SO FAR

DEAR NEAR: Invite him to join you in some special dinner. If he reciprocates, you may see the start of a good friendship, at least. After that - who knows?

CONFIDENTIAL TO "KENTUCKY GIRL WHO NEEDS HELP IN INDIANA": Don't "hang around" hoping he might change. Have nothing more to do with him, resume the relationship.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Today

Today is Wednesday, October 24th, the 297th day of the year. There are 68 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, the Soviet Union became the 29th nation to ratify the United Nations charter, putting the charter into force.

On this date in 1603, James I was proclaimed king of England, Scotland, France and Ireland.

In 1795, Poland was partitioned by Prussia, Austria and Russia.

In 1861, the first telegrams were sent across the United States.

In 1929, prices collapsed on the New York Stock Exchange.

In 1962, the United States declared a blockade of Cuba, following reports of a Soviet missile buildup on the island.

In 1963, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Adlai Stevenson, was roughed up by right-wing demonstrators after making a speech in Dallas, Tex.

Ten years ago ... the United States completed a two-day airlift, moving the 2nd Armored Division of the Army from Fort Hood, Tex., to bases near Frankfort, Germany.

Five years ago ... President Johnson's eldest daughter, Lynda Bird Robb, gave birth to a baby girl.

One year ago ... the U.S. Supreme Court rejected a legal move to force the U.S. Archives to release some of the autopsy materials and other items relating to the assassination of President Kennedy.

Today's birthday: Former National Football League quarterback Y.A. Tittle is 47.

Thought for today: I have often been struck by the fact that the symptoms of laziness and fatigue are practically identical — Frederick Lewis Allen, American writer 1890-1954.

'Open Court' reading program explained to DKG

"New programs in our elementary schools have developed because the classroom teachers are willing to give their own time for special instruction, especially in reading and mathematics," Mrs. June Slaughter told 41 members of Delta Kappa Gamma at their October meeting Monday night in the Terrace Lounge.

Mrs. Slaughter, elementary coordinator for the Miami Trace schools, described the 'Open Court' reading program which is being used in the first and second grades this year.

'Open Court' utilizes a phonics approach to develop skill in reading, composition, and spelling primarily. Certain material is presented to the entire class each day, but the ingenuity of the teacher provides specialized instruction for the individual student in a workshop situation.

She showed samples of writing from second graders, and also mentioned the new mathematics program and the kindergarten.

Hugh Rea, elementary supervisor for the Washington City schools, described several special programs which are furthering education in both City and Miami Trace districts.

The speech and hearing therapists, the E.M.R. teachers, the Learning Disabilities specialists, and the psychologists are financed partly through funds mandated from the state income tax. Since one child out of 20 has a serious learning problem, Mr. Rea stated that these special services help the one child and also free the classroom teacher to do a better job with the other 19.

Mrs. Carrie Stephenson gave the invocation which preceded the meal, and the president, Miss Helen Hutson, presided at the business meeting.

In addition to the usual reports and correspondence, Mrs. Edith Parsley mentioned the highlights of the 1972-73 club year and told the group they are now filling the seventh Delta Kappa Gamma scrapbook.

The next meeting will be Nov. 26 at the Terrace Lounge with Kaye Barlett, who will explain the community education project.

Marriage is announced

Miss Vicki Lynn Sturgill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Olen Sturgill, 707 Maple St., became the bride of John Thomas George, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Jones, 536 Comfort Lane, Saturday. The Rev. Arthur George performed the wedding ceremony in the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Iona Nichols, 1103 Rawlings St.

The new Mrs. George is a senior at Washington Senior High School. Her husband, a 1973 graduate of WSHS, is employed at Landmark.

A reception for the newly married couple followed the wedding ceremony. The couple is residing at 226 S. Fayette St.

Young hijacker regrets her past

BY JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With her expressive brown eyes dominating a tiny face framed in long dark hair, her slight figure and her soft, Tamsin Fitzgerald conveys an impression of fragility.

In fact, she looks a good deal more like the flute player and poetry-writer she now is than the plane hijacker and two-year resident of a federal penitentiary that she once was.

At age 23 she looks back with disbelief at "my lack of judgment, maturity or whatever" that involved her at age 18 in an abortive attempt with her boyfriend to hijack a plane to Cuba so that he could avoid the draft.

"Michael was under a lot of pressure about the Army, and at that time there were a lot of zany hijackings," she relates. "It was a thought that originated in his mind. That never would have occurred to me in my lifetime. It's just not my style."

He told her she didn't have to go along, his 5-foot-3, 100-pound partner admits. "He was right, but I didn't listen to him," she says. "I didn't like the thought of him disappearing into the skies. I was really hung up on him, so I tagged along."

Michael, who was 21, "didn't display the necessary force" and authorities were waiting for the two when the plane landed in Miami, and both were sent to prison.

It was at Alderson Federal Penitentiary in West Virginia that Tamsin wrote a series of letters and fragments of poetry to Richard A. Condon, the author of a book on flute-playing. He was so struck with the sensitive insights his correspondent showed that he had edited the letters into a narrative as a book recently published under the title, "Tamsin."

The author of the letters has been out of prison now for two years and is working at a publishing house and pursuing a musical degree at the Manhattan School of Music.

"How could I defend what we did?" she asks in retrospect. "It was a terribly stupid thing to do and I can't believe I could have done it. Michael should have considered going to jail 'cause that's what he ended up doing.

"We were so lucky not to be hurt or to hurt anybody or to have gotten a life sentence or gone to Cuba. I can't believe how lucky we were," adds Tamsin, who because of her youth will not be saddled with a criminal record. "But in my case it's silly to say I haven't been busted because everyone knows I have."

Michael was freed at the same time she was and they remained together for a while but have gradually drifted apart, and she doesn't know where he is right now.

"I have a lot of feeling for Michael," she says. "When you have been friends, playmates and lovers something remains, but I think the intenseness is over, though I don't really know. If Michael showed up on my doorstep in 25 years I would be very happy to see him.

"We were both immature and messed up and we were lucky to meet each other because we were the same size," she goes on. "But as we grow stronger and different we are growing apart and don't fit so well any more."

But, she says, if it had not been for Michael, his letters and emotional support, she could never have survived prison. "Of course," she adds with a smile, "If it had not been for him I wouldn't have been in prison."

She feels strongly that prisons, which she says are the only institutions that thrive on failure, do not work because of their dehumanizing effect.

"Because a person couldn't cope in the real world they provide an unreal world where he doesn't have to make decisions," she points out. "Then he goes back into the world where he couldn't make it before, after years of being treated like an animal. Returning people is what keeps prisons functioning.

"Prison is too removed from reality," she continues. "A halfway house or any kind of a way to keep the person in touch with the community would be a better approach."

Tamsin, who explains that her name is of Welsh origin, was born and grew up in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., where her parents still live. "My mother is my best friend," she says. "I only recently realized the excruciating pain involved in seeing someone you love hurt themselves."

As for the future, she hopes to earn a living by playing the flute. She has had some second thoughts about the renewal, through publication of her letters, of something she would like to put in the past.

ESA chapters win awards at Convention

Epsilon Sigma Alpha International held the 26th annual Ohio State Convention at Ramada Inn, North Columbus, last weekend.

Special guest speaker for the event was Mrs. Jo Isquierdo of California, second vice president of International ESA Council.

The Convention opened with a "school days" mixer Friday evening. Entertainment was by Michael O'Mally, disc jockey for WRFD Radio in Columbus. Beta Omega entered and won third place in the skit talent contest, which was written by Mrs. Charles Moore.

Saturday, members of Beta Omega and Alpha Theta attended the Convention assemblies and luncheon. Both chapters were participants in the song contest. Mrs. More of Beta Omega chapter wrote the words of the song which placed third in the contest.

Alpha Theta was among one of the 18 chapters in the state of Ohio presented the gold link award for their educational programs. The chapter was also presented the state philanthropic trophy for the money donated by the annual "bike ride for life."

On Sunday a church service and brunch were attended by the group. Those present were Mrs. John Bernard, Mrs. Paul Cox, Mrs. Don Gibbs, Mrs. Jerry Hoppes, Mrs. Jack Merriman, Mrs. Ron Ratliff, Mrs. Roger Thompson, Mrs. Loretta George, Mrs. Wayne Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Everhart, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hagler, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Haines, Mr. and Mrs. Gary McMurray and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moore.

LCW elects new officers

The October General Meeting of the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church Women was held recently in the lower church with fifteen persons in attendance.

It was announced that World Community Day will be held November 2nd at the Methodist Church. It was the consensus of the group to make a cash donation towards the purchase of new children's clothing for the Clothing Center. Tickets are also available for anyone interested in attending the luncheon.

Election of officers was held with the following slate elected: President, Mrs. Hilbert Meyer; vice-president, Mrs. Ora Burdge; secretary, Mrs. Darrell DeBolt; treasurer, Mrs. Carl Garrett; committee chairmen: outreach and fellowship, Mrs. Roger Miller; Christian action, Mr . James Puckett; worship, Mrs. Ned Wolfe and faith and life, (to be announced later).

Following the meeting, Mrs. Ralph Gebhart showed very interesting movies, pictures, and articles, from their trip to Peru.

The next circle meetings will be the Mary-Martha Circle at Mrs. Roger Miller's on November 12, and the Naomi Circle at Mrs. Ralph Gebhart's on November 14.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Colyer of Cleveland were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Dowler, 729 E. Market St.

Mrs. Charles (Tim) Botkin and daughter Jennifer of Triangle, Va., were visitors in the home of her mother and sister, Mrs. Ediwn Bramblett and Donna, 732 Yeoman St. the past week. They also visited with Mr. and Mrs. Terry Enochs. Dr. and Mrs. Tom Botkin of Muncie, Ind., visited at the Bramblett home also, having brought Mrs. Botkin and Jennifer from Muncie.

Jon Creamer, master of ceremonies for the program following the Western Roundup banquet at the South Side Church of Christ on Saturday, was assisted by Jim Creamer, minister of the Allensburg Church of Christ, who led the "Pickin' and Grinin" and a camp fire sing-along. Randy Creamer, a student at Kentucky Christian College, also sang and accompanied himself on the guitar.

Tim Williams will serve as best man. Seating the wedding guests will be Steve Begin and Jerry Smith, both of Washington C.H. and Keith Bochard of New Holland. Master Mattew Williams will serve as ring bearer.

Hostesses for the reception in Fellowship Hall following the wedding ceremony will be Mrs. Roger Lewis of Findlay, Mrs. Roger Ingram, Mrs. Pat Denen and Mrs. Dale Jennings. Miss Janenen Begin will preside at the guest book, and Miss Cindy Hollingshead of Urbana will be in charge of the rice bags.

Paint Valley CF Board announces annual candy sale

The Paint Valley Camp Fire Council Board met in the CF office recently, when Frank Sanderson, president, announced the annual CF candy sale will begin Nov. 5. Mrs. Kathy Deakyne is chairman of the project this year. He also announced that a new film strip entitled, "A Way of Growing" will be ordered, to promote the CF program, and that 56 were present for the annual "Pow Wow" held at Camp Murdock recently.

Jean Gray of Dayton will be present for a special leader's training session to be held in First Presbyterian Church Nov. 7 from 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m.

The annual dinner-awards meeting is planned for Nov. 26 in Mahan Hall.

Those present for the meeting besides Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson, were Mr. and Mrs. David Sullivan of Chillicothe, Mrs. Don Wood, Mrs. Fred James, Mrs. Allen O. McClung, Mrs. David Moore and Paul Edgington.

Layette shower given for Mrs. Hughes

Mrs. Brenda Hughes was honored at a layette shower Sunday by hostesses Mrs. Beryl Kelley and Miss Carolyn Nungesser, in the home of Mrs. Glenn McCoy of Bloomingburg.

A pastel color scheme was carried out in the home decorations. A miniature bassinet containing a tiny doll was centered on the refreshment table, in front of which blocks spelled out "Baby Hughes."

Contest winners were Mrs. Elaine Cockerill, Mrs. Sue Evans, Mrs. Cleo Hoppes, who presented their prizes to the honored guest.

Later Mrs. Hughes opened her many gifts which had been placed in a bassinet.

Refreshments of cake, punch, mints, and nuts were served.

Invited guests included with the honored guest were Mrs. Cleo Hoppes, Mrs. Brenda Berner, Mrs. Sue Evans, Miss Cathy Newbrey, Mrs. Patty Kelley, Miss Susie Black, Mrs. Elaine Cockerill, Mrs. Ann Spahr, Mrs. Lloyd Fennig, Mrs. Kathy Lower, Mrs. Jenny Hoppes, Mrs. Jane Henry, Miss Gail Braden, Mrs. McCoy, Miss Nungesser, Mrs. Kelley and daughter Jodi.

Frost an angel food cake with slightly sweetened whipped cream; sprinkle the frosting with crushed butter toffee. The cake may be make from a mix or store-bought. Easy dessert and lovely for company.

When you package foods for the freezer, make sure thet the seal is very tight—an important precaution that insures keeping moisture in and air out.

Harvest theme prevails at meet

The Good Fellowship Class of First Christian Church met in the church for the recent class meeting. Kenneth Blair, president, conducted the meeting and Paul Thornhill gave the opening prayer. Devotions of a harvest theme were presented by Marvin Smith, who also read several appropriate poems which were inspirational and entertaining.

During the social hour the 25 present assembled at tables decorated with a fall and Halloween theme. Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Blair and Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

MW Committee to aid Indians

Thirteen members of the Martha Washington Committee on Indian Affairs, Daughters of the American Revolution, assembled in the home of Mrs. Willard Bitzer Monday evening, for an interesting 'chalk talk' presented by Miss Helen Slavens, who used the fall season and a patriotic theme for her drawings.

The group voted to give $10.00 to the St. Mary's Indian School in South Dakota, and $5.00 to the Helen Pouch Memorial. Members are to bring clothing to Mrs. Ronald Cornwell to be mailed to the Kate Duncan and Tamassee Indian Schools. Members will also bring Christmas gifts for teenagers at the Chilocco Indian School to the November 26 meeting to be held in the home of Mrs. Robert P. Harris.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Bitzer, Mrs. Zoe Garinger, Mrs. Byron Hinton, Mrs. Dean Powell, Mrs. Thomas J. Hancock and Mrs. James Kiger.

Delta CCL meets with Mrs. Gerber

Mrs. David Gerber welcomed the members of Delta Child Conservation League to her home. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Glenn Armintrout and Mrs. Wilbur Fleming.

Guest speaker for the evening was Ronald Lott, child psychologist in the Miami Trace School district, whose subject was "Learning of the Disabled Child." Mr. Lott told the group that a disabled child could be identified before arriving at school age, and that five per cent of all children having learning disabilities. Ohio sponsors such a chapter to aid these children.

Mrs. Charles Cunningham reported on the CCL Convention held in Toledo, when the theme was "Through the Eyes of a Child."

Members were reminded to bring a white elephant gift to the open November meeting.

Willing Workers meet in Hanawalt home

The members of the Willing Workers Class of the Madison Mills United Methodist Church met in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Hanwalt.

Mrs. John Melvin presented the devotions, and John Stamer conducted the meeting. Mrs. Gary Hidy reported the community calendars have been delivered to members who in turn are in the process of delivering them. All money and tally sheets must be in by Nov. 30.

A discussion was held concerning the possibility of the class giving a basket at Thanksgiving time to a needy family, of which Mrs. Melvin is chairman.

It was announced that the Columbus South District dinner will be Nov. 29 at 6:30 p.m. in the Glenwood United Methodist Church in Columbus.

The Bloomingburg-Madison Mills charge conference will be held in the Bloomingburg Methodist church at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 3.

Mr. Stamer appointed John Melvin, Alvin Johnson and Jon Delay to serve on the nominating committee. Mr. and Mrs. Hidy will be hosts for the November meeting, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Stamer.

Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Hanawalt and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Reid to Mr. and Mrs. Roger Dorn, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin and family, Mr. and Mrs. Stamer and children, Mr. and Mrs. Hidy and daughter, Mrs. Johnson, Rev. Frank Allen White and Jodi and Kathy Hanawalt.

Returns home

Mrs. John P. Case, organist of First Presbyterian Church, attended an all-day workshop Monday at Ohio State University on organ composition of Cesar Franch. The workshop was conducted by Dr. Wilbur Held, chairman of the Keyboard Department at the University School of Music. Mr. Lowell Riley of First Community Church, assisted the recordings of Franch works on some of the famous Cavaille-Coll organs in France and Spain, including one in Clothhilde in Paris, France, where Franch played from 1853 until his death in 1890.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

THURSDAY, OCT. 25

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Experiences of the past may give you the clues as to proper handling of this day's action. With correct procedure, you should do well.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Co-workers may oppose your tactics on the job, but that shouldn't discourage you. Your plans ARE good, so go ahead with them.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

If you aim straight and do not permit emotions or a one-sided viewpoint to throw you off course, you will know how to cope with ALL, not just some situations.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Use care in handling both job and family affairs. Don't take success for granted now. It must be earned — all the way.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

By investigating background information you receive, you may find a good way to improve your financial set-ups. But DO investigate. Don't act impulsively.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

You may not be in the best position to take action on a cherished project just now, but that needn't prevent you from planning.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Matters of minor importance could blow up out of proportion. Don't let them. Your quicksilver intuition and foresight should be a big help.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Take a second look before accepting new ideas or unusual propositions. Don't waste time and energy pursuing a will o' the wisp. Be especially careful about financial involvements.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

The risk of being taken in by your emotions or by fast-talkers is potent now. Safeguard your principles and your assets.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Stellar aspects indicate a new chance for advancement. Keep going in familiar areas and keep extracurricular activities in their proper place.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Uranus fairly generous. Dovetail activities with those of associates. Joint performances more resultful than solo ventures now.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Do not let a personal disappointment mar your overall perspective. Continue to aim for high goals. Your adeptness, know-how and intuition should be potent now.

YOU BORN TODAY are so vigorous in both work and play that, even though endowed with a robust constitution, you tend to run it down by overtaxing yourself. DON'T! You have fine executive ability, originality and enthusiasm. With your variety of talents and will power, and your very real desire for attainment, you should mold a happy, useful life. The Scorpio-born can pull themselves up from nowhere to a top position. You automatically know what pleases, usually cut red tape, getting at essentials quickly.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There've been a lotof cops 'n' robbers shows on the tube this season and most are pretty bad. Butsooner or later someone was bound to come up with something good.

It's finally happened with "Kojak," which premieres tonight on CBS-TV. Save time for it if you can, because it hasclass written all over it.

The proceedings star Telly Savalas as Theo Kojak, a New York police lieutenant who's so sardonic and hard-boild you get the feeling he warms up before work by sneering at babies.

Tnight's saga appears to have been lifted from a real-life drama of last yea, when some gunsels held up a Broklyn sporting goods store, then mae the patrons hostages when the police showed up and surrounded the plae.

The TV version starts things off with an armored car toldup that goes awry when a passing citizen sees it in progress and notifies the law.

The law arrives, there's a gunfight andthe baddies flee, three of them in a panl truck and four others — one of them mortally wounded — in a car.

The gang in the car is chased through the treets of New York, finally getting traped by a roadblock. They dump their wounded accomplice on the street and dash inside a war surplus store, shoting a cop who also had run in the store to warn the clerks and customers there to get out.

Then, as the police surround the place and bring in an armored half-track, the three stickup men demand a jetliner and freedom, threatening to kill their five hostages if their demands aren't met in two hours.

The rest of the show has Savalas, brisk and efficient, trying to end the impasse without bloodshed. You know he will, but it's an exciting, gripping hour nonetheless.

The show has the ring of authenticity to it, particularly in its depiction of the theater-ofthe-absurd atmosphere that usually attends these particular situations in New York.

A large crowd gathers to watch the show, the ubiquitous TV crew is there to bring it all live to the folks at home and even delegates from the Hare Krishna sect show up to dance, chant and ring their finger cymbals.

The madness is nicely summed up when the crowd cheers and applauds because the gunsels have surrendered and are walking out, preceded by Kojak carrying the body of a policeman.

Blonds had more fun in ancient Rome too, research indicates

NEW YORK (AP) — Apparently, ancent Romans thought blonds had moe fun. Blond wigs imported from Gemany or made from the hair of Geman captives were common, says theWorld Book Encyclopedia.

Roman women also dyed their hair as part of their routine, and some went so ar as to sprinkle their locks with gold dust in their efforts to disarm a Cerurion or two.

Women are still sprinkling "gold dus" in their hair, World Book notes. Today, an estimated $3.5 billion a year is pent in more than 180,000 beauty shos in the United States alone.

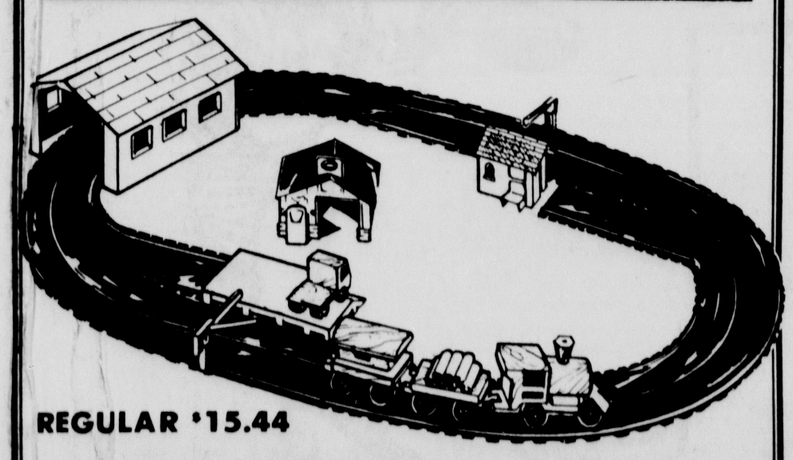

Sme 2.3 million barrels of crude oil moe daily on Canadian pipelines.

Grain prices hurt poor nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — A United Nations food authority has touched on a tender nerve — food shortages in poor countries — which has rarely been exposed by Nixon administration officials who have cited repeatedly the economic advantages to farmers of high grain prices caused by record grain exports.

Dr. Addeke H. Boerma, director-general of the U.N.'s Food and Agriculture Organization, put it this way:

"The rise in prices has two sides to it. Looked at in one way, it benefits exporting countries, not only in the developed, but in the developing world.

"But when it comes to the harmful effects — the increasingly heavier costs of food for ordinary people, the developing countries are much worse off than the developed."

In other words, according to Boerma, the world prices of wheat and other food grains have risen so much that many poor nations cannot afford enough to feed their people.

Boerma, whose comments were in a speech Tuesday night at an International Development conference here, called upon the United States and Russia to support his plan for setting up what he called a "minimum level of world food security," through a buildup of grain reserves to handle future food crisis situations.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has spoken consistently against government-owned "strategic reserves" of grain held back to help act as a buffer against rising food prices.

The U.S. grain supply, Butz has said, would be better left to the private trade and in farmers' hands on a supply and demand basis. Butz says farmers can boost incomes only if a thriving export market is maintained.

Boerma has warned for many months about real and impending hunger in many parts of the world. Record harvests have helped this year, but the relief is only temporary, he says.

"With world stocks down to a precariously low level and with the developing countries in an especially vulnerable position, the world will depend once again on a good crop year in the 1974-75 season in order to scramble home to safety," Boerma said.

High school official shot

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A Barberton High School official was reported in serious condition after being shot three times by a pupil in the school office.

Frederick T. Crewse Jr., 25, an administrative assistant at the school, was in the intensive care unit of Barberton Citizens Hospital being treated for wounds on the right and left side of his chest.

A hospital spokesman said the third shot was deflected by a ring on Crewse's right hand, but the hand was bruised.

Barberton police said they were searching for a 17-year-old youth.

Police said Crewse, who is dean of boys, had called the youth to the office during the noon lunch hour Tuesday to reprimand him for excessive absences.

Classes were called off for the afternoon following the shooting.

Sohio chief sees shortages of oil

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Charles E. Spahr, chairman of the Standard Oil Co. (Ohio), says "recent developments in the Middle East and North Africa" have cut into Sohio's crude oil sources and that more oil shortages are in prospect.

Spahr made the statement as he announced a big jump in nine-month earnings from $40.4 million in 1972 to $77.8 million this year.

Without extraordinary items totaling $15.3 million from sale of oil properties and uranium interests, the nine-month total was $62.5 million, or $3.40 a share, a 55 per cent increase.

Sales for the nine months ended Sept. 30 totaled $1,095,400,000, compared to $1,005,800,000 for the first nene months of 1972.

For the third quarter, net income totaled $18 million, or 97 cents a share, compared to $15.8 million, or 87 cents a share, for the third quarter of 1972.

Spahr warned of the possibility that Sohio may not be able to maintain refinery operations at scheduled rates because of the "growing shortage of crude oil."

He said unless Sohio can buy more supplies "it is likely that our company will fall substantially short of crude oil it needs to fulfill its operating plan for the coming year.

"Recent developments in the Middle East and North Africa have caused Sohio to lose crude oil from that area, and prospects for replacing it are conjectural."

A company spokesman said Spahr was referring to announced plans of some Arab states to curtail oil shipments to the United States.

Spahr said the oil shortage is compounded by the federal government's failure to implement a mandatory allocation program applying to all oil companies.

"If we are unable to obtain an adequate supply of crude oil and the coming winter should be unusually severe," he said, "the company will be forced to make even stricter allocations to industrial, commercial, transportation and construction industry customers to maintain supplies to our farm, residential heat and vital service customers."

Man indicted for threats against Nixon

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A federal grand jury has returned indictments charging income tax evasion, threatening to kill President Nixon, bank robbery and possession of stolen bonds, U.S. Atty. Frederick M. Coleman says.

Coleman said Tuesday the grand jury charged Henry J. Taylor Jr., 37, of Cleveland with making verbal threats to kill President Nixon. The threats were made on three late August occasions, the attorney said.

Taylor's indictment said witnesses heard him say he wanted to kill Nixon because he felt the President had stolen money from the people and that he would use sniper tactics in shooting Nixon.

Theodis Bankhead, 23, of Cleveland, was indicted on charges of possessing 149 U.S. savings bonds stolen from Akron area homes and valued at $5,100.

Raymond G. Harrison, 38, of Youngstown was indicted for the July 30 armed robbery of Home Savings and Loan Co., Youngstown, in which $2,242 was taken.

The income tax evasion indictments were returned against:

—Carl F. Torch, Chesterland, owner of Torch Nurseries and Landscape Design, for the years 1968-1970;

—Mr. and Mrs. Delmar R. Shaner, Magnolia, operators of a trucking and hauling business, for 1967-1970; and

—Henry J. Jackson, Shaker Heights, a cement contractor, for 1970-1971.

'Keystone' of local Guard units moved to Columbus

WCH Armory topkick assigned to brigade post

SGT. ROBERT J. GOODSON

Take it from First Sgt. Robert J. Goodson, a military career is both challenging and rewarding.

Sgt. Goodson, who has been the keystone of National Army Guard units based at the Armory in Washington C.H. for 23 years, has been promoted to operations, training and readiness specialist for the 73rd Infantry Brigade headquarters at the Sullivant Avenue Armory in Columbus.

He has said many times that he turned down opportunities to attend Army officer training schools and a commission because he enjoyed his work as first sergeant and administrative supply technician with Company A, First Battalion, 166th Infantry since Sept. 1, 1950.

Surprising as it may seem, Sgt. Goodson is a career Civil Service employe, although the last 23 years have been in military positions. He has had the designation of Army National Guard technician.

In that capacity, he has processed and helped train approximately 2,000 young men for Army National Guard service. He has served under nine different company commanders of Company M, Company C and Company A, all based at the Armory. Some of his previous company commanders are now colonels, lieutenant colonels, majors, captains and lieutenants.

PRIOR to his service with Company A, and its previous designations, Sgt. Goodson served with the Army in the Pacific Theater, Japan and the Philippines, during World War II, bringing his total military service to 26 years.

The Army Guard has achieved a long and enviable record through his long and dedicated service. The company has always received superior ratings at inspections, credited with outstanding and well trained personnel, and a statewide reputation as a strong and effective operational unit.

In his new assignment to the Buckeye Brigade, Sgt. Goodson will be working fulltime as an operations, training and readiness specialist. The Buckeye Brigade is comprised of units from many Ohio cities and is one of three in the three-state 38th Infantry Division, which includes Ohio, Michigan and Indiana. He commutes daily from his farm here on Mt. Olive Road, west of Washington C. H.

Selection of his successor with Company A here has not been made yet but is expected to be soon.

Air pollution alert is posted in Northeast Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The weatherman forecast some relief, but the state Environmental Protection Agency has ordered an air-pollution alert for Cleveland, Steubenville and nearby areas.

The National Weather Service, has issued an air stagnation advisory for the entire state.

The air-pollution index was 252 Tuesday morning for Monroe, Jefferson, Belmont, Columbiana and Cuyahoga counties the EPA said.

An alert is ordered when the index exceeds 200. Under an alert, industries are notified they may be required to cut back some operations.

The weather service forecast winds today that might break up the stagnant air.

BARN RAISERS — Some of the 600 Amish who gathered to replace a burned barn at Berlin, Ohio, are silhouetted as they worked on the rafters of the roof.

Saxbe thinks tapes release red herring

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — President Nixon's surprise surrender of the Watergate tapes may have been a ruse to draw Congress off a more serious path, Sen. William Saxbe, R-Ohio, said Tuesday.

Saxbe theorized for reporters that had the tapes contained evidence dangerous to the President, "They would have been destroyed before the investigation ever started."

"We're being drawn off on a false scent, perhaps," said Saxbe, a maverick Republican critic of the Nixon Administration.

The Committee to Re-elect the President, not the Republican Party, should shoulder the blame for the Watergate affair, Saxbe said.

"If the Republican party and state party organizations had been in charge, this would have never happened," he said.

"I saw something coming down there in Washington that was wrong, but I couldn't do anything about it," Saxbe said of his record of criticizing Nixon. Saxbe recently announced he will not be a candidate for re-election in 1975, stating primarily reasons of disillusionment with the Senate.

On other matters, Saxbe said the Senate should confirm at once Nixon's appointment of U.S. Rep. Gerald Ford, R-Mich., as a successor to former Vice President Spiro Agnew.

Should Nixon leave office without a vice president, Saxbe said, U.S. Rep. Carl Albert, D-Okla., the House Speaker, would be President.

"Albert isn't qualified and doesn't want it," Saxbe said.

Prosecutor still needed, Goodell says

GAMBIER, Ohio (AP)—Congress should reconstitute the office of special Watergate prosecutor with Archibald Cox at the head, former U.S. Sen. Charles Goodell of New York said here Tuesday night.

The liberal Republican commented freely on Nixon's latest actions in the Watergate investigation during a speech at Kenyon College on civil liberties in the United States.

"We had an ongoing investigation of the Watergate affair by an independent prosecutor, then information was leaked out that Cox was investigating other issues involving the President. Nixon fired Cox and replaced him with one of his minions.

"Under these circumstances, and considering Nixon's track record, we cannot have any confidence in the Justice Department. To me these are grounds for impeachment unless Nixon is willing to see that there is a vigorous and open investigation," Goodell said.

Goodell, who served nine years in the House before filling the Senate vacancy left by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's assassination also said Nixon's decision to release personal tapes would "probably slow down the move in Congress for impeachment."

Goodell lost his bid for reelection after former Vice President Spiro Agnew campaigned against him in the state.

Hamilton County wins federal funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Small Business Administration has declared Hamilton County a major disaster area because of flooding from June to early October.

Frank D. Ray, Columbus district director of the SBA, said on Tuesday the designation for the county and adjacent areas means home and business owners will be able to apply for loans at five per cent interest.

JOHNNY PAYCHECK

Greenfield books Johnny Paycheck

GREENFIELD—Country music star Johnny Paycheck will appear here Thursday for a benefit performance in the McClain High School auditorium.

All proceeds from the 8 p.m. and 10 p.m. shows will go toward making Christmas happier for needy youngsters in the Greenfield area.

A native of Greenfield, Paycheck has risen steadily in the country music field since his No. 1 hit of "Don't Take Her, She's All I Got" in 1971. Since then he has had two other hits and his latest recording, Mr. Lovemaker," also is headed to the top of the country charts.

Tickets will be available at the doors for both performances.

2 men captured in bank robbery

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— East Cleveland police engaged in a manhunt in Forest Hills Park before capturing two men and recovering about $11,000 allegedly taken in a bank robbery in the suburb Tuesday.

Police said Patrolman Robert Bayerl, 31, was wounded in an exchange of gunfire with three holdup men outside the Continental Bank branch. Bayerl was reported in satisfactory condition at Huron Road Hospital with an ear wound.

Police said one of the holdup men fled on foot and the other two jumped into Bayerl's cruiser and sped off.

The wettest spot on earth is said to be Mt. Waialeale, Hawaii, with an average annual rainfall of 460 inches.

More milk fund evidence bared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shortly after he was promised $2 million in campaign contributions from the dairy industry, President Nixon imposed import quotas on ice cream, cheese and other dairy products.

The promise was made in a letter to Nixon Dec. 16, 1970, which also requested action on the quotas. "We write you both as advocates and supporters," wrote Patrick J. Hillings, lawyer for the Associated Milk Producers, Inc.

"The time is ripe politically and economically to impose the recommended quotas," he said. "All that is necessary is a simple proclamation ..."

Nixon issued that proclamation Dec. 31, 1970, just 15 days after the letter was sent. The Associated Press disclosed the existence of the letter Monday and later obtained a copy of it.

The White House and Hillings were asked for comment on the matter. Neither responded.

"This letter discusses a matter of some delicacy and of significant political impact," Hillings wrote Nixon.

Hillings, a former Republican congressman from Nixon's old district in California, said milk producers had "followed our advice explicitly and will do so in the future. AMPI contributed $135,000 to Republican candidates in the 1970 election."

He then said the dairy group was working to set up channels "for AMPI to contribute $2 million for your re-election."

In the next paragraph, Hillings brought up the matter of quotas. He noted that the U.S. Tariff Commission had urged imposition of the quotas on Sept. 21, 1970, nearly three months earlier. "No presidential proclamation has been issued," he noted.

"The problem is this," he continued. "The dairy industry cannot understand why these recommendations were not implemented very quickly. The longest the Democrats ever took to implement a Tariff Commission dairy recommendation was 16 days."

He complained of low federal price supports for farm goods, and said, "Farmers generally are unhappy with the economy. You know our farm belt losses in the election."

The quotas Nixon imposed limit imports of ice cream, lowfat cheese, certain chocolate products and certain animal feeds containing milk or milk products. The President's action on quotas came less than three months before a controversial administration decision to increase the level of federal price supports on milk.

Public interest groups are suing the administration over that price boost, contending that it was a payoff to the dairy industry for more than $400,000 in campaign contributions that began to flow into the Nixon campaign three days before the increase was announced.

The first city in the United States to turn to the ocean for its regular supply of fresh water is Key West, Fla., which desalts the sea water.

A most unique educational facility?

Great Oaks progress outlined for Rotarians

Members of the Washington C. H. Rotary Club heard a glowing progress report about the Great Oaks Joint Vocational School District at their noon luncheon Tuesday in the Country Club.

Eugene Kavanagh, superintendent of the Great Oaks Joint Vocational School, highlighted the three-man program which included brief talks by Fred L. Domenico and Kenneth A. Payton, both members of the Great Oaks Board of Education.

Kavanagh, who spoke to Rotarians three years ago concerning the plans for the former Clinton County Air Force Base at Wilmington to be used as a vocational school, said the Laurel Oaks campus has the opportunity of becoming the most unique educational facility in the nation considering the tremendous support received and the fact that the site was donated by the federal government.

He said nearly $3 million has been spent renovating the former air base. A total of 35 buildings, formerly used by U.S. Air Force Reserve and Ohio Air National Guard units, have been remodeled and several new buildings have been constructed.

IN SPEAKING about the potential of the four school campuses in the Great Oaks District, Kavanagh said the district has a tax duplicate of $2,400,000,000 and by the end of next year the district will be operating on an annual budget of about $8 million. Funds for the school district are equally divided between local taxes and state support.

Kavanagh predicted that within two years 7,500 students will be enrolled in the schools on the four campuses. The adult participation, such as night classes, will exceed 7,500 in enrollment, he said.

Domenico pointed out that there are nearly 3,000 students enrolled in the Great Oaks District this year and more than 800 of those are students at Laurel Oaks. He said the Laurel Oaks campus operates basically on a six-hour day and the afternoon sessions are set aside for actual work experience with classroom instruction in the mornings.

Domenico said the vocational school is actually an extension of the high school curriculum. For example, he said, there are 55 course offerings at Washington Senior High School and the vocational school makes 64 more available to the high school student. Domenico pointed out that the vocational school gives the student a "marketable skill" and trains him or her to become a productive employe.

PAYTON said the vocational school is "part of your school district and you should be interested." He urged Rotarians to take a tour of the facilities and to support a proposed technical college which is now being delayed at the state level. Payton said the board has applied for a charter for the two-year technical college.

President Phil Grover conducted the business meeting and the program was arranged by Marshall D. Boggs, former superintendent of Washington C. H. city schools.

Student guests were Garth Cox, of WSHS, and Jeff Hux, of MTHS. Other guests were Superintendents Edwin Nestor and Guy Foster and Payton with Boggs, Roy South with Robert Lisk and Dick Karnes with Don Pierce. Visiting Rotarians were Gene Garrison and Lynn Rainsberger, both of Mount Sterling, and Walter Garman, of Wilmington.

SUPER GIRL — Juliet Forester, 24-year-old artist, has been selected as Cosmopolitan magazine's 1973 super girl.

Sohio closes two stations

Two Sohio service stations here have been closed and at least one of them will be abandoned, John Glenn of the company's real estate department in Columbus said Wednesday.

The property at Court and Hinde streets, owned by Sohio, will be sold. The pumps have been taken out, but the company hopes to include the underground tanks with the real estate when it is sold, Glenn said.

The station at the Parks Coal Yard, U.S. 35 just beyond the city corporation line, is on ground leased from Oscar Parks. It has been closed and Glenn said the company wants to sell the buildings, tanks, pumps and the lease.

In response to rumors that Sohio is planning to put up a station on the U.S. 35 bypass in the vicinity of the Jamison Road, west of Washington C. H., Glenn said the company may purchase or lease some land for a station in that area, but he emphasized nothing definite has been done. He did not say where the station would be located, if at all, or when it might be constructed.

Some Ohio classrooms may be cold

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some Ohio classrooms may be cold this winter unless school districts start planning now to conserve dwindling fuel supplies, state School Superintendent Martin Essex warned Tuesday.

Essex spent the day talking with school officials, refiners and fuel marketers about the current energy shortage and what schools could do to conserve fuel.

The nationwide shortage hit home this fall when 11 of Ohio's school districts were unable to contract for long-term fuel allocations because they were new customers, Essex said.

Suppliers have indicated there may even be a more serious problem this winter if weather is severe.

Essex said he hoped new federal fuel allocation regulations, to go into effect Nov. 1, would ease the shortage.

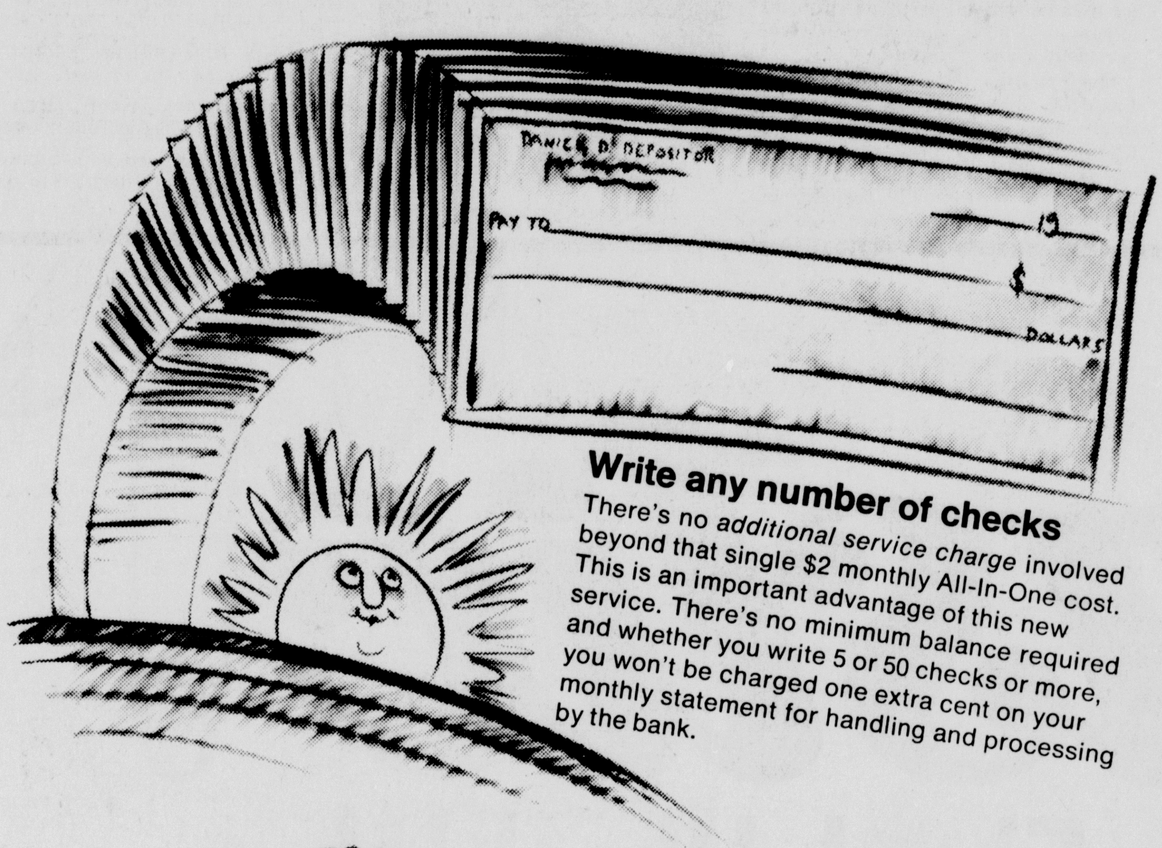

Meanwhile, he said, the state Department of Education would develop guidelines for schools to follow to conserve energy.

Among the recommendations, he said, are extended Christmas vacations, fewer gas-consuming bus stops and reduced lighting for custodians.

MTHS Seniors of Week

By BARBARA MARVIN

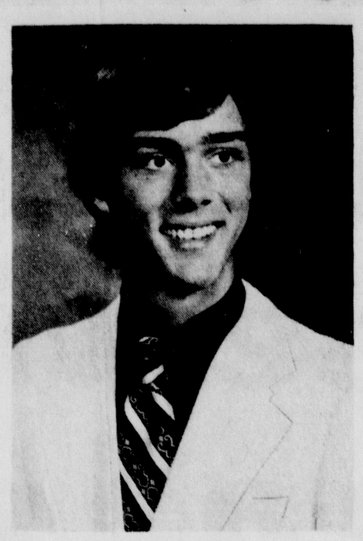

David Persinger, the first featured senior this week, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Persinger, Rt. 3, Washington C. H.

Business Law, Advanced Math, American Government, English Composition, Journalism, Drama Literature, Physics, and Family Living are all a part of David's curriculum this year. Of these, he enjoys Advanced Math most.

David is a member of the varsity basketball team, the Varsity M club, National Honor Society, and he is the vice-president of Student Council. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church. Playing basketball and bicycling rate as David's favorite hobbies.

FOLLOWING graduation, David plans to attend college. About his years at Miami Trace, David said, "I've enjoyed my years in high school and I'm looking forward to graduation."

David Foster, son of Superintendent and Mrs. Guy Foster, Rt. 4, Washington C. H., attended the National Science Foundation Summer Institute at Indiana University this year. After graduating, David plans to attend Indiana University where he will pursue a career in astronomy.

DAVID PERSINGER

DAVID FOSTER

Photography and camping are among David's hobbies. This year his subject are American Government, Advanced Math, Sociology, English Composition, Independent Science Study, Physics, Band, World Literature, and Journalism.

David has been a member of marching band and the Science Club for four years. This year he is vice-president of the Science Club. He is also active in Future Teachers.

About graduation, David had this to say, "High school is interesting and fun, but is merely a stepping stone to college."

Fire Chief speaks to FFA group

By SANDI KELLENBERGER

"To prevent fire losses, you have to start at the bottom of the ladder." Joe Denen, Washington C. H. Fire Chief, began his talk on Fire Prevention with this statement at the FFA meeting held during an activity period recently.

Along with telling the members about Fire Prevention week, which was Oct. 7-13, he spoke about the use of fire extinguishers, causes of fires and the requirements you must meet to become a fireman.

Mr. Denen listed many causes of fires, such as inadequate wiring, careless smoking, heaters or furnaces, children playing with matches, stopped-up chimneys and arson.

Mr. Denen closed by encouraging everyone to help prevent and control fires.

President Gary Taylor conducted the meeting.

Gary Bays named to head DECA

By ANN CAMPBELL

The Distributive Education Club of American recently elected officers for the 1973-1974 year.

Gary Bays is the new DECA president, with Jay Carter serving as vice-president. Jeanne Campbell is the secretary, Sally Noble and Libby Raypole treasurers, Debbie Hildreth sergeant-at-arms, DeDe Southward reporter, and Jerry Tuttle parliamentarian. These officers, along with Mr. Tom Yates, the advisor, are planning a number of activities for the coming year.

DeDe Southward, Sally Noble, Robin Leasure, Debbie Hildreth, and Diane Brown are nominees for the Miss Ohio D.E.C.A. contest to be held Oct. 30.

The Fall Delegates Conference is Nov. 9 and 10, and District Competition is on January 21, 1974. Miami Trace will send representatives to the National Leadership Conference in Chicago April 28 through May 1.

Junior and senior D.E.C.A. members are planning to enter a float in the Christmas parade December 1. On the Friday before the parade, senior members will be giving a breakfast for their employers.

Check fraud, theft, drug charges heard

Four of nine persons scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Tuesday were charged with victimizing local business establishments. Three of them were charged with check fraud, a fourth with shoplifting.

Sharon A. Knisley, 25, Rt. 3, Washington C. H., was found guilty on two counts of fraud in connection with checks she had cashed at the Super Shoe Mart, N. Fayette St. The checks were for $1.04 and $24.96. She was fined $50 and costs on each count by acting Municipal Judge John P. Case.

Linda Kelley, Hillsboro, was fined $100 and costs for passing a $15 bogus check at Sea-way, and Lorraine Clark, 23, Columbus, was fined $100 and costs for a $15.67 check fraud at Buckeye Mart.

Shirley J. Blackburn, Blanchester was found guilty of petty larceny after she had taken $15 in merchandise from Sea-way. She was fined $100 and costs.

David Hotl, 21, Columbus, was given a $250 fine and a suspended 30-day jail term for possession of marijuana.

Charges of disturbing the peace filed against Jean A. Tucker, 33, of 932 Millwood Ave., were dismissed at the request of the prosecuting witness. She had been arrested on a private warrant.

M. Jay Putney, 21, of U.S. 62-SE, was fined $25 and costs for malicious destruction of property.

Two men, Floyd A. Lyons, 43, of 107 Water St., and Harry J. Gaughan, 64, Brooklyn, Ohio, each forfeited $50 bond when they failed to appear on charges of public intoxication.

Property damage crashes reported

Sheriff and Police departments report three accidents Tuesday. There were no injuries.

Striking a stopped car at a traffic light brought a Portsmouth man a charge of failure to maintain assured clear distance at 4:20 p.m. Tuesday.

The accident occurred at Elm and Fayette streets. Jean Bowman, 40, of 9 Brookside Center, reported moderate damage to her car when it was struck in the rear by another driver Roy F. Bost, 35.

A collision in the K & K bait store parking lot at 12:11 p.m. Tuesday involved Lucinda K. Self, 24, of Route 6 and Nick A. Vrettos, 72, of 401 E. Temple St. There was moderate damage.

Florence M. Turny, 63, of Springfield, oversteered while cutting back to traffic on US 35 and went off the right side of the road, into a fence and came to rest in a soybean field. Moderate damage was done to the auto but there were no injuries.

Arrests

SHERIFF — Tuesday, Shelby R. Martin, 30, of 225 Olive St., speeding; George F. Dixon, 47, of 516 Columbus Ave., speeding; Coral I. Merritt, 52, of Route 5, warrant for passing stopped school bus; Merle Jones Jr., 18, and Terry Lynn Jones, 22, of New Holland, disturbing the peace by fighting.

POLICE — Tuesday, Lorraine Clark, 23, Columbus, bad checks; Michael J. Putney, 21, Route 2, warrant for malicious destruction of property; Deanna Anderson, 20, Waverly, running a red light; Tony Cottrill, 18, Leesburg, assault warrant.

Coast Guard searches for man on lake

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Coast Guard rescue vessels were searching Lake Erie today for Myron Watson, 66, of Euclid, reported overdue on a trip from Cleveland to Pelee Island, the Coast Guard said.

Watson was the only person aboard a 38-foot white and turquoise cabin cruiser, the Ken W. IV, the Coast Guard said.

Crowd tops 500 at WSHS open house

More than 300 adults and between 200 and 250 students attended an open house held Tuesday night at Washington Senior High School.

Principal Fred Jones said, "It was the most successful open house I've seen during my teaching career."

The emphasis of the open house was a tour of the high school building where a number of students were involved in everyday activities. The drill team and cheerleaders were practicing and the ROTC cadets were marching in the gymnasium, while students manned mock classes and were conducting chemistry experiments and working math problems on the blackboards. Office helpers were also on duty.

The guests were greeted by the Future Teachers of America group. Mothers received blue or white carnations and the fathers received car decals denoting the top-ranked Washington C.H. football team.

The tour of the building was conducted by ROTC cadets with 10 parents in a group. Keith Stimpert, Student Council president, welcomed the visitors and introduced faculty members. The invocation was given by Bruce Gilmore, of the Hi-Y Club. Entertainment was provided by the WSHS choir, under the direction of Charles Shaffer.

Parents were allowed time to become acquainted with instructors, and refreshments were served by the Future Homemakers of America group in the cafeteria. Door Prizes, sponsored by the two DECA classes, were awarded and the benediction was delivered by Michelle Davis, of the Y-Teen Club.

Commissioners accept bid on fleet coverage

The Fayette County Board of Commissioners Tuesday afternoon accepted one of three bids submitted at an earlier meeting for fleet insurance coverage of all county-owned vehicles.

Commissioners accepted a bid of $4,936.75 per year submitted by the Charles Sheridan Co., Washington C. H., for fleet insurance. Sheridan's bid was $1,460.31 lower than the next lowest bidder.

The bids for fleet insurance were opened by commissioners at the Oct. 1 meeting, but no action was taken at that time. Other bids submitted were Richard R. Willis Insurance Co., $6,832, and Pennington Insurance Co., $6,397.06.

The board also agreed to advertise for bids for office equipment for the Fayette County Sheriff's Department. The bids will be opened at 10 a.m. Nov. 27. Commissioners entered into a maintenance agreement with Boyland and Cannon Electronics Co., 135 N. Fayette St., for service on communications equipment.

Report vandalism at Madison Mills

Vandals struck Madison Mills School between 7:30 p.m. Monday and 6 a.m. Tuesday.

Principal Michael Yambor reported that profanities had been written in soap on the blacktop and the windows.

Three men from Circleville, whose original intentions were to trim trees in Jeffersonville, wound up on open container charges for drinking publicly, instead.

The men, Thomas Lee Hoffman, 24, Charles B. Robinson, 24, and Roger Howard, 22, were told Tuesday that Jeffersonville didn't need any trees trimmed. They changed their plans.

City school grading period may be changed

The nine-week grading period in the city schools may be changed back to the previous six-week period if the majority of parents prefer the shorter one, Hugh Rea, elementary school coordinator, and Fred L. Domenico, a member of the school board, told the Sunnyside Parent-Teacher Organization Tuesday night.

The question was brought up during the business session by Don Belles. He said the parents he has talked with would rather get their children's grade cards every six week as in the past.

The meeting, the first of the new school year, followed a potluck supper. It was conducted by Mrs. Ed Warning, the president, who appointed two standing committees: social, Mrs. James Richard, Mrs. Charles Harris and Mrs. Marlene McCri, and program, Mr. and Mrs. Belles and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bonecutter.

THE FOUR candidates for the school board, Domenico, seeking re-election, and Mrs. Robert J. Lee, Philip Morrow and John Wedgewood, spoke briefly on behalf of their candidacies. Two will be elected Nov. 6.

Richard Maddux explained the need for the .02 mill levy for the Health Department, and Mrs. Warning urged support of the 2-mill additional levy and 1-mill levy renewal for the schools which will come to a vote at the November election.

Principal Henry Best introduced the six teachers and reported that the PTO now has a membership of 171. The PTO voted to have a party for the third grade pupils, who led the signup with 63 new members. The sixth grade won the banner for having the most parents at the meeting.

After adjournment most of the group went to the open house at the Senior High School.

Shock probation analysis eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A better way must be found to determine what happens to prisoners released on "shock" probation in Ohio, the chairman of a legislative study commitee said Tuesday.

Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, told his Legislative Service Commission Study Committee on Program Evaluation that the present system enables the Adult Parole Authority to keep track of prisoners for only a year.

George F. Denton, chief of the parole authority, conceded this was the case, but said part of the problem lies in the fact that the 40 county common pleas courts which operate their own probation systems do not share information completely or regularly with the state agency.

Henry Grinnes, superintendent of probation development for the APA, suggested the legislature might pass a law mandating a uniform statewide information system. The APA handles probation and parole work in 48 counties.

Maloney asked the APA officials to come before his interim study committee after he was "startled," he said, by reading in an LSC staff report that a third of those on shock probation went back to prison over a four year period.

Denton explained that the figures show the number of returnees for all reasons, including parole violations, and are not valid as a measurement of the success or failure of the seven-year-old shock probation system.

The legislature authorized the state's judges in 1966 to place prisoners on probation after they had experienced the shock of having been incarcerated for a minimum of 130 days.

In 1966, a total of 85 convicts received shock probation, and five were returned after new convictions—or 5.8 per cent.

In 1971, there were 150 who came back among 1,688 placed on probation, or 8.9 per cent. The highest was in 1968 when 10 per cent of 480 placed on probation were convicted of new offenses.

SCOL road trip confronts Panthers

MT hopes for third loop victory Friday

BY DENNIS STAPLETON

Record-Herald Sports Editor

Head coach Fred Zechman must maintain a high spirit of enthusiasm among his players for this week's contest with winless Greenfield. After a disappointing loss last week to Wilmington, the once aggressive Panthers must pull together the pieces and become aggressive again.

The Panthers' loss to Wilmington gave the South Central Ohio League a clear leader with two teams tied in the second slot.

Undefeated and unscored upon Washington C.H. remains atop the league ladder with Miami Trace and Wilmington nesting on the second step with one loss apiece. Wilmington has lost to Washington C.H. and Miami Trace has lost to Wilmington to account for the single fault for each team.

BUT THIS Friday brings added pressure on Miami Trace.

After a good showing against Hillsboro and a very good outing against defending league champion Circleville, the bottom fell out of the Panthers bread and butter basket against a talented Wilmington team.

Against Hillsboro, Jeff Sagar provided the offensive punch with 114 yards and one touchdown. In the battle with Circleville Doug Ford furnished the offensive entertainment with 153 yards and two touchdowns. But against Wilmington the talented duo was held to 72 yards between them. Although Sagar did provide the only Panthers score.

Also in the Wilmington game, the gifted running and passing quarterback for the Panthers, Tom Riley, fell short of his usual performance. Against Hillsboro, Riley tossed for one score and ran for two others plus threw for two sets of extra points. In the Circleville game, Riley passed for one touchdown and ran three extra points. But while fighting a twisted ankle and a strong Wilmington defense, Riley collected no points and was held to a minus 29 yards rushing.

So as one might imagine a team can be expected to be down after suffering a loss to a team that the Panthers ordinarily could have defeated.

Coach Zechman stated before Tuesday's practice that the Panthers, "had lost all the aggressiveness from the Circleville game and the defensive consistency that the Panthers had maintained through several games eluded them in the Wilmington contest. We held Wilmington for several plays but always allowed them to break away for a long gainer or a score", Zechman pointed out. He went on to say that, "a team must have consistency in both offensive and defensive line charges to become a winning ball club. What we did against Circleville, Wilmington did against us," Zechman explained.

Well, what Miami Trace has to do to Greenfield is what the Panthers did against both Hillsboro and Circleville and that's win.

Greenfield, under the guidance of rookie head coach Fred Brisker, will be hoping to snap a seven-game losing streak in the SCOL encounter Friday night at Greenfield. The Tiger offense has been unproductive while the defense has allowed over 100 points.

The Highland Countians are 0-4 inside the SCOL race after losing to Circleville 21-6, Madison Plains 12-8, Washington C.H. 34-0 and Hillsboro20-12. The Tigers have also dropped three non-league games. Springfield Shawnee 19-0, Chillicothe 14-0 and London 24-6.

That makes a total of only 32 points scored for the Tigers and 144 points tallied against Greenfield.

Brisker, a 22-year-old Miami of Ohio University product, has a huge offensive line which averages 208 pounds.

ANCHORING the Greenfield offensive line is John Free, a 6-foot-3, 220-pound senior who won All-SCOL honorable mention honors a year ago, and Doug Morehead, a 6-foot-4, 280-pound senior. Free will man the left guard spot and Morehead is the left tackle. On the right side of the line, Dave Addington, 230-pounder, and 220-pound junior Jack Kinzer will be at the guard and tackle posts, respectively. Jay Harmount, a 150-pounder, is the center.

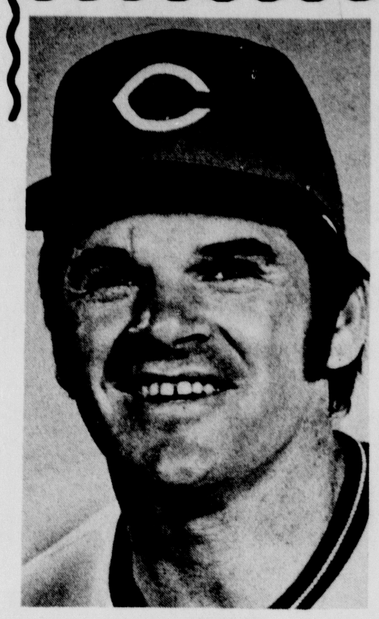

The ground-oriented Tigers have Marion Blake, 198-pound fullback, and Gary Barr, a 180-pound tailback, to get their rushing attack going, along with the team's leading receiver Alan Roark and halfback Brad Adams.

Sophomore Kevin Kensinger, a 6-foot-0, 150-pounder, has filled in for Dan Strain, who has been injured, but returned last week against Hillsboro, at the quarterback spot. Sophomore Tim Gossett and Butch Miller are the ends in Greenfield's power I-formation.

Defensively, where the Tigers use a 5-2 monster formation, Max Fultz, a 165-pound senior, is the middle guard, although Strain did play that position last week in the Hillsboro contest. Free and Addington are the tackles with Jim Ganger and Barr at the ends. Harmount and Blake are the linebackers with John Everhart serving as the monster. Steve Scarberry, Charles Eselgroth and Adams form the defensive secondary.

Coach Zechman reported that Greg Wieland, Jeff Long and Riley are nursing injuries and may not see action in the fourth SCOL contest in a row for the Panthers. The game will be Greenfield's Homecoming and will get under way at 8 p.m.

Rose tops AP stars

PETE ROSE

NEW YORK (AP) — Batting champions Pete Rose and Rod Carew, primarily singles hitters, and sluggers Willie Stargell and Reggie Jackson, leaders in home runs and runs batted in, were named today to the 1973 Major League All-Star team announced by The Associated Press.

National Leaguers dominated the voting, winning seven of 10 places on the squad selected by sports writers and broadcasters, but the NL champion New York Mets failed to land a player.

In the balloting based on regular-season performances only, Rose, the National League batting champion for the third time with a .338 average, was the top vote collector.

The hustling Cincinnati Reds' outfielder received 251 votes, 20 more than runner-up Stargell.

Stargell, the husky Pittsburgh Pirates' outfielder-first baseman who led the NL in home runs with 44 and in RBI with 119, accumulated 231 votes.

Jackson, the pacesetter of the American League and World Series champion Oakland A's, won the other outfield berth on the All-Star team with 200 votes. He won the AL home run title with 32 and the RBI championship with 117.

Carew, the Minnesota Twins' slick second baseman, led the infielders with 136 votes. Joining him in the infield were first baseman Tony Perez of the Cincinnati Reds, shortstop Chris Speier of the San Francisco Giants and third baseman Darrell Evans of the Atlanta Braves.

Johnny Bench, Cincinnati's irrepressible catcher, was the only repeater from the 1972 team.

Ron Bryant of the San Francisco Giants, the only National League pitcher with at least 20 victories—he had 24—was chosen as the All-Star left-handed hurler, and fireballing Nolan Ryan of the California Angels, who set a major league strikeout record with 383, was picked as the top right-handed pitcher.

Hank Aaron, Atlanta's 39-year-old slugger who hit 40 homers for a career total of 713, only one short of Babe Ruth's all-time record, wound up fifth among the outfielders with 124 votes. San Francisco's Bobby Bonds was fourth with 157 votes.

The 31-year-old Rose, NL batting champion in 1968 and 1969 with averages of .335 and .348, respectively, won the title this year by rapping out a major league-leading total of 230 hits, including 181 singles.

Carew, also winner of AL batting crowns in 1969 with a .332 mark and 1972 at .318, captured his third title with a .350 average, highest in the majors. He was the only American League player to collect at least 200 hits, finishing with 203, including 156 singles.

He beat out Atlanta's Dave Johnson for the second base spot by 29 votes. Johnson, after setting a major league record for second basemen with 43 homers, received 107 votes.

The closest vote was for right-handed pitcher. Ryan, with a 21-16 record in addition to bettering Sandy Koufax' seasonal strikeout record of 382, polled 105 votes in besting National League strikeout leader Tom Seaver of the Mets.

Seaver garnered 86 votes, highest among the NL champions. Jim Palmer, Baltimore's 22-game winner, finished third with 71 votes, and Jim "Catfish" Hunter, a 21-game winner with Oakland, was fourth with 63.

Bryant received 88 votes in outpolling three other 20-game winners—Vida Blue and Ken Holtzman of Oakland and Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox—to win top honors for lefthanded pitchers.

Bench, a .253 hitter with 25 homers and 104 RBI for Cincinnati's NL West Division champions, was a landslide winner as catcher. He got 184 votes, easily outdistancing Thurman Munson of the New York Yankees, runner-up with 57 votes.

Perez, fourth in batting in the National League with a .314 average in addition to hitting 27 homers and driving in 101 runs, received 90 votes for first base. John Mayberry of the Kansas City Royals finished second with 64 votes.

Evans, a surprising third in the National League with a career high of 41 homers plus a .280 batting average and 104 runs batted in, was tabbed the best third baseman on 119 ballots. Oakland's Sal Bando was next with 87 votes.

The slick-fielding Speier, a .249 batter with 11 homers and 71 runs batted in, collected 103 votes in winning easily at shortstop. Bill Russell of the Los Angeles Dodgers was a distant second with 53.

MacPhail new AL president

CHICAGO (AP) — Lee MacPhail, a baseball man who prefers interleague play and a shorter season, has been named president of the American League, succeeding Joe Cronin.

Cronin, who has been the league president since 1959, will step down Jan. 1, 1974, and become chairman of the board. Cronin, 67, will preside over the league meetings in Houston in December.

MacPhail, 55, said Tuesday after being named to the post that he would spend the next two months winding up his duties as general manager of the New York Yankees.

MacPhail is the son of Larry MacPhail who introduced the major leagues to night baseball and owned the Cincinnati Reds, New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers.

MacPhail said he didn't contemplate any immediate changes. However, he said he is opposed to three leagues but favors interleague play and a shorter season to be cut at the end in order to move up the playoffs and the World Series.

MacPhail said "I hate to change from being active or leaving the New York Yankees. I spent one year in the commissioner's office and I don't like being neutral.

"But neither did I want to miss this opportunity," said MacPhail, who added that one of his objectives when he takes over is to improve the relationship with the National League.

MacPhail said, "The new ownership of the Yankees had nothing to do with my leaving the club. I found my relationship with the new owners excellent. I only feel I left my real quest unaccomplished without getting the Yankees back on top."

Meanwhile, American League owners said they would make every effort to make the designated hitter rule permanent. Currently it is on a three-year experimental basis.

Bob Short, owner of the Texas Rangers, was one of the stronger designated hitter backers.

"We want to be able to put the rule to use when we play in our home parks in exhibition games, the All-Star and World Series. We've used it for a year ... we like it ... and the fans like it."

Cronin read a statement from the Yankees that it was with great "trepidation" that they gave MacPhail permission to accept the appointment.

They said they regretted their loss which they called the American League's gain.

"I echo those sentiments," said Cronin, the Most Valuable Player in the American League in 1930 and named to the game's Hall of Fame in 1956.

Yogi Berra gets 3-year Mets pact

HAWORTH, N.J. (AP) — Yogi Berra, dressed like Jack Nicklaus but hitting the golf ball very much unlike the pro golfer, reflected for a moment on his new contract to manage the New York Mets.

"They were very good to me," said Berra, who agreed Tuesday to spend his next three summers at Shea Stadium. "I asked if I could have it and they said, fine."

Then Yogi went out for 18 holes of golf. He did better at the negotiation table than he did on the White Beeches Golf and Country Club course. "I am playing lousy golf," the manager confessed.

Berra rounded the course in a snazzy outfit that included two-tone red and white golf shoes. He looked happy, with his contract, if not his golf.

Security was an important part of the new agreement which included a substantial raise, probably to $75,000. More than once, Berra heard the wolves at his door when the Mets were dragging along in last place during what seemed to be an endless summer.

The announcement was made two days after the Mets lost the seventh game of the World Series to the Oakland A's. That was seven games farther than anybody, Berra included, expected them to go this season.

Boobie, Essex eye double 1000 year

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals think rookie running sensation Charles "Boobie" Clark—who spent most of his college career as a tight end—may be the "catch" of the year in the National Football League.

"Call it one lucky stab," said Bengals Coach Paul Brown Tuesday.

Clark, a 6-foot-2, 235-pound 12th round draft choice out of Bethune-Cookman (Fla.) College, has teamed up with veteran Essex Johnson to give the giant-killing Bengals their best backfield combination in the club's six-year history.

And they're threatening to duplicate the unprecedented feat of 1972 when Miami's Larry Csonka and Mercury Morris become the first players from the same NFL team to gain 1,000 yards each in the same season.

Johnson, with 529 yards , and Clark's 457 put the Bengal backs 179 yards ahead of the pace set by Csonka and Morris after six games a year ago.

Johnson is ranked No. 2 in the American Football Conference and Clark fifth. Clark is the second leading rookie rusher in the 26-team NLF, trailing Minnesota's Chuck Foreman by 27 yards.

"Boobie has emerged as a tremendous competitor," said Brown, who feels he's found the big back he's been searching for.

"He's no Fancy Dan...just one of those chips-down runners," said Brown.

Clark has been instrumental in Cincinnati's back-to-back victories over AFC powerhouses Pittsburgh and Kansas City. He gained 118 yards in a stunning 19-7 triumph over the Steelers and had 106 in Sunday's 14-6 victory over the Chiefs.

"It's kind of a surprise," said Clark, "but I know I'm made of the same stuff as other ballplayers. A lot of people think only the big schools turn out the best athletes. That's not true. There's a lot of good athletes in the small schools."

Bradshaw book gives Sunday Bengals clash new ingredient

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw's new book, "No Easy Game," is providing an added ingredient to the return match Sunday with the Cincinnati Bengals at Pittsburgh.

The Bengals knocked off the high-powered Steelers here two weeks ago 19-7, the only loss suffered by Pittsburgh this year, now 5-1. Cincinnati and Cleveland are 4-2 and are tied for second place in the central division of the American Conference of the National Football League.

Several Bengals commented Tuesday on references to them made by the blond passer in the book.

"The Pittsburgh Steelers don't need any special motivation to get ready for the Bengals," Bradshaw wrote.

"There are some teams you just like to beat more than others, and I believe I'd rather beat Cincinnati than anybody.

"I don't know why," Bradshaw continued, "but lots of guys on our team feel the same way.

"They are obvious rivals— young like us, in the same division, located just over the state line in Ohio. One of the few cheap shots that I've ever taken in the NFL came from Bill Bergey of the Bengals, and I've enjoyed beating them even more since then."

Said Bergey: "He's writing about something that happened three years ago. If he wants to write those kind of things to sell his book, that's fine. I hope it sells a million copies."

Then, a few minutes later, the center linebacker grunted: "Some day I'm going to write a book."

Receiver Chip Myers jumped to Bergey's defense. "That wasn't a cheap shot," he said. "He was running the ball and he's fair game." Linebacker Ken Avery agreed.

All Pro defensive tackle Mike Reid also was noted in the book.

Bradshaw was talking about Pittsburgh's 40-17 massacre of Cincinnati last year avenging an earlier loss.

Lion seventh graders post 38-8 victory

The Washington C.H. seventh graders traveled to Greenfield Tuesday evening to meet the Greenfield seventh grade football team and came home with a 38-8 win.

The Lion seventh graders put together a crunching offense and a jarring defense to win the contest by the 30-point margin.

Larry Brickles, a talented halfback, scored four touchdowns to lead the Cubs in point production. Quarterback Tod Terrell passed to Mike Cox for a 45-yard touchdown for the other score.

Gary Fisher also played the quarterback role and performed well.

The offensive line and the defensive line were the keys to the success of the Lion Cubs. Steve Pritchett, Tracy Wilson, Bobby Runnells and Steve Qualls all played good games on the line. The line opened holes for Brickles and Max Lyons to pick up the needed yardage either for the score or the first downs.

Greenfield's only score came in the late moments of the second quarter.

The regular Washington C. H. junior high football team will play its last game of the season against Hillsboro at 4:30 p.m. Thursday at Hillsboro.

Prim Bloom winner of Lebanon feature

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Prim Bloom took the eighth feature pace mile at Lebanon Raceway in 2:08 Tuesday night to pay $11, $5.40 and $3.20.

Wye Tag placed, paying $5.60 and $3.60 and the show horse was Mr. Nixon, paying $2.80.

Little John B and Twinite Scot, 1-5 in the daily double, returned $23.80.

The crowd of 1,360 bet $103,241.

Tennessee State grabs top spot in small college poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Taking advantage of Delaware's first loss in 21 games, Tennessee State moved in to first place today in The Associated Press' small college football poll.

Delaware's 20-game winning streak was stopped by Rutgers 24-7 last weekend, and the Blue Hens dropped to second place behind all-winning Tennessee State.

Tennessee State won its sixth game of the year, battering Florida A&M 45-0 over the weekend and received 27 votes for first place and a point total of 778.

The points gave Tennessee State, last week's second-place team, a comfortable margin over Delaware. The Blue Hens cornered only five first-place ballots this time and finished with 598 points.

Hawaii, fourth last week, moved to No. 3 with two first place ballots and 567 points. The Rainbows whipped Puget Sound 30-7 for their fifth straight victory.

Cal-Poly, also 5-0, slipped from third to fourth despite beating Fullerton State 21-7. A nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters gave Cal-Poly six first-place ballots and 471 points.

Western Kentucky, 6-0, moved up a notch from sixth to fifth after a 35-0 thrashing of Eastern Kentucky. Western Kentucky, which replaced Grambling as No. 5, collected two first-place votes and 377 points.

The rest of the Top Ten included, No. 6 South Dakota, No. 7 Wittenberg, No. 8 Louisiana Tech, No. 9 Grambling and No. 10 North Dakota State.

Wittenberg, Elon and Langston, Okla. were the other teams receiving first-place votes. Each got one apiece.

PGA tournament slots are sought

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)— Seventy-five survivors of qualifying tests to determine who will win the privilege of joining the Professional Golfers Association tour began their final 72-hole tournament today over the demanding Dunes Golf and Beach Club layout.

The final run for the touring privilege, which winds up Saturday, will round our 144 holes for the 75 survivors of a field of 373 who began the elimination process in three regional tournaments in September.

MT's Players of Week

Two juniors have been selected as Miami Trace's Players of the Week for their individual performances in the Panthers' 19-6 loss to Wilmington last Friday night before a packed Parents Night crowd at Miami Trace Field.

Halfback Jeff Sagar and defensive safety Jim Glass were singled out by the Miami Trace coaching staff after viewing game films. Both received top honors in the Record-Herald's seventh weekly poll.

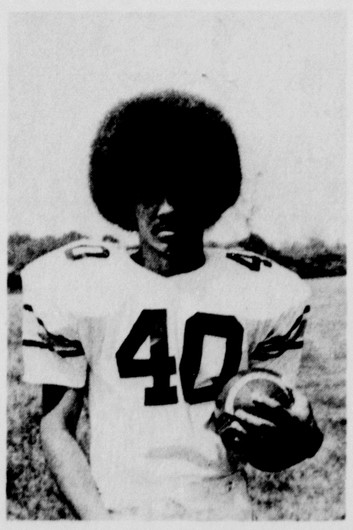

Sagar, a 165-pound halfback, carried the ball 10 times for 35 yards and one touchdown. Although that yardage wouldn't break any records, Sagar, had tremendous second effort on most of his carries. On several occassions Sagar was left with no blocking and had to fend for himself. On those times, even when he scored the touchdown, Sagar moved with poise and agility to gain extra yardage.

COMING close to Sagar for top offensive honors was end Jeff Smithson. The talented receiver pulled in two passes for 36 yards. That yardage total was well over half of the Panthers' aerial total.

On defense, Glass was chosen as the top player. From his defensive safety position, Glass made five unassisted tackles and had help on 10 others. Head coach Fred Zechman reported that Glass played his finest game to date. The hard-hitting safety collected 25 defensive points for his efforts. Glass also knocked down two passes and caused a Wilmington fumble.

JEFF SAGAR

JIM GLASS

The Panthers' "big lick" award also went to Glass for a jarring tackle on Wilmington speedster Jackie Watson in the second quarter.

Miami Trace slipped a knotch in the South Central Ohio League ranks with the loss to Wilmington. The Panthers' record now stands at 2-1 in the league, tied with Wilmington, and 4-3 overall.

Friday night the Panthers travel to Greenfield to meet a big and strong, but winless, Greenfield McClain team. The Tigers show a poor record but should prove to be a good team in the 8 p.m. Homecoming game.

Chinook Salmon to be plentiful

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Once the glamor fish among Midwestern salmon anglers, the coho may take a back seat to chinook salmon in Ohio this year.

The switch involves both quantity and quality but stems primarily from the fact that fishermen don't really have much of a choice in the matter.

There simply will be more chinooks available this year than at any time in the past.

In recent years the state has stocked as many as 175,000 coho fingerlings in three Ohio streams, the Huron and Chagrin Rivers and Conneaut Creek, all tributaries of Lake Erie.

Last year, however, coho eggs were in short supply so few young of that species were released. The Huron River in Erie County, for example, received only 28,500 coho smolts and the Chagrin in Lake County got a mere 9,000.

The emphasis on chinook should please most fishermen.

Farmer urges cautious planting

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the federal government and most consumers urge farmers to increase production, Rep. William J. Scherle, an I wa grain and livestock farmer, bucks the trend by telling his constituents: "Don't Overplant!" or "Plant with Cuation!"

If farmers overplant, Scherle says, market prices might fall, as they have in the past, and "our farmers will be getting a lesser amount for their crop."

The conservative Republican issues his caution notes regularly at the end of his newsletter because the American farmer is "going to get himself caught in a declining market, rather than making a living wage out of his efforts," an aide explained.

"We don't want them back at $1-a-bushel corn," the aide said.

At times this year, corn has sold over $4 a bushel.

The Agriculture Department has called for "full production," saying it will increase the supply of food, stabilize consumer prices and maintain farm income at its present high level.

Scherle does not trust the supply-and-demand forecasts of the Agriculture Department, the aide said. "Those are the same ones who sold wheat to Russia," he commented.

The 440-million-bushel sale to the Soviet Union last year has been cited by agricultural economists as one of several major factors contributing to this year's record retail food prices.

Farm spokesmen say farmers are not getting their fair share of the higher consumer prices because costs of grain to feed stock have risen just as rapidly.

Farm income, however, is at its highest level in two decades.

Nonetheless, Scherle's aide said, "the farmer just can't go up and plow to the fence rows" as Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has advised since early summer.

What's the reaction been to Scherle's stand? "Well, some people have said, 'Yeah, doggone right;' but we won't really know until they start planting next spring," the aide said.

MT SYMPHONIC CHOIR — The Miami Trace Symphonic Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Rick Stinson, will present selections from "Fiddler on the Roof" at the school's annual open house Monday evening, Oct. 29. The pgoram, first of the season for the choir, will begin at 7:30 p.m. Members will be in traditional dress, as pictured above, and will be accompanied by Elise Hill at the piano. The public is invited to attend.

Your Income Tax

EDITOR'S NOTE: — This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. When I retire, will I have to pay income tax on the pension I'll receive?

A. It depends upon the kind of pension you will be receiving. Social Security benefits are not taxable. However, if yours is a company pension and you did not contribute to the fund, the pension benefits are fully taxable. If you did contribute to the fund and will recover your contribution within three years, the pension is not taxed until you have recovered the total of your contribution; the remainder is fully taxable.

For more details, see IRS Publication 575, "Tax Information on Pensions and Annuities." Contact your Internal Revenue office for a free copy.

Q. I loaned my brother-in-law some money for a business venture that flopped. I know I'll never collect from him. How can I tell if the loan qualifies as a deductible bad debt expense?

A. When you claim a bad debt deduction you must have good evidence that the debt is worthless and will remain so in the future. You must take reasonable steps to collect the debt. It is not necessary to go to court if it can be shown that a judgment, if obtained, would be uncollectible.

If, in the exercise of sound business judgment, it is determined that there is no likelihood of recovery at any time in the future, the debt has become worthless.

Secondly, gifts cannot form the basis of a bad debt. Thus, if an advance is made with the understanding that it is to be repaid and is later forgiven, the advance is considered a gift and not a loan.

Loans to children and other relatives are presumed to be gifts. This presumption, however, may be overcome by convincing evidence.

Facts, and not the form of the transaction, will determine whether an actual loan was made.

For more information, see IRS Publication 548, "Tax Information on Deduction for Bad Debts," available free from your nearest IRS office.

Q. I pay a nurse to come in and take care of my disabled husband while I'm out working. Are these payments subject to the three percent-of-adjusted-gross-income limitation on medical expenses?

A. Yes, if you decide to claim the payments as a medical expense. However, in the alternative, you may claim the expenses as a deduction for disabled dependent care.

This deduction has more liberal limitations than those for medical expense: (1) You must be gainfully employed, (2) have an adjusted gross income of $18,000 or less (for every $1 your income exceeds $18,000 your deduction is reduced $2, disappearing completely at $27,600), and (3) maintain a household for you and your husband.

In addition, the deduction is limited to $400 a month for dependent care services performed in the home.

More details may be found in IRS Publication 503, "Child Care and Disabled Dependent Care," available free from your local Internal Revenue office.

Firestone steps down

Firestone, who will continue as chairman of the board, was 65 last month.

Ohio Perspective

Leo D'Arcy in mayoralty race

By JAMES STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Democrat Leo D'Arcy decided to run for mayor after taking a long look at the 7-foot hole in his yard where the sewer system was being repaired.

He had waited eight days for city sewer crews to come and repair the damage. And he was still waiting.

"If the problems were big problems, then I think I might feel like I was unqualified," he said. "But what we're talking about are little problems, people problems. Apparently that's what the city needs is somebody to solve the little problems."

The day he was looking at his yard was the day after James Carney stunned the Democratic party by resigning from the mayor's race. D'Arcy jumped in.

He phoned The Associated Press to announce his decision, and he said people began calling the same night, "asking what they could do to help."

D'Arcy's write-in candidacy actually is the third of the nonpartisan mayoral race. Two minor party candidates, representing the Socialist Workers and Socialist Labor parties, had filed earlier to run as write-in candidates.

The heavyweight in the race is incumbent Mayor Ralph J. Perk, a Republican generally favored to win the election easily as the only name on the ballot. Perk had been given the edge by political observers even before Carney resigned.

"I don't know that it (winning) would be possible," D'Arcy said. His only other political race was a losing run for the state legislature in 1962 in Lake County.

Two years ago he moved from Cleveland's plush eastern suburbs back into the city, bringing his wife and seven children to a bigger, three-story house in the northeastern Collinwood section.

He still works as news director of WELW, a radio station in nearby Willoughby, and he said he has no plans to resign that job during the campaign. If there are equal-time complaints, he said, he will know how to handle them.

"I have the news broadcasts and I run a two-hour 'Swap Shop' program," he said. "And if Mayor Perk wants to come in and do it, fine."

Ohioana group prepares for award ceremony

Mrs. Frank J. Mayo, 4 Royal Court, Fayette County chairman of the Ohioana Library Association, and Mrs. J. Earl Gidding, 421 W. Court St., a trustee, are planning to attend the 44th annual meeting and luncheon of the association Saturday at Capital University, Bexley.

Highlight of the meeting will be the presentation of book awards, citations and the Career Medal.

Dr. Merrill Patterson, president of Ohioana Library and consultant to the president of Parkersburg College, Parkersburg, W. Va., has announced the following authors as the recipients of the 1973 Ohioana Book Awards:

Kenneth E. Davison for his history, "The Presidency of Rutherford B. Hayes," Dr. Davison, professor of History and American Studies and chairman of the Department of American Studies at Heidelberg College, Tiffin, portrays Hayes as a middle-class, moderate statesman who effected a recovery of the economy.

Hannah Green for her novel, "The Dead of the House." Miss Green (Mrs. John Wesley), formerly of Cincinnati, now resides in New York where, as assistant professor, she teaches in the School of Arts, Columbia University.

J. Allen Hynek for his scientific volume, "The U F O Experience: A Scientific Inquiry." Dr. Hynek now holds the chair of astronomy at Northwestern University.

Mary Oliver for her volume of poetry, "The River Styx, Ohio and Other Poems." Born in Maple Heights, not far from Cleveland, Miss Oliver is coming from her home in Provincetown, Mass. to accept her Ohioana book award.

James T. Patterson for his biography, "Mr. Republican; a Biography of Robert A. Taft." Dr. Patterson, both a historian and biographer, is professor of American history at Brown University.

The Florence Roberts Head Memorial Award of 1973 goes to Charles S. Homes for his portrait-study entitled "The Clocks of Columbus, The Literary Career of James Thurber." Dr. Holmes is professor of English at Pomona College in Claremont, Calif.

The Career Medal will be presented to John H. Glenn "First Man in Orbit," who was born in Cambridge.

John Alexander, Metropolitan Opera tenor of world-wide renown, is receiving Ohioana's 1973 Citation in Music. He studied at the Conservatory of Music, Cincinnati.

Ohioana Citations will be presented to Dana Adams Schmidt, Pentagon correspondent for The Christian Science Monitor; to Boyd C. Shafer, professor of history at the University of Arizona, for his leadership as educator and historian and to Francis Lee Utley, professor of English, Ohio State University, for his contributions to Ohio folklore.

2 appear on charges of shooting

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Two Wilson Junior High School boys were scheduled to appear Monday in Butler County Juvenile Court in connection with the shootings of two other boys Monday, killing one.

"At this point," said Police Chief George V. McNally Tuesday night, "we don't even know who shot whom."

He said he was waiting for a ballistics test result on the bullet taken from the chest of the dead youth, Carl Ray Taylor, 16, a student at Hamilton Taft High School.

Charles Nelpinsteine, 14, a Wilson student, remained in critical condition at a local hospital with a bullet wound in the chest. The bullet passed through his body and was not recovered.

Police recovered two .22 caliber rifles from the Cliffview Outdoor Environmental Center. The shootings occurred in the 28-acre nature study park owned by the school system.

Two other youths, who originally reported the shootings, later were charged with delinquency in connection with the case. They were released Tuesday of their parents.

McNally said the shootings resulted from "horseplay" among the four youths. Half a dozen shots had been fired, he said.

Opening lead - ten of spades.

It is estimated that even the best players reach the ideal contract only about 90 per cent of the time.

Probably most bridge enthusiasts think the top players do better than that, but actually that is about the highest point of efficiency a pair can be expected to reach.

When you stop to consider that you and partner can be dealt 5,157,850,293,780,050,462,400 different combinations of cards to bid, you begin to realize that even the most practiced partnerships will miss the best contract in at least a few billion of them.

This hand occurred in a match between Switzerland and Lebanon. It is remarkable that the Swiss North-South pair (Besse and Durouvenoz) were able to reach a sound contract of six diamonds despite East's preemptive three spade bid.

Three notrump by Durouvenoz had its natural meaning and showed willingness to play the hand right there if North was of the same mind.

Besse was faced with a difficult decision — whether or not to pass — but finally elected to try for a slam in one of his suits. Accordingly he cuebid spades to force partner to choose the right suit.

Durouvenoz was of course happy to cooperate with this forward-going move, but he was not unnaturally reluctant to leap to six diamonds with a jack-high suit. He therefore responded with a further cuebid in spades to force North to select the suit.

But Besse, still in doubt as to which suit would serve best as trumps, again forced the choice on his partner by bidding five notrump. Durouvenoz there-upon bid six diamonds, which he easily made by taking two trump finesses.

Aussie wheelbarrow race is popular annual event

PORT HEDLAND, Australia (AP) — The Black Rock Stakes, Australia's most noteworthy wheelbarrow race, was won this year in record time in the Pilbara region of northwest Australia.

It's an annual event, carried out over dirt roads between the mining towns of Goldsworthy and Port Hedland.

Men competitors operate 10 to a team; women are allowed 12 pushers.

The idea is to push a wheelbarrow loaded with 25 pounds of iron ore as quickly as possible from town to town, an advertised distance of 74 miles.

The timekeepers clocked in the winners, "The Tigers" of Goldsworthy, of 5:51:0 which is about 13 miles per hour, not all that much a slower average than that of the fabulous for-minute-milers among the athletes.

IF YOU DON'T believe the time and distance you are not the only one. The clockers are though to be correct, but there are a few who say the distance is more like 68 miles. Still, the distance was the same last year when the time of 7:20:0 was thought to be good.

The race was first run in 1970 to settle a bet between two miners of the Goldsworthy Mining Co. Now the winners are presented with bronze medallions depicting a wheelbarrow runner on one side and the emblems of two mining companies on the other.

This year there were 15 teams in the race, now highly organized and run at night because it is too hot during the day.

Wheelbarrow racers have absolute priority on the road, and long "road trains" hauled by great trucks pull into the side when they meet the barrow runners.

THE WHEELBARROWS are modified somewhat. Race rules say they must have head and tail lights. Competitors extend the handles several feet to make the barrows easier to maneuver.

The competitors not immediately engaged in pushing ride on a vehicle usually slightly in front of their barrow. When the time comes for a change of pushers one hops off and the ex-pusher sprints to get aboard the vehicle.

And to what do this year's winners attribute their success? They raced with their barrow in only 30 second high speed bursts before handing over to the next happy fellow.

COMPANIES and local organizations sponsor the race on a mileage basis and this year the companies included some with headquarters in the United States, Britain and Japan.

Profits, which go to the Royal Flying Doctor Service and the St. John Ambulance Association, are expected to top $5,600 this year.

It's all good, clean fun with race stewards and marshals, official time keepers, medical officers and police escorts, and, of course, spectators even though it starts around mid-night.
